Lancaster Farming

VOL. 27 No. 43 | Four Sections | Lancaster Farming, Saturday, August 28, 1982 | $7.50 per year

Although this tractor cab stands idle for a moment, before the day ended visitors like Sam Martin, left and Kevin Stoops of Waynesboro, Franklin Co. examined, asked and learned about equipment, crops and much more as the 1982 Ag Progress Days turned Central Pennsylvania into a mammoth outdoor classroom.

Ag Progress feeds the knowledge-hungry

BY DONNA TOMMELLEO

ROCK SPRINGS — Last year, 96 percent of Ag Progress Days visitors surveyed said they'd return, explained AFD director J.D. Harrington.

They kept their word. They also brought back a few thousand more friends. On Tuesday, a record-breaking opening-day crowd of 25,000 visited Rock Springs, the permanent site of the three day event.

The record turn-out continued, despite early morning rains and heavy winds on Wednesday. By Thursday, the crowd supassed the 80,000 mark, mking another Ag Progress Days into the record books.

A slow economy had little effect on the army of commercial exhibitors, which also enjoyed record numbers. Harrington noted commercial exhibits were up 5.5 percent from last year, totaling 260 in all. Combined with the educational exhibits, more than 300 exhibits, from cat care to combining, blanketed the land.

"We can handle more," assured Harrington. "But we've got to tighten up as we get bigger."

Violated rules and regulations, such as selling over-the-counter during AFD, can mean expulsion of a commercial exhibit. However, any exhibitor, promoting ag-related products, is welcome, Harrington added.

This year's theme, "Agriculture: the Growing Business," was evident throughout the event.

Lancaster 4-H hog champ moves just down the road

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

LANCASTER — The Lancaster 4-H hog grand championship literally moved down the road less than a mile on Thursday.

The 1982 championship belongs to 14-year-old Deanne Myer, daughter of Marlin and Marcella Myer, of R5 Manheim, who showed her 210-pound lightweight to the top of the 138-hog roundup at the Lancaster Stockyards.

Last year, the champion honors were dominated by Liz and Chris Chapman, also of R5 Manheim.

And to keep the honors entirely in the neighborhood, the. Myer Duroc came out of the Dutch Valley Farms stock, which can claim a junior show sweep this year. The recent FFA grand champ also was a John Chapman-Mark Nestleroth product, as were the 4-H champions the previous two years.

"We were surprised," Marlin Myer commented.

"Surprised? I was shocked," exclaimed Deanne.

The youthful exhibitor moved to the top center of the show ring in just four years of 4-H competition. Her best previous showing was a reserve in the lightweight class last year. She's a member of the

Lancaster maps last acre

BY SHEILA MILLER

MILLERSVILLE — If Lancaster County Conservation District directors Amos Funk and Aaron Stauffer had as much control over cropland use as it seemed they had over Wednesday's weather, the garden-spot county of Pennsylvania would not be losing the phenomenal amounts of soil to erosion it has been experiencing over the past 30 years.

Unfortunately, unlike the thunderstorm that vanished minutes before the county's Last Acre ceremony was scheduled to begin — celebrating the completion of a 6½-year cooperative soil mapping effort — the soil erosion problem in Lancaster County is continuing to increase in intensity as more farmers are breaking sod for corn ground.

"Farmers are creating problems faster than they can be solved," remarked Funk. Because of erosion and continually deeper plowing, Funk pointed out that the county's soils have lost 10-20 inches of depth since 1945. Back then the average topsoil boasted almost a yard of fertile ground.

Statistics verifying Funk's concerns about too much ground being turned by the plow were announced Wednesday by Lancaster County Extension Agent Jay Irwin. reported 1981 figures for corn planted in the county exceeded last year's totals by 3,600 acres. And 1980 corn acres topped 1979's by 12,000 acres. (see related story, page A17.)

When it comes to soil loss, however, the measure of land is in inches not acres — each year bringing fewer inches of soil for farmer's with unprotected cropland.

The "yardstick" for comparing Lancaster County's soils from the turn of the century until today is possible due to the cooperative efforts of the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service, Penn State, and the Pennsylvania Conservation Commission. The first soil survey for the county was published in 1916, with an updated survey being completed in 1940 and again in 1959.

At a cost of about $1 per acre, 605,500 acres of land were mapped in detail in Lancaster County since 1976 — with each soil and its particular characteristics being identified and charted by teams of

During Lancaster's Last Acre ceremony, held Wednesday at Millersville, District directors Aaron Stauffer, left, and Amos Funk pointed out the increasing problem of erosion in the state's garden spot. Since 1945, unprotected soils have lost a foot of depth as farmers' plows sliced deeper into the fertile ground. This startling fact was brought into focus by the newly completed soil survey.

Two Ways To Improve Your Profit Picture

XL & DK

Two layers with distinctly different characteristics... From two separate research programs.

You don't have to buy from two different companies to get the two top layers on the market.

The XL shows excellent production under many management conditions. The DK responds best to finely tuned, close management.

DEKALB Layers are bred to possess the economic traits most applicable to your operation. You do have a choice... The high productivity XL or the high efficiency DK.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

AUG. 30-SEPT. 5, 1982

Too cool for the pool.

First apples can be picked now... "Hot Line" to Moscow opened Aug. 30, 1963 ... Full moon Sept. 3 (Fri.) ... Average length of days for the week, 13 hours, 7 minutes ... Oysters in season now ... First pro football game played Aug. 31, 1895 ... All that is necessary for the triumph of evil is for good men to do nothing.

Ask the Old Farmer: In an old diary I learned that I had a great uncle who made extra money making strap-tubs. Do you know what they are? T.V., Boston.

Half a barrel, with rope "beckets" — or handles — one on each side to lift it by. Fishermen made them.

Home Hints: If you are painting anything high with a brush, slip a paper plate onto the handle to catch drips

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

New England: Week begins with warm temperatures, showers, heavy south; turning cool, with rain south, midweek; sunny weekend.

Greater New York-New Jersey: Cloudy skies, warm temperatures to start; midweek is cloudy and cool, rainy; sunny, pleasant weekend.

Middle Atlantic Coastal: To begin week, turning cooler, thundershowers; then cloudy and cool, with showers; weekend is warm, cloudy.

By Sheila Miller, Editor

Is there a puma in your parlor?

Stray cats have never been unexpected guests on the farm, and their dropping in without warning has been accepted by farmers from the time the first mouse was caught stealing grain. Town people have always journeyed out to the country with their unwanted felines where their population explosion of cats could live "happily ever after" if they stayed out from under tractor tires or farmers' feet.

But there may be some deeper "meows" coming from the milk-begging prowlers stalking Pennsylvania farmers' granaries in the near future. These overgrown "kitties," though, would more than likely scoff at the milk pan you offer and walk off with the whole cow.

What are the possibilities of your stumbling out to do the milking one morning to face a nervous herd of cows and a heavy-weight "kitty" licking over-sized paws at the parlor door? Most farmers only think of "lions and tigers and bears — oh my" when they see reruns of Dorothy and friends scampering down the yellow-brick road on their way to Oz.

But some people fear the day may be coming when these wild creatures may be taking up residence in Pennsylvania's more populated areas.

Imagine the surprise of farmers who are picking corn by the light of the harvest moon, and suddenly the tractor headlights reflect burning, yellow eyes. Even those farmers who only vaguely remember English literature courses would suddenly recall William Blake's eerie poem "Tiger, tiger." But instead of those eyes "burning bright in the forests of the night," the poem would suddenly be modified to corn fields of Pennsylvania.

Not only would Pennsylvania farmers be serenaded by singing frogs on a warm summer's night, they would hear the spine-tingling baying of wolves as they offer up nocturnal canine concerts.

According to some folks, these scenarios aren't as far-fetched as they might seem. And they blame future possibilities of Penns Woods being inhabited by wild denizons of the dark to recent changes in the Pennsylvania Game Laws.

Earlier this month we reported amendments adopted July 1 which will further restrict the exhibition, possession and dealing in wildlife through tougher safety regulations for zoos and wildlife menageries and additional permit requirements.

A new permit has been established for persons who sell or keep bears, wolves, coyotes, lions, tigers, leopards, jaguars, cheetahs, and cougars, or any cross-breed having similar characteristics. These folks now will have to shell out money in order to keep their unusual pets.

For those people who keep wolves, bears, or any of the great cats as pets, a fee of $200 per animal per year will be charged by the Game Commission. Previously, there was no fee.

And, anyone who sells more than one of these wild animals per year will have to obtain a special dealers permit costing $500 per year. Heretofore, no fee was charged.

The state also has established housing codes for any wild animals kept by private individuals as well as zoos. According to Jerry Wendt, assistant chief of the PGC's Division of Law Enforcement, these rules were established for the comfort of the animals and the safety of the general public.

"Before now we never had any control over how dangerous animals were confined," said Wendt. "If a person wanted to tie a lion out in his front yard with a rope, he could and we couldn't do anything with it."

But, according to one concerned individual, these new regulations will cause great economic hardship on people who already own animals of this type — remodeling holding facilities to comply with the new regulations and paying the necessary permit fees. He fears there may be an epidemic of turn-outs when people who can't afford to comply with the law release their "wild" wolfdogs or over-sized cats.

In the Aug. 14 issue of Lancaster Farming, Dick Anglestein reported on a sighting and eventual capture of a bobcat in rural Lancaster County. This was a highly unusual event since bobcats are considered an endangered specie in Pennsylvania and are seldom seen, except in the more isolated forestland of the northern tier regions.

What made this 12-pound bobcat even more unusual was the fact that it was sighted during the day, since these cats are generally nocturnal by nature. Representatives of the Game Commission agreed that it was far from the norm for this year-old feline to have ranged so far south of its natural habitat.

Was there a connection between the new Game Law which went into effect July 1 and the healthy, good-conditioned bobcat which was found streaking across the fields near Manheim just a few weeks later? Or was it simply a freak coincidence?

For those of us who jump at our own shadows, and shriek when face-licking Rover rounds the corner of the barn after one of his nocturnal jaunts, we certainly hope it's the latter.

PGC's Wendt offers his reasurance, saying these wild animals are far too valuable to just turn loose. Besides, the estimated 100 to 300 people who own these types of "pets" have a year to make up their minds about keeping them or selling them — the first-year permit is issued free of charge.

Nevertheless, you might want to lift the lid of your bulk tank a little slower next time you're ready to dip out a pitcher of milk. There might be a tiger in your tank.

Part-timers sold short

Letters To The Editor

I am glad to see someone remembers us part-time farmers ("Help a young farmer, junk your baler," Off the Sounding Board, Aug. 14 issue). When I read the articles on how grand some big farm are, it almost makes me ashamed of my little 47 acres.

I grew up on a dairy farm, but one day Pap just sold out. This fellow came flying down the lane in a Cadillac with a pocketful of cigars and half-full bottle of whiskey, and soon the "home farm" was just a memory.

You are so right when you mentioned how hard we part-

WHEN PERSONALITIES CLASH
August 29, 1982

Background Scripture: Acts 15:22, 30-41; 17:1-15; 2 Corinthians 7:2-16; 8:1-6, 16-24; Titus

Devotional Reading: Titus 2:1-10.

One of life's greatest lessons for me—and, I'm sure, many others—have been the realization that not everyone has to like me. Admittedly, it seems life would be more enjoyable if they did, but it is not a prerequisite for living a happy life under God. In fact, as Jesus demonstrated so clearly, if one is faithful to God, the possibilities of being despised by some people are greatly enhanced.

A Sharp Contention

I have discovered a corrallary to that principle: it is not absolutely necessary that all of us have to be able to work side by side. Don't get me wrong, Christian love demands that we go to great lengths to love one another and Paul repeatedly admonishes us to give visible expression to our oneness in Christ. Many people don't really work at those objectives nearly enough.

At the same time, it must be admitted that there are some people with whom we work beter than others and there are even some with whom we are particularly ineffective. Sometimes we have to acknowledge that reality and make the most of it.

Recently, I was at a religious meeting where another gentleman felt compelled to win me over to his particular doctrinal concepts. After trying for the better part of an hour, he finally said, "I guess we have to agree to disagree."

And for the first time since I had met him earlier in the day, I agreed with him.

So, we parted that day, obviously far apart in our understanding of what it means to be a Christian. Yet, because we acknowledged that distance between us, I believe we also were able to regard each other in a spirit of Christian love. We accepted our differences and knew that those differences would probably keep us from working side by side in a compatible manner. At the same time we both knew that bridging our differences is the love of Jesus Christ.

They Separated From Each Other

This is, I believe, essentially, what happened between Paul and Barnabas in Acts 15. The writer of Acts tells us that "there arose a sharp contention" between these two apostles over the inclusion of John Mark in their next missionary journey. Barnabas wanted to take the young Christian, but Paul, remembering that John Mark had failed them previously, was adamant in his refusal. So, "they separated from each other." We might wish that they had been able to compromise or for Paul to have have given John Mark yet another chance, but that was not what happened. "Barnabas took Mark with him and sailed away to Cyprus, but Paul chose Silas and departed" in another direction.

According to the New Testament, that was the end of the dispute Paul and Barnabas did not become bitter enemies, nor was more time spent on their disagreement. Instead, agreeing they could not agree, they went their separate ways, each of them continuing to do a mighty work for God. Apparently, their unity in Christ was not impaired by the differences. Reconciliation does no always mean continued collaboration.

To Be Alert For Silo Gas

We are fash approaching silo filling time, in fact many farmers are getting their equipment ready now. This is one of the best methods of harvesting the corn crop to get maximum feed nutrients. With our large tower silos, the danger of poisonous gases becomes more important. We urge our farmers to discuss this hazard with their employees and all family members. These gases can develop from one day to 14 days after the silo is filled. Most of these gases have a chlorine-laundry bleach odor and irritate the eyes and respiratory system. Some are yellow and some are colorless. Don't take any chances — warn all your people of this danger.

To Fertilize Alfafa

The fall of the year, after the removal of the last cutting, is a good time to topdress existing alfalfa stands. The application of a phosphorus-potash fertilizer (according to soil test) in the fall will strengthen the alfalfa roots and result in higher yields next summer. Nitrogen should not be needed on established alfalfa stands. Some growers will topdress with fertilizer in the fall and again after the removal of the first cutting in the spring.

This should result in maximum yields with a healthy stand. When alfalfa plants are well fed and teated for insect injury, they should be able to stand weather adversities. Alfalfa plants are heavy feeders on both phosphorus and potash. Unless these elements are replaced each year, the plants and yield will suffer.

To Enjoy It While It Lasts

Considering the general state of the economy and the sad state of the grain business, the hog business has been excellent in recent months. Much of the pro has resulted from the tremendous imbalance between grain prices and hog prices.

Grain markets continue in turmoil and the price of corn in Chicago has dropped below $2.40. This puts the country price at near $2.00 in many major production areas. The imbalance between corn and hog prices is not likely to be corrected by increased grain prices. The carryover of all grains is at near record levels. Despite the rumors about too much rain, too cool, too hot it appears that the corn crop in 1982 will be a near record one. This means that corn prices are going to stay fairly low.

Low grain prices and high hog prices have encouraged fairly heavy slaughter but it must also be encouraging the holding of more breeding stock. The prospects reduced slaughter will bring good returns for hog producers through the rest of 1982. In fact, pork output may stay below 1982 levels until the second quarter of 1983. By then

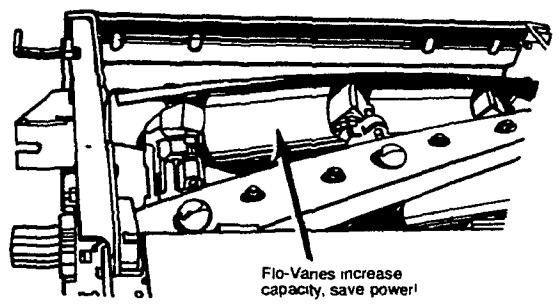
HESSTON The PRIME LINE

Hesston's 6-knife cylinder with exclusive Flo-Vanes gives you more forage on less fuel!



Flo-Vanes increase capacity, save power!

7100 Series Pull-Type Forage Harvesters

All three Hesston models feature a precision 6-knife cutting cylinder that gives smooth, uniform cutting. Exclusive Hesston Flo-Vanes, standard on the two larger models, increase capacity even more.

- 6-knife cylinder slices with "scissor-action" for clean, smooth cutting...and more output from every drop of fuel!
- Exclusive Flo-Vanes (2 per knife) catch crop as it's cut and centrifugally throw it back to the blower. Field tests show that Flo-Vanes increase capacity by up to 20%*!

OUR READERS WRITE,

timers work. Many a time I've wondered how come I'm doing all this manual labor when my full-time farmer neighbor is riding around in his air-conditioned, heated, AM-FM radio'ed, year-old tractor. It even has ash trays; and I reckon when they get full, he'll trade. Not that I haven't looked for a full-time farm opportunity (dairy, pigs, poultry, etc.) but the numbers just don't seem to add up.

Recently I looked at a $250,000 poultry operation with an old home where the ceiling plaster had fallen and is falling. Roughly I figured after mortgage payments I would be working seven days a week for about $20 a day. How can a fellow ever afford an air-conditioned tractor on that kind of income?

In closing, I would like to point out that so many times articles on over-night success, big-time farmers end with the statement like "when Fred was 21, he took over the family farm." Well, when I was 21, I was saving for a down payment on any kind of little farm I could afford. And when I was 21 I could not understand why most professional football players retired before they were 36.

Now I'm 36. The farm is paid for, and I understand why most professional football players retire before they are 36.

The research question

Jerry Webb's column (Ag research gets bad press, Farm Talk, Aug. 14 issue) misses the point on research. Two questions should be asked in terms of research, school lunch programs, or whatever government program is being proposed: "At whose expense?" and "Who decides?"

We should all remember that the money for these research projects come from the tax payers. The cotton farmer doesn't want the same research projects as the beef farmer. The beef farmer doesn't want identical research projects as the dairy farmer or the mushroom farmer. City people would like research projects quite different than those projects set up for agriculture. Yet the city residents must pay for agricultural research.

Don't say that the city residents gain by agricultural research. Who decides whether the tax payer's money (labor) is spent for safer cars, subsidizing transportation (with the interstate highway system or waterways subsidy) or for agricultural research.

If government must subsidize research, let it follow the idea suggested by James F. Hudson in a Nov. 1980 article in INC. magazine.

Hudson said, "...Instead of bestowing grants for study and research, the government should post prizes. Prizes for finishing, not for thinking about finishing. Prizes for getting something to work — for building it, testing it, breaking it, swearing at it, and fixing it till it runs.

"...Prizes for successful technology would go straight into the pockets of the inventors and investors, appealing shamelessly to their prurient desire to get rich. Government would withdraw most of its funding for R&D (Research & Development). If the prize for actual completion of a project were fat enough, industry would put up the R&D money. And it would be a lot more selective about selecting the ideas that are most likely to work (that is, the ideas that are worthwhile) because if the idea didn't work, industry would take the loss.

"...How different government R&D is from commercial research. In commercial work there is a single test of performance — does the result sell? If it does, the R&D effort wins its prize: the profits. In government research, the only test of performance is the ability to get grants.

"Once you're funded to study, you get the same amount of money whether you solve the problem or not. You have to meet rigid program requirements, surrendering the freewheeling laboratory latitude to test things on instinct. But above all, you fear a breakthrough more than a failure. If you make a breakthrough, there's no need for further study, so your grants stop."

There are only three legitimate functions of a limited government, such as we started out with in 1776: a police force to protect our individual property; national defense; and a system of justice. R&D (with the possible exception of national defense) cannot be counted among the three legitimate functions of government.

The tax payers must take the lead in educating the bureaucrats, the politicians, the communications media, that it is fruits of their labor that are paying for these boondoggling projects. The tax payers must stand up, fight back, and let the bureaucrats and the politicians know that enough is enough. The taspayers are paying the bills — they should make the choices.

As Soil Conservation Service's Boyd Custer completes his 600,000-plus acres of soil mapping in Lancaster County at the Amos Funk Farm, Millersville, other suit-and-tied conservationists look on. With Custer, from left, are: Lancaster Conservation District Chairman Aaron Stauffer; Richard Vannoy, Bureau of Soil and Water Conservation; George Martin, SCS ass't state soil scientist; Warren Archibald, SCS district conservationist; Lancaster Commissioner Jim Huber; Ag Secretary Penrose Hallowell; Lancaster County Agent Jay Irwin; and District Director Amos Funk.

soil scientists. In this most recent survey, SCS soil scientist Boyd Custer headed the auger-toting crews.

Officially "mapping" the last acre of soil at the Funk farm in Millersville as Conestoga silt loam, Custer thanked the farmers and landowners of Lancaster County for their permission and understanding in allowing the soil technicians onto their land for this important project. His audience for the ceremonial mapping included several state legislators, the Lancaster County commissioners, and various agency heads.

Custer remarked how astronomical the task of mapping more than 600,000 acres and 90 soil types seemed in 1976 when the First Acre ceremony was held at the Aaron Stauffer farm, Ephrata. At that time, a goal was set to complete the mapping in seven years. Finishing six months ahead of deadline, SCS personnel actually worked an equivalent of 20 man-years to keep this soil identification program ahead of schedule.

Lancaster County Commissioner Jim Huber, along with Pa. Secretary of Agriculture Penrose Hallowell, commended the efforts of all involved in the new soil survey. Hallowell noted its potential use as an important tool for preserving the county's agricultural land.

In analyzing the results of the soil survey, soil scientist Custer noted Lancaster County boasts 55,590 acres of Class 1 land — prime agricultural soils. Unfortunately, these soils are the subject of much controversy as urban sprawl and other competing landuses vie for their control.

Conservation District Chairman Aaron Stauffer commented that the county's prime agricultural land is "growing houses" instead of crops. "With houses, our best soils go from Class 1 to unclassified."

SCS State Administrator George Leo referred to the new soil survey as "the state of the art" and encouraged its use by farmers, landuse planners, housing developers, and local government officials. He noted the report will be published and available to the public in one year.

Assistant State Soil Scientist George Martin reported an accelerated effort by SCS during the past year to publish completed soil surveys. The nine reports published in 1982 bring the current list of soils reports in Pennsylvania to 40, covering 45 counties. Only two percent of the state's soils are unmapped, and by 1986 the entire state is projected to be completely mapped, he said.

Penn State soil scientist Robert Cunningham represented Dean Sam Smith at Wednesday's ceremonies. He reminisced about the 300 soil samples he extracted from more than 30 backhoe-hewn pits carved out in Lancaster County fields. These soils were later transported back to Penn State for detailed laboratory analysis. The resulting chemical and mineralogical information that currently is printed on paper may be available at the touch of a computer's button within the next five years, Cunningham announced.

USDA extends '81 soybean loans

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Producers with 1981-crop soybeans under loan now have the option to extend their loans for an extra six months, according to Everett Rank, administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Rank said USDA is allowing extended loans so farmers will have the option of holding their soybeans for possibly higher prices later in the year. Without this action, Rank said, farmers would be required to either sell their soybeans to repay their price support loans or would turn their crops over to USDA's Commodity Credit Corporation in lieu of repayment.

Most soybean loans are scheduled to mature during August, September and October.

Producers who extend their loans for the additional six months will be charged interest at the rate applicable to the loan. This interest rate reflects the cost to CCC of borrowing from the U.S. Treasury.

All producers with 1981-crop loans in an outstanding status are eligible to extend their loans, Rank said.

Producers who wish to extend loans should contact their county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office, Rank said.

Lancaster County, still Number One

LANCASTER — Lancaster County is still number one in the state when it comes to agriculture, being the leader in dairy, poultry, beef cattle, hogs, and field crops.

For the first time in its traceable history, Lancaster County topped the 110 bushel per acre barrier for corn production according to 1981 figures. County Extension Agent Jay Irwin reported Wednesday the average yield for the golden maize came in at 112 bushels to the acre — the highest yields recorded in the entire state.

According to Irwin, part of the reason for this outstanding corn production that tops the state average by 16 bushels per acre was the excellent growing conditions experienced last summer. And last year more farmers cashed in on corn by planting a total of 135,600 acres, two-thirds of the total field crop acreage in the county. Unfortunately, the cash value of the crop, $39,497,300, was far less than the $44,808,000 value of 1980's sparser crop. That year, due mostly to drought, Lancaster County's 132,000 acres of corn only yielded an average of 85.9 bushels.

One of the reasons farmers are planting more corn, despite the lower cash value, said Irwin, is because of another record gain in the county — dairy cow numbers. In 981, the number of dairy cows in Lancaster County climbed to a new high of 101,900 cows — up from the 94,000 level record in 1980. The additional corn acres are used to help feed these dairy animals, along with the county's other livestock. And despite the record yields and acres planted, the county remains a deficit area for corn — buying large quantities of the grain.

Of course, most of the corn that's fed to dairy cattle is in the form of corn silage. Here, too, Lancaster County farmers set a new standard for farmers around the state. Their 1981 figures for silage production per acre exceeded the state's 16.2 tons per acre average by almost five tons. The new "yardstick" for top silage production is 20.9 tons to the acre.

Because of their higher yields, Lancaster farmers were able to cut back their acres of corn harvested for silage to 66,200 from 1980's 68,700 acres.

With better management and better quality feed, the county's dairy cows pumped out their own records last year, bringing the average production level to 13,200 pounds per cow — up 700 pounds from the previous year and 800 pounds over the state average.

When asked why Lancaster's better-than-average dairy farmers would add more cows to their herds and push for greater production in the face of milk surpluses, Irwin commented, "The dairy farmer had to increase in order to keep his head above water." He cited figures which showed certain dairy farmers earning $22,000 less than two years ago due to increased interest costs, cutbacks in price support, and greater expenses.

"The dairy farmer was caught in a bind," Irwin said. "To stay in business, he had to be more efficient through closer culling, fine-tuned breeding, better feeding programs, and tighter management control. And he had to increase production by adding cows."

Even though the county's 1,850 dairy farms (down 25 from 1980) have suffered economic setbacks, along with the other members of the agricultural community, the dairy industry still represents almost a $200 million business, experiencing its greatest value increase last year when it jumped from $163,055,000 (1980) to $195,017,000.

Comparing Lancaster County to other counties in Pennsylvania, a wide margin exists between the top two dairying counties. Coming in second, with 44,000 cows is Bradford County, whose dollar values total $75,870,000. Franklin County comes in third, with 40,300 cows and a dairy industry value of $78 million. Following in fourth place is Chester County, with Berks claiming fifth.

Other agricultural industries which play major roles both in Lancaster County and the state are led by the county's poultry industry which has kept its number one ranking in Pennsylvania with a total value of $167,471,500. This figure includes broilers ($52,114,000), layers ($103,895,000), and others, including started pullets and turkeys ($11,462,500).

Lancaster farmers raise 37 percent of the state's broilers, reported Irwin, and house 48.3 percent of all the laying chickens in the state.

One area where the county realized a dramatic decrease in numbers last year was in the hog industry. In contrast to 1980's figure of 337,000 hogs in the county, Lancaster's 1,800 hog farmers only reported 256,000 head last year.

When asked if the pseudorabies virus might have had an effect on the hog numbers, Irwin shrugged off PRV as a factor since it only affected 70 farms at its peak. Instead he blamed lower market prices as the influencing factor. Despite the decrease in numbers, however, Lancaster County tops the list in hog production. It also remains on top in beef cattle production with 256,000 head (unchanged from 1980), but ranks third in sheep, with 7,500 head (up 1,500 head from 1980).

Irwin reported Lancaster farmers experienced a decrease in wheat yields last year due to scab, harvesting 41 bushels per acre compared to 42.9 bushels per acre in 1980. Barley, oats, and potatoes were harvested with greater yields in 1981 — 64 bushels per acre for barley, 69 bushels per acre for oats, and 290 hundredweight for potatoes.

One of the surprising statistics Irwin reported was the tobacco figures for 1981. He quoted a total value of $20,122,400 for last year's crop, but quickly qualified that figure by explaining it reflects the value of the crop whether it's sold or "hanging in the shed." Faced with the situation of unsold tobacco, Irwin said many county tobacco farmers reduced their acreage this year. But what has been planted, "looks like a good crop," he said.

Summing up the year, Irwin noted Lancaster farmers "took a close look at their balance sheets in 1981 and paid closer attention to their fertilizer and machinery costs." He pointed out more farmers considered the fertilizer value of their livestock manure as one cost-cutting measure. Using the manure and incorporating it safely into cropland fields, Irwin warned, is an area of concern that will need to be studied in the near future.

Farming in Lancaster County is big business, stressed Irwin. Last year the county surpassed the $700 million mark in value of agricultural products for the first time. And, only one year before, the $600 million milestone was passed.

Irwin concluded by noting some of the credit for agriculture's success in Lancaster County can be attributed to the support of allied industries. —SM

Record harvest

UNIVERSITY PARK — In the first crop estimate of grain production for the 1982 season, the USDA indicated that all crops will be near or break previous records.

The soybean crop at 2.29 billion bushels will be up 13 percent from last year and 1 percent above the previous record set in 1979. The wheat crop at 2.77 billion bushels is 1 percent short of last year's record.

With total feed grain production at least 1 percent above the previous record it would appear that grain prices will continue to stay low. Low grain prices will encourage livestock feeding and result in higher meat supplies in 1983.

COMPUTERIZED GRAIN MANAGEMENT

AeroDry Computerized Grain Management is a natural air grain drying system. It uses no propane gas or heat and needs no stirring devices. The AeroDry Computer keeps fans operating at constant peak efficiency. It senses drying factors inside and outside the bin and turns the fans on only when conditions are best for natural air drying. There is no wasted energy with the AeroDry System.

The AeroDry System can be fitted to your existing bin.

Thursday, Aug. 26
Report supplied by USDA

Through midweek slaughter steers 50 lower; heifers 50-75 lower, cows and bulls steady.

Downward pressure apparent in day-to-day trading, as many buying interests anticipated losses in carcass realizations and advanced slaughter rates, but moderate packer inventories engendered enough demand to hold declines to a minimum overall finish consistent with the improvement of the last several weeks, although 'short-fed' lighter weights still apparent in the week's outlay and discounted accordingly. Feeder buyers however did backstop prices somewhat on these kinds. Steers made up 44 pct. of the week's receipts; heifers 41 pct.; cows 7 pcts.; feeders 6 pct. Four day receipts 9841, week ago 8669, year ago 11,096.

STEERS: Earlier in the week four loads Choice, few Prime 2-4 1175-1250 lbs. 67-75-67.85. At the close load Choice, some Prime mostly 3 1255 lbs. 67.50. Choice 2-4 1050-1200 lbs. 65.00-66.00, few loads and packages 66.25-66.50. Mixed Good and Choice 2-3 1000-1150 lbs. 63.50-65.00. Few Good 62.00-63.50.

HEIFERS: Earlier in the week six loads Choice few Prime 975-1100 lbs. 64.25-64.75. At the close, load Choice, few Prime 2-4 980 lbs. 63.75. Choice 2-4 925-1050 lbs. 62.00-63.00; few lots 875-925 lbs. 61.50-62.00. Mixed Good and Choice 2-3 925-1025 lbs. 61.00-62.00. Few Good 59.00-61.00.

Average of LS-214 detailed quotations for Choice 900-1100 lb. steers 65.32; 1100-1300 lbs. 66.35. Average cost steers 65.35, average weight 1105 lbs., as compared 65.61 and 1116 lbs. a week ago. Average cost heifers 62.83, average weight 970 lbs. as compared 63.23 and 978 lbs. a week ago.

COWS: High Cutter, Utility and Commercial 1-3 40-50-42.50, few 43.00-44.00. Cutter 38.50-40.50. Canner and Low Cutter 37.00-38.50.

Guaranteed antlerless licenses for some landowners

HARRISBURG — Certain landowners will be able to apply for and receive anterless deer licenses during the month of September, the Pennsylvania Game Commission has announced.

Under recently-enacted legislation, persons who own at least 80 contiguous acres in any one county, and who agree to keep the land open to public hunting and trapping throughout the hunting license year, are eligible for a guaranteed anterless deer license for that particularly county.

The license will be available to both residents and nonresidents who own land in the state, according to Game Commission Division of Administration Chief Kenneth L. Hess. Leased land does not qualify.

"The guaranteed anterless license is available only to a person named on the deed," Hess said. "If there are more than four persons named on the deed, none will qualify for the anterless license."

Only one anterless license will be issued per deed, and in no case may a person apply for or receive more than one license, Hess said.

Applications for the guaranteed licenses, which are not free, must be filed with county treasurers during September. The licenses will be issued before the county's allocation of antlerless licenses is made available to the general hunting public in October.

For a landowner to receive the guaranteed license, he or she must present to the county treasurer the regular anterless deer license application that comes with a hunting license; the "Landowner Anterless Deer License Affidavit," available from district game protectors, Game Commission field division offices and county treasurers; proof of ownership of land which qualifies; and remittance of $3.35, payable to "County Treasurer."

The applicant must prove ownership of qualifying land — it is not the county treasurer's responsibility, according to Hess. The deed to the land or an exact certified copy is acceptable as proof.

In the case of corporate ownership or tenants in common, when there are four or fewer persons involved, records from the corporation's official minutes book which lists shareholders are also required, Hess said. Only one license will be issued in either case.

Properly completed applications may be sent through the mail to county treasurers, if they are sent in a personal envelope (the official yellow anterless deer license application envelope may not be used). The envelope must be marked "Landowner Anterless Deer License Application."

Questions concerning the guaranteed anterless license and appropriate forms can be directed to county treasurers or district game protectors, Hess concluded.

Robinson whips up top vegetable dish

ROCK SPRINGS — More than 200 entries from across the commonwealth were submitted in the Third Pennsylvania Vegetable Recipe Contest, held in conjunction with Ag Progress Days and sponsored by the Lehigh Valley Independent Grocer's Association.

Contest judges, Rudy Grob, Vegetable Growers' Association, Marlene Farrish, Director of Gimble's Cooking School of Fittsburgh and Kathy McGovern, Penn State Nutritionist fielded everything from asparagus to zucchini.

In this issue, we've included the winning recipe, Dale's Dish, submitted by Lori Robinson of Harrisburg. Have a look at Robinson's masterpiece plus those recipes submitted by the 10 finalists in this year's contest.

Bon apetit.

DALE'S DISH

8 oz. mushrooms (optional)
3 medium large tomatoes, peeled (or 16 oz. stewed tomatoes)
1 large zucchini
2 ribs of celery
1 small green pepper
1 medium red onion

Cut up all the above and cook in 3 quart saucepan for 1 1/2 hours. Cover and simmer, stirring from time to time. After the vegetables have started to cook, add the following seasonings:

2 tablespoons worchestershire sauce
1 tablespoon chili powder (or less, if desired)
1 teaspoon celery seed
1/8 teaspoon garlic salt
salt and pepper as desired

After the vegetables and seasonings have cooked for 1 1/2 hours, add one can 16-oz. kidney beans which have been drained and rinsed in cold water. Cook about 15 minutes longer, so kidneys can heat through.

Serve over rice for a complete protein-balanced meal. Can also be served as a stew with hot buttered rolls or placed in pita breads and sprinkled with grated parmesan cheese. Dale's Dish can also be sprinkled with grated parmesan when served over rice, if desired.

Second Place
WHOLE WHEAT VEGETABLE PIE

2 cups chopped zucchini
2 cups chopped celery
1 cup shredded carrot
1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
1 cup chopped green pepper
2 cloves garlic, minced
4 tablespoons cooking oil
4 fresh or 1 quart canned tomatoes pureed in blender
1 cup cooked cut green beans
1 cup cooked whole kernel corn
1 cup cooked cauliflower
2 tablespoons brown sugar
2 teaspoons dried oregano
2 teaspoons chili powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon dried basil
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon allspice
2 cups shredded cheddar cheese

In a skillet, cook zucchini, celery, carrot, mushrooms, green pepper and garlic, covered, in hot oil till tender. Add tomatoes, beans, cauliflower, corn, sugar and seasonings. Simmer, uncovered, 5 minutes. Keep warm while you roll out pie crust.

CRUST:

2 cups whole wheat flour
2 cups all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons salt
1 and 1/3 cups shortening
10 to 14 tablespoons cold water

Stir together flours and salt. Cut in shortening till pieces are the size of small peas. Gradually add water and form into dough. Divide dough into four parts. Roll out two parts and fit into two 9 inch pie plates. Spoon filling into pie shells. Sprinkle one cup of shredded cheese on top of each pie. Roll out top crusts. Adjust top crusts; seal edge and crimp. Cut vents in top pastry. You can bake both pies for a large group or freeze one to be used later. Bake in 350 oven 40-45 minutes. Let stand 10-15 minutes before serving. Each pie serves six. (I roll out the extra dough, spread with butter, sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar, roll up and slice in 1 inch pieces. Bake at 350 for 20 min.)

Boalsburg

Third Place
VEGETABLE PASTA

1 2-3 lb. spaghetti squash
1 16 oz. can stewed tomatoes
1 10 oz. pkg. frozen zucchini or one small fresh zucchini
½ lb. mushrooms sliced
2 medium onions
1 16 oz. bag shredded cheddar cheese
salt and pepper to taste
2 T. butter or oleo

Cut the squash in half and place face down in shallow baking pan. Put in water to bottom of squash and cover with foil. Bake about one hour or until meat of squash is tender. When tender, remove from oven and take out seeds. With a table fork, scrape out squash into spaghetti shreds and put into greased baking dish. In melted butter, fry zucchini and onion together. Right before removing add mushrooms and saute for a few minutes. Add all ingredients to squash, saving ½ of the cheese to be sprinkled on top. Return to oven and cook until cheese has been melted and all ingredients are hot and bubbly. (The skin of spaghetti squash is very tough and cooking time when baking can vary. 350 is the proper oven temperature.

SPINACH CASSEROLE
Serves 4

1 cup uncooked rice
10 ounces fresh spinach, washed and chopped
8 ounces fresh mushrooms, washed and sliced
3/4 pounds cheddar cheese, shredded
4 eggs
1 1/2 tablespoons chopped basil
1/4 teaspoon black pepper

Cook rice according to manufacturer's directions. While rice cooks, combine the remaining ingredients (with the exception of 1/4 cup cheese) in a large mixing bowl. When the rice is ready add it to the mixture also. Grease or oil a 4 quart casserole. Add the mixture and top with remaining cheese. Bake at 350° for 30 minutes.

State College

CASHEW CABBAGE AND BROCOLLI

1 head brocolli (florets)
1/2 head red cabbage chopped
1 medium onion chopped
8 ounce fresh mushrooms sliced
1 can bean sprouts
2 ounce cashew nuts

Saute onion in butter or margarine. Stir fry remaining ingredients approximately 5 mintues. Add bean sprouts last. Right before removing from heat sprinkle cashew nuts throughout. Serve over brown rice. Add soy sauce to taste.

Dyarman Holstein entry gets winning nod

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG — A three-year-old Quality Ultimate daughter captured Senior and Grand Champion honors on Tuesday for exhibitor Rebecca Dyarman, R1 Shippensburg, in the Holstein Division of the South Central 4-H District Dairy Show.

Dyar-Acres Lorri Quality, scored VG-85, won the nod from judge Obie Snider of Imler, with her "dairyness extremely deep body and quality udder. Bred by Randy Dyarman, she's from an Astronaut dam, and made a 2-year-old lactation record of over 14,000 pounds. Calving out for the second time, she underwent displaced abomasum surgery, and is still predicted to finish with more than 12,000 pounds milk in the Paul Dyarman herd.

Taking the Reserve Senior and Grand honors was John Stamy IV, R2 Mechanicsburg, with Manor-Grove Jake Heidi, an aged cow sired by Huntsdale Jake Black Eagle, and bred by Mr. and Mrs. John Stamy, III at their Manor-Grove farm.

Bridgette's Boyer's tall, sharp, and very dairy intermediate calf, topped all heifer contenders for the honors in the black and white Junior Division. The calf is by Sexation, and the 4-H'er from her first 4-H project animal. Bridgette is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Boyer, York.

Reserve Junior Champion was a sharp and dairy senior yearling by Great-View Music Maker, exhibited by Stacy Cornman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Cornman, R2 Newville. The heifer was bred by the Leroy Showaker family's Le-Ida farms at Newville.

In the county herd competition, Franklin was first, over Cumberland, York in third, Lebanon in fourth, Lancaster in fifth and Adams in sixth.

Colored breeds share champion spotlight

HARRISBURG — Some 250 animals circled the small arena at the Farm Show Building on Tuesday for the Southcentral 4-H District Dairy Round-up. Judges John Marchezak, Bentleyville, and Obie Snyder, Imler, handled the type placings in the side-by-side show rings while Jane Fepple, Oxford, and Cindy Waltemyer, Collegeville, scored fitting and showing competition.

Guernsey Senior and Grand ribbons went to Douglas Layman, Waynesboro, with his four-year-old Hooverville Winstone Janice, sired by Eber Lea Farms Winston. The Franklin County winning animal was bred by the 4-H'ers parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Layman. Layman also won the Reserve Junior championship with a senior yearling heifer.

Reseve Senior and Grand rosettes went to Todd Rutter, York, with a four year old sired by Fen Del Maverick Nelson. Brother Chad Rutter topped the Junior Division, taking the heifer championship with his senior calf. The youngsters are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Rutter, York.

Two families split the four top awards in the Jersey division.

Franklin County siblings Douglas and Tina Martin stood in the winner's circle together with their senior animals that won breed honors. Grand Champion was Doug's "Top-O-Hill Milestone Faithful," a three year old bred by Mildred Seeds of Downington. She also won the Franklin County Round-up, and has continued to milk 50-pounds daily through the show season.

Tina's Reserve Senior and Grand winner is a senior 2 year old bred by Ruperts Jerseys of Ohio. Doug and Tina are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Martin, Guilford Springs Road, Chambersburg.

William Gloss's step into the Senior and Grand championship with his Brown Swiss two year old was a repeat of the earlier Franklin County Round-up. The winning young cow is Swissvale Success Helen, sired by Blessing Favanne Success, and bred by Harlow Drown of Ohio. She's currently milking 68 pounds, with a 4.2 percent test. Gloss is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gloss, Alleman Road, Chambersburg.

Two families split the top Jersey honors. Senior and Grand Champion was the three year old of Douglas Martin, right, while sister Tina Martin captured the Reserve placing. In the Junior runoffs, Matt Arrowsmith topped brother Tom Arrowsmith, left, for the heifer championship.

Senior and Grand Champion Milking shorthorn spot went to Christine Young, left. Raymond Buffington was named Junior Champion and Reserve Grand winner.

exhibited by David Feidt, Elizabethville. Homebred at the Eugene Feidt farm she's sired by Lar-Le Stretch Titan.

Junior division top spot in the Brown Swiss show went to Mike Welsh of East Berlin with his junior yearling, also sired by Lar-Lee Stretch Titan. David Krone, Glen Rock, earned the Reserve junior championship with his Norvic Telstar-sired senior calf. Welsh is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Welsh, and Krone is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Krone.

Oakmore Samuel's Bess, a four-year-old Ayrshire, won her division for Scott Cooper of R2 Deltz. By Joyce's Samuel, she was bred by the Raymond Bloom Estate. Cooper who also won the York 4-H Ayrshire Round-up is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ramsay Cooper.

In the Ayrshire Reserve Senior and Grand place was Anita Brommer. R2 Conestoga with her aged cow by Oak Ridge Flashey Klondite, and bred by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hedrick, Parkton, Maryland.

Deborah Shetterly's senior yearling took the Ayrshire Junior championship, topping the Reserve winning senior calf exhibited by Sherry Keefer. Both heifers are sired by Sycamore Meade Hi Champ and bred by Earl Keefer and Donald Shetterly, Millersburg.

Nine-year-old 4-H member Christine Young won the Milking Shorthorn Senior and Grand honors with her senior two year old, Three Spring FJ Bell. Homebred and sired by Three Springs Feg Jewel, she also was champion at last year's show. Christine is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Young, Newville.

Junior champion, and Reserve Grand winner, was the junior yearling exhibited by Raymond Buffington, Spring Glen. The Shorthorn heifer won earlier at the Dauphin County 4-H Round-up, and topped her junior calf class at last year's state 4-H competition.

In the county herd competition, York County won both the Guernsey and Brown Swiss groups, while Franklin County took the Jersey breed, and the Ayrshire herd ribbon went to Lancaster County.

Five area dairy princesses assisted with the awards presentations at the 4-H show. Helping to pass out ribbons and congratulate winners were: Jennifer Behney, Adams County; Nancy Yorlets, Cumberland County; Nancy Eisenhart, York County; Tammy Tyson, Lebanon County; and LuAnn Brenneman, Lancaster.— J.B.

Layman, Milton Hershey top hay and silage show

ROCK SPRINGS — While the wet weather that plagued more than a few hay fields early this summer had farmers wondering about the quality of their crop, farmers like Douglas Layman of Waynesboro saw his hard work pay off.

The Franklin County farmer had a Grand Champion hay sample during the annual Pennsylvania Hay and Silage Show, held in conjunction with Ag Progress Days.

Layman's sample, a later cutting of alfalfa with less than 10 percent dry matter, tested in at: crude protein - 23.9 percent; acid detergent fiber - 27 percent; total digestible nutrients - 70.7 percent.

Reserve Grand champion honors went to Du Mar Farm of Harleysville, Montgomery County. The reserve Grand sample, as was the Grand Champion entry, was field cured plus mow finished with no hay preservative. Du Mar's alfalfa-grass mix ended with a test of: CP-20.7 percent; ADF-30.7 percent; TDN-67.3 percent.

In the hay crop silage division, Milton Hershey Schools of Dauphin County, once again, finished in the winner's circle with their low-moisture mostly legume sample. The winning entry tested at: dry matter - 48.4 percent; CP-23.1 percent; ADF-29.7 percent; TDN-68.7 percent; pH-5.2.

William Mearns, Jr. of Gettysburg collected Reserve Grand Champion honors with his direct-cut grass silage. Mearns' low moisture sample tested at: DM-66 percent; CP-20.1 percent; ADF-40.4 percent; TDN-60.5 percent; pH-4.6.

Lazarus boar tops Pa. performance sale

UNIVERSITY PARK — A pen of 6-month-old Yorkshire boars, sired by CLL8 Bob's Tank 7-1, collected the high bids during the Commonwealth's 5th Performance Tested Boar Sale, Wednesday at the Pennsylvania - Meat Animal Evaluation Center.

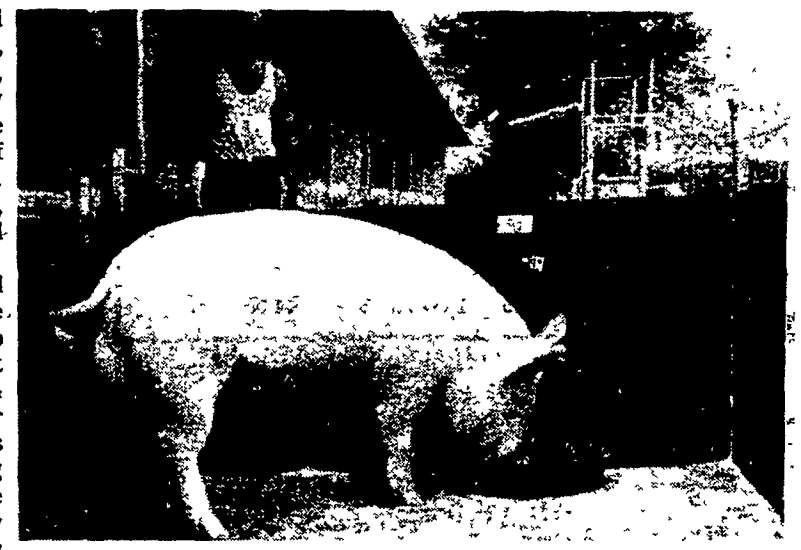
Bred by Calvin Lazarus and Sons of Busy Acres Farm, Whitehall, lot number one from the high-indexing pen brought $1,300 and was purchased by the New Jersey Department of Corrections. The pen arrived at the Penn State test site on April 20.

With an average daily gain of 2.43 pounds, the top Yorkshire finished the testing period at 251 pounds and reached the target weight of 230 pounds in 142 days. Ultra-sonic tests measured the boar's back fat at .72 inches, loin eye at 5.18 square inches and lean cut at 62.4 percent.

The boar's littermate, the second animal across the auction block, brought the next-high bid of $1,050, also from the New Jersey Department of Corrections. The boar had an average daily gain of 2.43 and finished at 248 pounds. Back fat measured in at .81 inches, loin eye at 4.98 square inches and lean cut at 61.1 percent.

Nineteen Pennsylvania pens and one Delaware pen comprised the sale's offerings. According to Bob Kimble, director of the Pa. Meat Animal Evaluation Center, 44 boars that sold averaged $527 per head. The figure was just $13 less than last year's record-breaking average. The animals were dispersed in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, West Virginia and New York.

A list of the breed averages follow: 24 Yorkshires — $583; 12 Durocs — $452; 3 Landrace — $533; 3 Spotted — $375; 1 Hampshire — $675; 1 Chester White — $350. — DT



This 6-month-old Yorkshire boar topped Wednesday's Pa. 5th Performance Tested Sale with a $1,300 price tag. Bred by Calvin Lazarus and Sons of Whitehall, the high-tester was purchased by the New Jersey Department of Corrections.

USDA recalls smoked ham in S.W. Pa.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has initiated a recall of some 36,000 pounds of "deli-style" smoked ham from five states folllowing the discovery it was contaminated by staphylococcus, a food poisoning organism.

None of the product was packaged for direct sale to the public.

The five states are: western Connecticut; eastern Maryland; southern New York; southwestern Pennsylvania and northern Virginia.

The hams — produced by Fred Weinkauff, Inc., Brooklyn, N.Y., and marketed under the "Old Dominion," "Knickerbocker," "Ridgewood" and "Red Bee" brand names — were shipped to delicatessens, supermarket deli counters, restaurants, caterers and similar outlets. Weinkauff sold the 13-pound "corrugated" — ripple-edged — cooked and smoked hams wholesale. No other product produced by Weinkauff is affected.

The staph organism was discovered after at least 100 people became ill in four separate incidents, all catered by the James Stratigos Catering Service, McKeesport, Pa. No other illnesses have been reported.

Donald L. Houston, administrator of USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service, said the people got sick after eating the smoked ham because of apparent improper preparation by Weinkauff combined with faulty handling by the caterer.

"It was this double fault situation that allowed a build-up of toxin sufficient to produce food poisoning," Houston said.

"Consumers should check with their retail outlets to find out whether smoked, ripple-edged ham bought recently was processed by Weinkeuff. If so, the consumers should return it to the retailer," Houston said. "Under no circumstances should consumers taste the ham — if it seems to be in satisfactory condition."

Staph organisms may be present on human skin and in nasal passages, and can be transmitted to food through handling, including improper cooking and storage. In humans, symptoms of the illness include nausea, abdominal cramps, vomiting and diarrhea.

Wood Holsteins preside at N. E. Pa. Championship

BY JANE BRESEE
Staff Correspondent

TROY — As if by predetermined signal, the sun came out after the morning rain to shine on the jubliant Gordon wood family of R3 Mansfield as they won not only the Premier Exhibitor and Breeder banners of the Northeast Championship Holstein Show, but also the rosette for the grand champion cow, Gor-Wood Challenging Special.

the seven-year-old champion, owned and bred by Gor-Wood D-Acres, is a "professional" in the show ring having taken first honors at the Whitneyville Fair in Tioga County the previous week. She was also Reserve Grand Champion at the 1981 Northeast Championship Show.

Wildmoor Elevation Michele, named Reserve Grand Champion of the ninth annual championship show held at Alparon Park, last Friday was bred by Clark Bowen and sons, and is owned by David and Edith Reese of Pine City, New York. She also scored first in the Senior Two Year Old Heifer class.

Judge Richard Keene of Gilbertsville, New York placed the 78 junior animals and 82 senior cows brought by 51 exhibitors. He gave especially high compliments to the superior quality of the eleven entries in the class, 6 Years Old and Over.

Assiting Show Chairman Leigh Sturdevant of Milan were: Jake Guffey, ringmaster; and Orville Yoder, announcer, both Extension Agents from Bradford County. Ribbons and rosettes were awarded by Valarie Moon,

Singing Brook Farms' entries sweep Central Championship Holstein Show

BY PATTY GROSS
Staff Correspondent

HUNTINGDON — This year's major attraction at the Huntingdon County Fair was the 1982 Central Regional Championship Holstein Show.

One hundred sixty outstanding Holsteins from Huntingdon, Bedford, Blair, Centre, Clearfield, Somerset, Cambria and Mifflin counties were exhibited at the fairgrounds.

After 4½ hours of tough competition, the show concluded with a Bedford County-bred black and white being named Grand Champion Female. Judge Paul King of Delta gave the winning nod to the 4-year-old Holstein, Singing Brook Astro Patty, owned by Obie Snider of Imler. The champion is sired by Faclamar Astronaut and out of Singing Brook ML Peter. The top Holstein from Singing Brook Farms also Captured honors for Senior Champion, Best Udder of Show, and Best Female — Bred and Owned by Exhibitor.

The champion was just one of a host of Singing Brook Farm Holsteins that helped the Snider family claim the banners of Premier Exhibitor and Premier Breeder.

The Bedford County breeder's entries also placed over the other competition and won Best Three Females and Produce of Dam. Those awards were in addition to the five first-place honors presented during the competition. A junior yearling heifer, exhibited by Obie Snider, started off his award-filled night by being picked as the junior champion.

Golden-Circle Fete Monica, owned by Paul and Sharon Fox of Somerset County, took the reserve junior champion. The senior heifer is sired by Straight Fine Elevation Fete out of Springlea Kenny Modesty.

The Mowry family of Roaring Spring received the nod to enter the winner's circle several times from Judge King. They captured first-place honors, Best Udder and Production Winner in many of the classes. Ken and Steve Mowry's aged cow, Bel-Aura Happy Elm Tree, stood at the top of her class and second to Singing Brook Farms' senior champion. The grand champion at the recent Morrisons Cove Dairy Show Happy claimed the reserve grand champion female rosette in the Central show. She is sired by Harborcrest Happy Crusader out of Bel-Aura Clarity Destry.

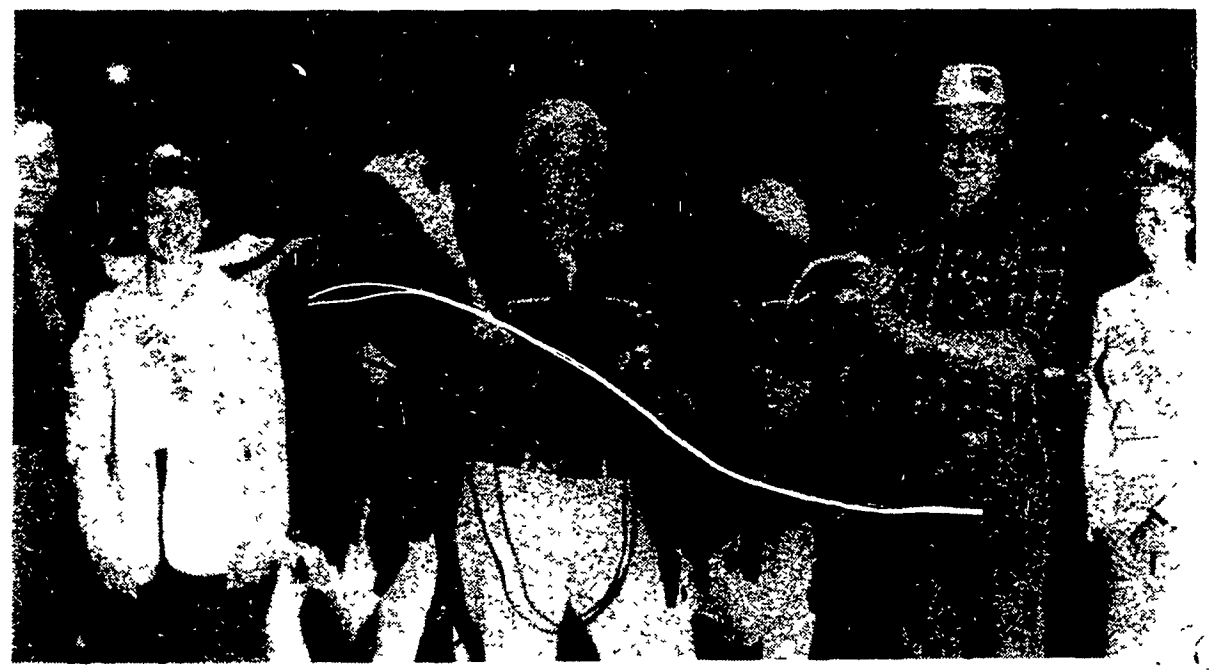
Sharon and Paul Fox of Somerset County exhibited the Reserve Junior Champion at the Central Region Championship Holstein Show in Huntingdon. Right, is Mike Weimer of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association.



Singing Brook Farms and Mowry Farms, both of Bedford County, were together several times in the winner's circle at the Central Pennsylvania Holstein Show in Huntingdon. Judge Paul King, left, went with Obie Snider's Singing Brook Astro Patty as the senior and Grand Champion and Steve Mowry's Bel-Aura Happy Elm Tree for Reserve Senior and Reserve Grand Champion. Joining the champion and reserve are Centre County Dairy Princess Sylvia Houtz and Huntingdon County Dairy Princess Emily Kyper.

Now Is the Time

hog numbers will be on the increase and the cycle will be turning. So enjoy it while it lasts - it probably will not be nearly as profitable next year at this time, predicts Chester D. Hughes, Extension Livestock Agent.

To Prepare for Local Fairs

We are rapidly approaching the time for local fairs. These time should be happy events - but once in a while they are not because planning was not done ahead of time. This is the time to take necessary precautions to help prevent the possibility of your taking diseases to the fair with your animals or bringing infections home to your farm.

Many fairs require health charts and specific test or vaccinations for animals and poultry. Be sure to read the health regulations carefully. And, it doesn't hurt to be more strict than what the regulations may require. Animals or poultry with any form of communicable ailment should be left at home. This may include such problems as ringworm, pink eye, warts, mange, hoof rot, respiratory problems, scours, etc.

When animals or poultry leave the fair and go home, it is always good to have a place where you can isolate them and observe them closely for a period of time before returning them to their herd mates. If in doubt, consult your veterinarian for advice.

BEAT THE SUMMER HEAT...

SPRINKLER COOLING SYSTEM

(Not Fogger)

FOR HOGS

THE PROBLEM

When the temperature goes up, one of the first ways your body reacts is by breaking out in perspiration. That's nature's way of cooling off.

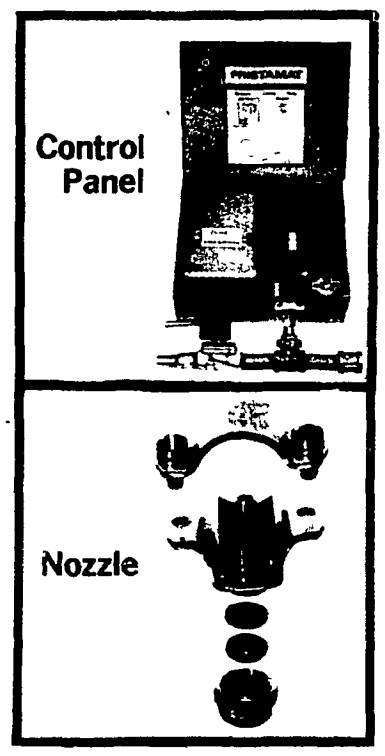
It's different with hogs. High temperatures cause them a great deal of stress because they can't sweat. When under this stress due to heat, hogs will lose their appetite, weight gains drop, there is poor feed conversion, conception rate is reduced and pens become a mess. All of this adds up to lost profits.

THE SOLUTION:

When the temperature is above 72° F even ventilation can't cure the stress that results. But a sprinkler cooling system can help your hogs where nature fell short, giving them a chance to cool off. It sprays them with coarse water droplets to reduce their body temperature. The idea is simple, but extremely effective.

THE SYSTEM:

The sprinkle cycle is turned on automatically whenever the barn temperature rises above a preset level 72° F. Throughout this "on" period the control functions to permit sprinkling to occur for a preset time period each hour. (2 minutes/hour is recommended for best results.) When the barn temperature drops below 72° F the cycle is automatically interrupted.



The nozzles are clamped to a plastic pipe strung over the gutter of slatted area at the rear of the pen. Each nozzel covers a 5-6 foot diameter area which usually means one nozzle per pen. The nozzle assures a coarse droplet spray pattern which is important for maximum cooling. A fine mist of fog is not desirable in geographical areas of generally high summer relative humidity.

THE PROOF:

	Control Hogs not sprayed	Hogs Sprayed 1 min per hr above 85°F	Hogs Sprayed 1 min per ½ hr above 70°F	Hogs Sprayed 1 min per hr above 70°F
Average daily gain per hog	1 37	1 62	1 62	1 72
Average daily feed consumption per hog	5 84	6 77	6 72	6 67
Lbs feed per lb grain per day	4 38	4 18	4 16	3 89
Lbs feed save/hog	0	22	22	49
Days earlier to market	0	1	11	15

Research done at Ridgetown College of Agricultural Technology in Ontario and at the University of California have shown these results:

* These figures are calculated on hogs from 100 lbs up to 200 lbs

FARMER endorses candidates

CAMP HILL — For the first time, the politial action committee of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association called FARMER, Farmers Allied for Responsive, More Effective Representation, has endorsed 12 state senators and 46 state representatives for re-election, according to Keith W. Eckel, PFA president.

"These incumbent legislators were endorsed on a bi-partisan basis," Eckel said. "Not a single penny of PFA membership dues was used for this political activity."

He stated that endorsed candidates were chosen on the basis of voting records on key agricultural issues; special legislative efforts such as bill sponsorship and attitude displayed toward agriculture and PFA policies; and committee or leadership status.

"Financial resources," the farm leader stated, "limited participation by the political action committee to races involving the General Assembly, agriculture committees, and leadership positions."

The program is administered by a committee of farmers including chairmen Christian Wolff, Millville; Frank Bertovich, Bentleyville; George Gregg, Grove City; William A. Moore, Myerstown; Gary Rickard, Honesdale; Frank Sankey, Clearfield; and John R. Stoner, Mercersburg.

Candidates endorsed by PFA's Political Action Committee by district, name and address are:

Soviets agree to LTA extension

DES MOINES, Iowa — Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block announced last Friday the Soviet Union has agreed to President Reagan's offer to extend the Long-Term Grains Sales Agreement for one year.

"This extension will allow American farmers to continue rebuilding this important market which was thrown away to our competitors during the partial embargo imposed on U.S. agricultural sales to the Soviet Union in January, 1980," Block said. "The willingness of the Soviet Union to accept this extension is proof that they believe the President's pledge that the U.S. will again be a reliable supplier."

Block said the acceptance was delivered in writing to the American Embassy in Moscow last week. It is the second extension to the original five-year agreement negotiated in 1975. It provides that the Soviet Union must purchase six million metric tons of grain, plus they can purchase up to eight million metric tons without consultation with the U.S. During the current year, U.S. has offered an additional 15 million metric tons to the Soviet Union.

"In keeping with the president's wishes, I will be contacting the Soviet Union immediately to determine a date for discussing additional grain sales during this second extension," Block said.

Elevation daughter tops Franklin Holstein show

BY BETH HEMMINGER
Staff Correspondent

Six-year-old Kingstead Miss Elevation bested a field of more than 180 top Holsteins at the Franklin County Fair last week to win the top award, Grand Champion of the show.

Miss Elevation is owned and shown by Merle Woodring of Ment Wood Farm, Chambersburg, and is the daughter of Kingstead Cal Jewel and sired by Round Oak Rag Apple Elevation. According to the Woodring, the grand champion is projected to produce over 27,000 pounds of milk this year.

John Morris, official judge for the show, also selected the champion, Miss Elevation, as the Best Udder overall.

Meadow-Vu Farm Rag Apple Alice claimed the Reserve Champion title for the Eckstine family of Mercersburg. Rag Apple Alice is sired by Paclamar Triune Jethro out of Meadow-Vu Rag Apple Alma. The reserve champion also claimed first-place honors in the 100,000 pound class and has a production record of 101,839 pounds milk.

Kingstead Miss Elevation was crowned Grand Champion of the Franklin County Holstein Show. Merle Woodring and son, Craig, stand with their Ment-Wood Farm champion Holstein.

Steven Eckstine claimed the 4-H Champion title of the show with Meadow-Vu Elevation Karen, who stood at the top of her Dry Cow Six and Over class, followed by El-Dor Astronaut Phoebe, owned and shown by J. Arlan Crider, left, collecting the 4-H Reserve Grand Champion award. The champion award was presented by Chris Reichard and Reserve Champion award given by the George Cashell family.

El-Dor Astronaut Phoebe, owned and shown by J. Arlan Crider, stood in the 4-H Reserve Grand Champion slot. This 4-year-old champion is sired by Paclamar Astronaut out of El-Dor Complete Pansy.

Beverly Meyers' senior calf entry, Windy-Knoll View Very Shanna, collected the Junior Champion award in the open and 4-H competition. Meyers' senior calf is sired by Kingway Elevation Very out of Parnell Governor Sharon and was bred by James and Nina Burdette. The Brudettes were the winners of the Reserve Junior Champion title with their junior heifer calf, Windy-Knoll-View Sexation Miss. The reserve junior champion is out of Windy-Knoll-View Millard Marcy sired by Ocean View Sexation.

Rhonda Fahrney won the 4-H Reserve Junior Champion honors with her entry Bell-Hill Chris Gwen, a senior yearling heifer. Fahrney's heifer is sired by Le-Del Elevation Chris.

Winning the coveted title of Premier Breeder was James and Nina Burdette of Mercersburg. James and Nina collected the Breeder award by claiming top placings in many classes, including Best 3 Females, Senior 2 Year Old, Junior Get-of-Sire, and Senior Yearling Heifer.

PENNSYLVANIA GARDEN SOUP

2 quarts, beef stock
2 teaspoon salt
2 inches fresh Oregano or 1/2 teaspoon dried
1/2 teaspoon celery seed
6 peppercorns
1 clove garlic, crushed
1 large onion, chopped
1/4 cup chopped parsley
4 carrots, scarped and sliced
1 large green pepper, scaladed, skinned and cut in strips
1 cup green beans, cut in pieces
1 cup yellow beans, cut in pieces
1 zucchini, cut in 1/2" slices
3 ears sweet corn, cut in 3" lengths (Make sure there is one piece of corn for each serving)
3 large firm tomatoes, skinned and quartered.

Simmer stock with salt, spices and garlic for 30 minutes. Add onion, parsley, carrots, pepper and beans; simmer 20 minutes. Add zucchini and corn; simmer 15 minutes add tomatoes; simmer 15 minutes. Makes 8 servings.

EGG PLANT ALA

Peel and cube one medium eggplant. Cook 10 minutes in boiling salt water. Drain and put in greased casserole.
Melt 3 tablespoons butter in pan
Saute 1 medium chopped onion
Saute 1 medium green pepper
Add 3 large tomatoes (chopped) or 2 cups of canned tomatoes
Add 1 teaspoons salt
Add 1 tablespoon brown sugar
Add 1 dash oregano or bay leaf

Thicken with 3 tablespoons flour. Cook 5 minutes - pour over eggplant. Cover with bread crumbs, dot with butter and cheese. Heat in oven about 15 minutes.

PENNSYLVANIA ZUCCHINI ZEPPELINS

1/8 t. garlic powder
2 T. butter
1 c. brown rice
2 & 1/2 c. chicken broth (clarified with fat removed)
1 t. seasoned salt (seasoning: onion, garlic, parsley, pepper)
4 medium zucchini
1 medium tomato, chopped
3 green onions, chopped to about halfway up the green stalk
15 sliced medium black olives
1 c. grated parmesan cheese
2/3 c. whole almonds

Melt butter with garlic in medium sized pot. Add rice and stir over medium heat about 3 minutes. Add chicken broth and season salt. Bring to a boil and simmer, covered, over low heat for 35 minutes. Meanwhile, cook zucchini whole in boiling salted water for 7 minutes. Cool briefly and cut lengthwise. Scoop out pulp while retaining a shell. Puree pulp briefly in a blender. Combine pureed zucchini pulp, tomato, onion, olives, cheese, almonds and rice. Put zucchini shells in greased 13"x9" baking dish. Mound rice mixture on the shells. Bake in preheated 375° oven for 5 minutes, the broil at the middle level of the oven for 4 minutes. Serves 4-5 generously as a main dish.

RED SWEET ONION TART
(4 to 6 servings)
Crust

2 cups soft bread crumbs
1/2 cup melted butter or margarine
1 cup grated Dutch Cheese (Holland, Edam, or Gouda)
Pinch salt

Press into an oiled 9" pie pan, reserving excess for the top.

Filling

Layer into crust so the amount will be unknown:
Thinly sliced red onions
Thinly sliced Mozella Cheese
Thinly sliced tomatoes
Another layer of thinly sliced red sweet onions
A sprinkling of basil leaves and garlic salt.
A layer of small mushroom caps
Remaining crust, mixed with 2 tablespoons of sunflower seeds.

Bake filled pie shell for 20 minutes at 350 degrees.

BROCOLLI CRISPY SPROUT MEDLEY

Fresh brocolli
2 slices white American Cheese slices
1 1/2 tablespoons Parmesan cheese
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1/2 teaspoon poppy seeds
1/8 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1/4 cup bean sprouts (the thicker stemmed sprouts)

Cut brocolli in small flowerets and upper stems in small pieces to equal 4 cups. Bring 1/2 cup salted water to boil, add cut-up brocolli, cover and reduce heat to low and cook brocolli for 10 to 12 minutes or till stem and pieces are tender. Drain.

Away from heat, add cheese, parmesan cheese, butter, poppy seeds, salt and pepper. Return to very low heat and stir constantly till cheese and butter is melted and hot. (about 2 or 3 minutes) Remove from heat and stir in the bean sprouts and serve. Makes 4 servings. Sprouts can be bought at grocery store in fresh produce section.

Soybean growers ask export expansion assistance

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Delegates to the American Soybean Association annual Soybean Expo in Minneapolis recently approved a resolution calling on the federal government to "assist soybean farmers in making a profit in the international market place."

The resolution calls on the government to aid soybean exports by providing aggressive funding for competitive export loans, for food aid programs to poor nations and for overseas market promotion programs for soybeans and soybean products. The resolution also reaffirms the ASA position on free trade for U.S. soybeans and soybean products calling for the removal of foreign barriers to U.S. exports.

Referring to "the continuing lack of federal attention to the soybean industry's requests for assistance", voting delegates circulated a petition to be signed and sent to the President and Congress.

Ag Progress enjoys record crowd month by joining forces and creating a seed company with one of the nation's biggest seed research program. The research group now has more than 35 breeding locations across the country, from Colorado to Pennsylvania, Minnestoa to Georgia. In addition, there will be a total of 371,000 yield-test plot results across the nation.

The resulting firm, DeKalb-Pfizer Genetics, explained district manager Jack Litzelman, is 70 percent DeKalb-owned and 30 percent Pfizer-owned.

Litzelman pointed out that while all dealers will be resigned (approximately 11,000), several members of the upper management corps were dropped due to the doubling of the sales force. He added that farmers will be able to buy any DeKalb or Pfizer product from either dealer.

Growth, however, can be a detriment, when used to define the growing problem of soil erosion. As countless acres of topsoil are stripped away each year, soil conservationists constantly seek better methods of control and public education.

The conservation tent, this year, featured a number of soil-saving plants designed to strengthen disturbed sites. Conservationists Graham Munkittrick and Mitchell Cattrell were on hand to shed some light on the uses of cool and warm season grasses, legumes, trees, shrubs, forbs and cereals.

In addition to plants such as ryegrass, red clover and lespedeza which can be used for erosion control and forage around the farm, the conservationists exhibited several varieties of wild flowers which are useful in disturbed urban sites.

Soil-saving plants like Black-eyed Susans, honeysuckle and pines, explained Cattrell, can be used for beautification, exploding the myth that conservation plants denote blandness.

A group of steers and sheep found turnips anything but bland in a research plot located along the conservation tour. Researched by G.A. Jung, the turnip or forage Brassica plot exhibited the benifits of grazing animals on the high yielding, high quality fast growing crops.

Brassicas, which also include rape varieties, reach their maximum yields between 90 to 100 days after planting and can produce as much as four tons of dry matter per acre.

The highly digestible forage crop (90 percent TDN), can be grazed from August to January. Brassicas increase the availability of certain minerals and are high in protein.

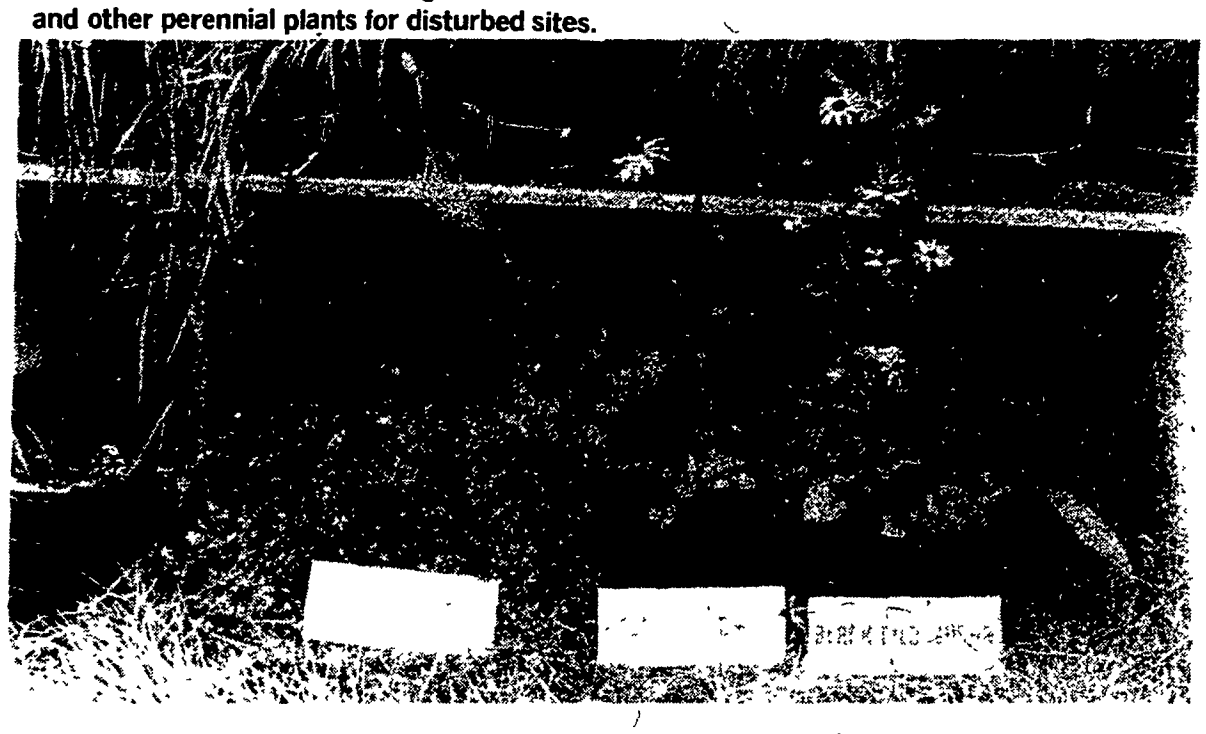
Jung recommended establishing the Brassicas in sod and listed the advantages of no-till preparation: fewer crop losses due to insects such a flea beetle; controls erosion on hillsides, where grasslands are usually located; allows grazing in all kinds of weather, sod offers firm footing; allows original sod species to reassert itself the following spring.

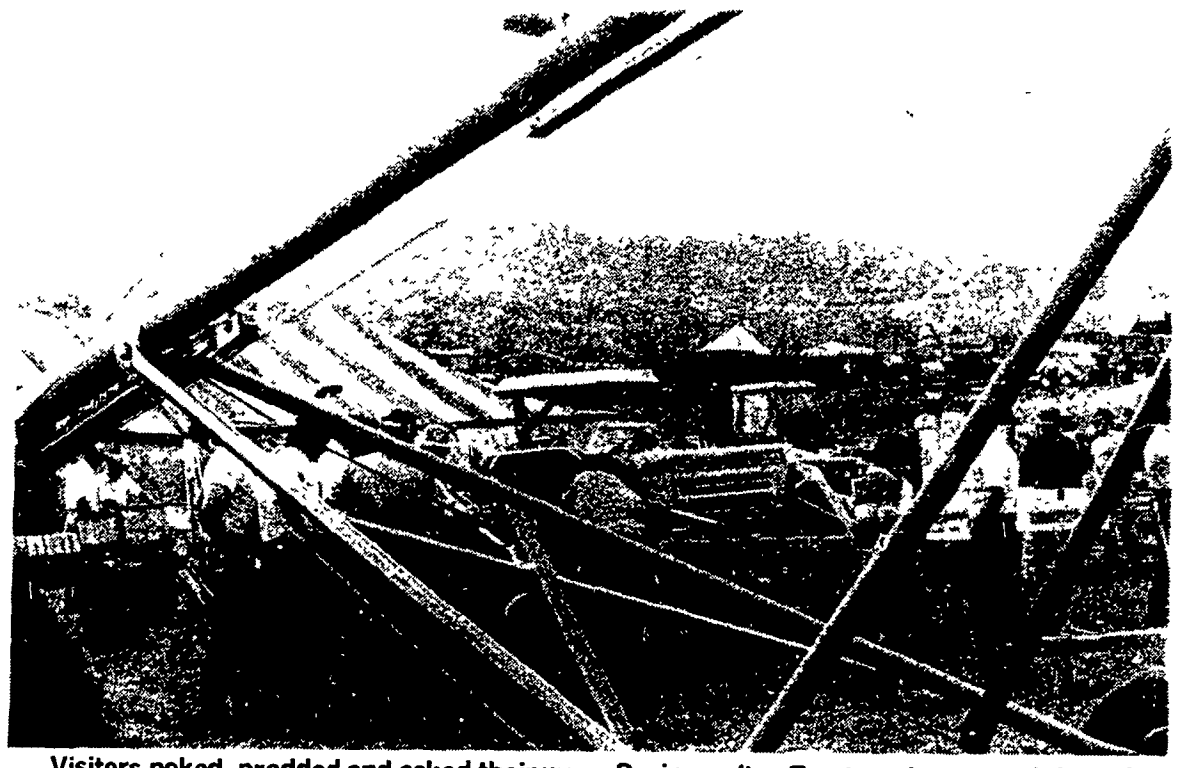
However, Jung explained that Brassica seeds to not germinate well in cold soil and advised mid-May planting.

The cattle and sheep were joined, this year, by their newest counterpart in University research — the African Blue duiker.

Soil conservationists Graham Munkittrick, left and Mitchell Cattrell, helped visitors examine the possibilities of using wild flowers and other perennial plants for disturbed sites.

Wild flowers, like the Black-eyed Susan, not only help control erosion but add beauty to the sight as well.





Visitors poked, prodded and asked their way through more than $20 million worth of machinery that stretched throughout the Rock Springs site. Tractor size ranged from lawn and garden to the giant dual-wheels.

Marvin Zimmerman, 6, enjoys a few minutes of rest while his father Marvin of Lancaster examines equipment.

Two pairs of the mini-antelope were displayed during AFD. Robert Cowan, animal nutrition professor who spearheaded the effort to obtain Penn State's 27 newest research animals, noted he began his quest for the duikers nearly five years ago.

After miles of red tape, USDA regulations and quarantine requirements, Cowan secured the duikers' Penn State arrival.

Regulations restrict wild animal importation from South Africa except for exhibition in an approved zoological park. New quarters for the duikers have been prepared at Penn State's deer pens, which have received federal approval for reclassification as a zoological park.

Adult duikers, typical ruminants with four stomachs, weigh about nine pounds and stand 10 to 12 inches high. Because of their small size, temperament and ability to breed in captivity, the antelopes appear to be ideal animals for forage evaluation.

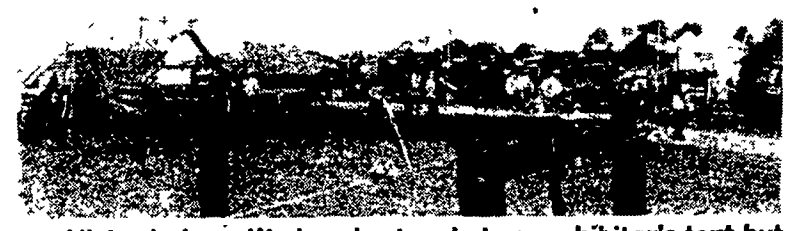
Ag Progress is proof



High winds on Wednesday toppled one exhibitor's tent but kept the Ag Progress flags flying straight and high all day.

One of agriculture's finest products, ice cream, helped cool off thousands of hot and thirsty visitors, like Dorene Weaver of Lawrence County.

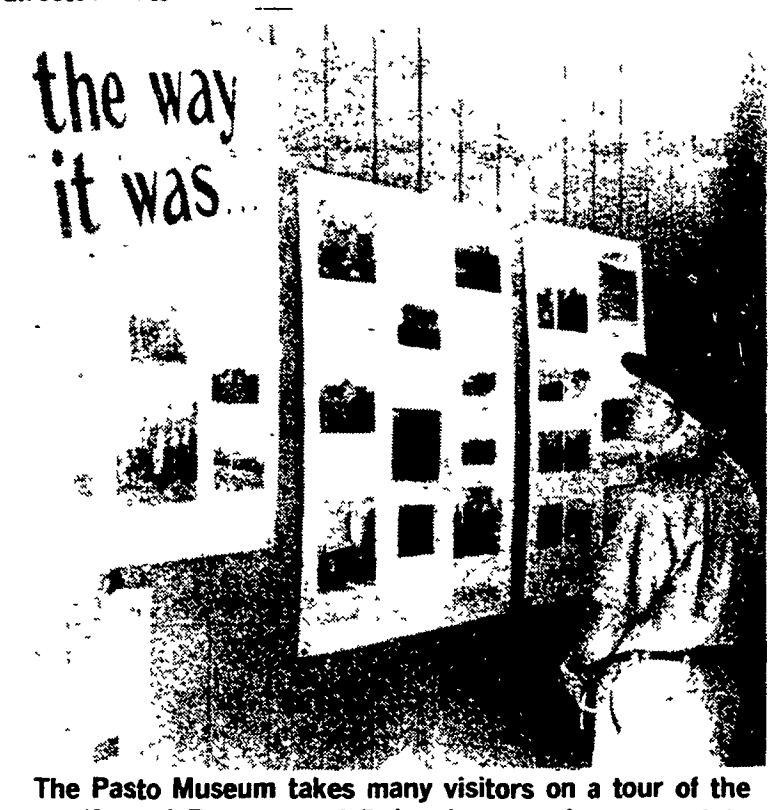
Agricultural growth due to research has been a long-standing tradition at Penn State. This year, Penn Staters, everywhere, celebrated world-wide recognition when John Almquist, Penn State professor of dairy physiology was awarded the prestigious Wolf Prize, often termed "the Nobel Prize in Agriculture." Almquist, a pioneer in artificial insemination research has been credited with saving dairy farmers millions of dollars. This year, Ag Progress featured a special salute to Almquist and the accomplishments of Penn State's Dairy Breeding Research Center.

And as long as there are ambitious scientists, innovative agribusinesses and a public that hungers for knowledge, then Ag Progress Days, like agriculture will continue to be "a Growing Business."

The Moseby twins, Stuart and Seth, find out just how another pair of twins live. The small African Blue duikers captivated nearly all that visited the dairy and livestock tent. Stuart and Seth visited Ag Progress, Wednesday, with their parents Tim and Sherlyn Moseby of McAllisterville.

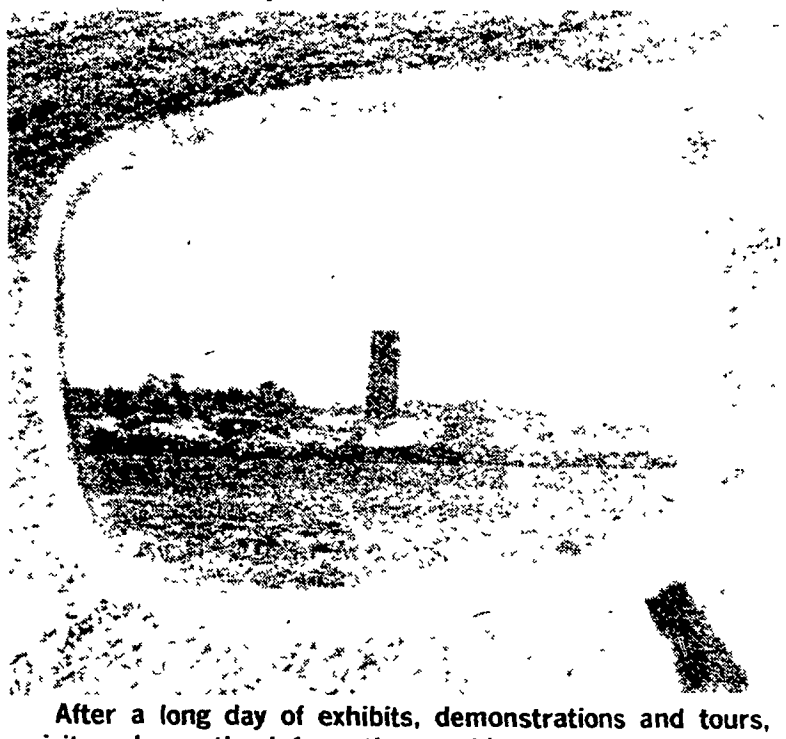
A need to know and compare finds visitors scrutinizing everything from combines to corn. Bob Eshleman of Manheim directs his attention toward one of many corn plots.

Field demonstrations, like this hay mowing, offered a look at nearly $4 million worth of equipment. Following this demonstration, hundreds of visitors took the opportunity to walk through the field and examine each model's cut.

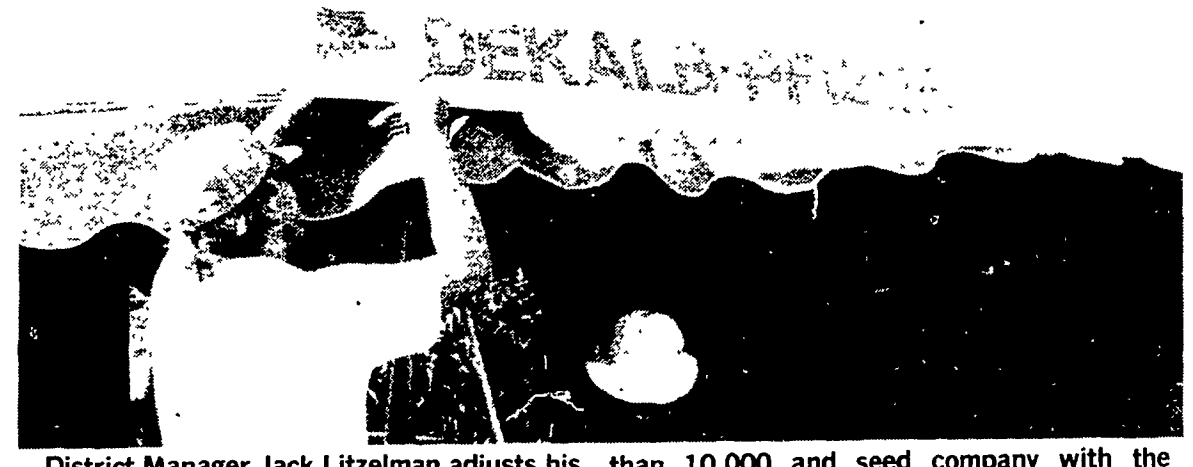


The Pasto Museum takes many visitors on a tour of the past. Konrad Ronngren of Dalmatia stops for moment to remember, "the way it was..."

One of the stops along the conservation tour allowed visitors to survey these cattle dining on brassicas, such as turnips and rape. These plants are part of forage crop research.



After a long day of exhibits, demonstrations and tours, visitors leave the informative world of agri-business and research until next year.



District Manager Jack Litzelman adjusts his company's new moniker, which came on the heels of the DeKalb-Pfizer merger in July. The combined effort creates a dealer force of more than 10,000 and seed company with the nation's largest seed research program, Litzelman explained.

Ag Progress exhibitor offers 'new idea' in free samples

ROCK SPRINGS — According to Ag Progress rules and regulations, commercial exhibitors cannot sell their wares to the visiting public.

Sales representatives can demonstrate, answer questions and advise, but an over-the-counter sale means disqualification, said APD director J.D. Harrington.

However there's nothing wrong in giving items away. Throughout the three-day event, visitors toted their freebies around in plastic bags, stuffing pamphlets, key chains and other assorted items in them.

Susan Yilek and her stepfather Roger Crippen, were among those who returned home with a free sample — one that would be slightly unwiedly in a plastic bag.

The Potter County pair received one-year free use of a round baler of their choice, compliments of AVCO-New Idea. Yilek and Crippen attended a bailing demonstration near their home in Ulysses earlier this summer, and as a result became eligible for free use of one of two new models of round balers. The demonstration was sponsored by Canyon Implements, Mansfield.

The competition was held throughout North America and Yileck was one of four people chosen from the United States and Canada.

AVCO-New Idea territory manager David Dunn explained the drawing was the result of promoting Avco New Idea's new round balers - the 484, which produces a bale weighing up to 900 pounds with a diameter and width of 4 feet by 5 feet, and the model 486, which produces a bale 6 feet by 5 feet, weighing up to 1,800 pounds. Yilek chose the later.

Yilek and Crippen were on hand, Wednesday, to get a look at their "free sample." The Potter Co. dairy farmers currently milk about 50 cows. Their 150 acres in hay produced approximately 3,000 square bales and more than 800 round bales last year. Crippen explained the family shared the use of a neighbor's round baler and are looking forward to the model 486, which should arrive at the Crippen farm in two weeks.

Pa. broiler placements up

HARRISBURG — Flacements of broiler chicks in the Commonwealth during the week ending Aug. 14 were 2,559,000, according to the Fennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

The placements were 23 percent above the corresponding week a year ago and 12 percent above the previous week. Average placements during the past nine weeks were four percent above a year ago.

Flacements in the 19 key poultry producing states were 82,154,000, one percent above the previous week and six percent above the same week a year earlier. Average placements in the key states during the past nine weeks were three percent above a year ago.

Broiler-fryers slaughtered in Fennsylvania under federal inspection during the week ending Aug. 4 totaled 1,919,000, with an average lightweight of 3.95 pounds.

E-town kicks off Lancaster fair season

ELIZABETHTOWN — The Elizabethtown Fair kicks off the Lancaster County fair season when it opens Thursday, September 2 and runs through Labor Day, September 6.

The fair is being held on East High Street near the East High Elementary School and offers agriculture and craft exhibits, rides, food, concerts and much more.

This year, an open class dairy cattle show for adults will be offered at 11 a.m. on opening day.

Another new feature includes a dairy goat show, beginning at 6 p.m. on September 2. The American Dairy Goat Association official show rules shall govern and open, 4-H and FFA exhibitors will compete in the same class. Classes will feature Alpine, LaMancha, Nubian, Saanen, Toggenburg and Recorded Grades.

A new market swine show, on September 6 at 9 a.m., will be limited to students, 18 and under, of the Manheim and Lower Dauphin school districts and the Elizabethtown Area which is determined by the area serviced by the Young Farmers Chapter. The classes offered for competition will be lightweight, mediumweight and heavyweight.

Livestock exhibitors, for the first time, can compete for the E-town Fair's "good housekeeping" award. Participants who maintain the most attractive and sanitary exhibits will be eligilble for special premiums in this area.

The Garden Tractor Pull, under the direction of Gilbert Martin, takes place Saturday, September 4 at 9 a.m. This contest is open to garden tractors with rubber tires, no four-wheel drive, dual tires, tire studs or chains permitted. The tractors also must have a standard factory engine for make and model entered, with no modification to engine, chassis or drive line. All stock tractors must be equipped with workable brakes, a hood and grill. Entrants must be at least 13 years old, and accompanied by a responsible adult.

The schedule of events is as follow: Wednesday, September 1, — 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. exhibits received; Thursday, September 2 — 11 a.m.-Dairy Cattle show; 6 p.m.-Goat show; 8 p.m.-Baked Good Auction; Friday, September 3 — 11 a.m.-Sheep show; 5 p.m. and 8 p.m.-ReCreations Concert; Saturday, September 4 — 9 a.m.-Garden Tractor Pull; 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.-Craft Fair; 2 p.m.-Pet Parade; 4 p.m.-Arm Wrestling Contest; 6 p.m.-Arts and Crafts Auction; 7:30 p.m.-Beef Cattle Show; Sunday, September 5 — 12:30 p.m.-Family Picnic; 1 p.m.-Special Performance; Monday, September 6 — 9 a.m.-Hog Show; 3 p.m.-Sale of champions; 6 p.m. and 8:30 p.m.-Younger Brothers Concerts.

Adams egg producers favor production controls

GETTYSBURG — Citing excess production that continues to depress prices coupled with ongoing expansion, a group of Adams County egg producers favors quotas to control production.

A wide ranging discussion of problems and the support of supply management resulted from a recent meeting attended by members of the Adams County Farmers Association poultry committee and producers from Adams and Cumberland Counties.

Dale King, of York Springs, brought up the need for production controls but stressed that any such program must be directed by the producers themselves. He proposed that the registration of producers and the enforcement of quotas would be done through ASCS offices.

In the course of discussion, the group pointed to the continued egg production expansion taking place in parts of southeastern Pennsylvania. The group specifically cited the second phase of construction underway at the German-financed operation at Heidlersburg. The first phase involved a half-million birds and the second phase totals an equal amount.

The group also cited the construction of some 80,000-bird houses in Lancaster County.

In reference to contracts, a "get tough" policy was mentioned in which producers get together to demand a given price or refuse to ship any eggs to processors.

Art Musselman, of Gettysburg, pointed to the possible need for the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture to conduct spot checks of sizes, yields and grades of producer eggs at processing plants. Graders and operators would be checked, along with truckers, who may be causing some of the yield problems.

Jack Sterner, of Biglerville, emphasized one of the major problems facing all of agriculture -- high interest rates.

John Hoffman, executive director of the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation, said that more emphasis should be placed on export markets and the federal government must work to solve some of the fair trade problems caused by the practices of other countries.

Hoffman defined Pennsylvania as the last frontier of the independent producer. He warned that the establishment of production quotas would lock them into existing flock sizes. He pointed to one bright note though, explaining that the worst independent producer in the state is doing better than producers in other areas.

The group also expressed the idea to meet with State Ag Sec. Penrose Hallowell or Ag Sec. John Block to outline their problems and concerns.

Lancaster 4-H hogs

Elm-Penryn Community Club, where she serves as corresponding secretary.

The Myer family farms about 600 acres, finishing out 1500 to 1700 hogs a year. The diversified operation also includes 85,000 layers, steer finishing and potatoes.

Even the purchase of the grand champion stayed in the R5 Manheim area, with John Wagner, of White Oak Mill, submitting the top bid of $3.17 a pound.

The figure was more than a dollar below last year's $4.25 for the grand champion. But the overall sale average increased to $76.37 per hundredweight, as compared to $61.30 last year.

Deanne topped another 14-year-old, Sharon Heisey, of R4 Elizabethtown, who took the reserve grand championship and continued the string of six years of grand championships by female exhibitors, which was started by Sharon in her first year of competition.

Sharon received $2.00 a pound for her reserve 220-pounder from Hatfield Packing.

Other top winners selected in the 37-exhibitor show by Judge Keith Bard, hog breeder from Lewistown and Penn State graduate who served on the Livestock Judging Team, include:

The champion trio was shown by Tim Pfautz, of R1 Stevens. The 650-pound trio sold for $1.00 a pound to Charles Diller, representing Lancaster Stcokyards.

The reserve trio was shown by Sheldon Heisey.

The heavyweight champion was also exhibited by Sharon Heisey.

Undocumented workers overburden farm labor systems

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Staff Correspondent

GETTYSBURG An unprecendented number of undocumented workers and Haitian refugees are over-burdening the demand for seasonal farm workers during what has become a poor fruit and vegetable crop year. Their number is also over-taxing existing agencies and available funds designed to aid the needs of displaced or unemployed farm laborers.

Presentations supporting this situation and a call for the U.S. Labor Department to take action to correct it were made at the annual public meeting of the Region III Farm Labor Coordinated Enforcement Committee Meeting held last week at the Sheraton Inn, Gettysburg.

A representative of the West Virginia Migrant Seasonal Farm Workers noted that from March 1 to August last year, there were 77 migrants enrolled as "heads-of-house". During the same period this year, that number has escalated to 172 enrolled. This was attributed to a flood of Haitians who, with false identification, had stayed in the area after the harvest. The representative also testified that local workers are being forced to compete with the Haitians for available jobs in the area, often unsuccessfully.

Lawrence McMillian, chairperson for the Advisory Board of the Pennsylvania Farm Workers Opportunity, cited a similar situation in this state. McMillian questioned why there were so many undocumented workers in the area and why governmental agencies appeared to be ignoring the situation. He noted that an emergency situation exists in shortages of housing and food for unemployed workers. McMillian called for the formation of a Governor's Interdepartmental Council through which farm workers and growers could meet and fill job contract. He also called for funding to aid unemployed farm workers through the Community Block Aid Grants Program.

During the departmental synopis period, Kenneth Stein, staff level coordinator from the Office of the Regional Solicitor, stated the office is now handling many more important activities under the Wagner-Kaiser Act. According to Stein, this act protects the hiring rights of U.S. farm workers by establishing a Federal-State Employment Service System which acts as a market clearing house for farm workers, particularly during the harvest season. Under this act, only when a sufficient supply of U.S. farm workers are unavailable can foreign workers be hired, Stein explained.

Stein made reference to a July 1, 1982 Supreme Court ruling. "The court summarized these acts by pointing out that the acts provide for two assurances. First, that U.S. workers including Puerto Ricans are given preference over foreign workers for jobs which become available within this country. And secondly, to the extent that foreign workers are brought in, the working conditions of domestic workers are not to be adversely affected nor are U.S. workers to be discriminated against in favor of foreign workers."

Jeannine Bender Davis, director of the Ag Employer Programs for Pennsylvania Farmers' Association noted that while migrant labor is vital to the harvest of Pennsylvania's fruit crop, growers are confused and aggravated by the maze of regulations and inspections conducted by the U.S. Labor Department. Davis stated, "Most growers agree that duplicate inspections and complicated or confusing regulations do little to protect the interest of the migrant worker and go a long way toward discouraging the use of government funded services, like Job Service. Ultimately, the regulations compel to farmer to look for ways to avoid using the migrant worker.

"Because the role of the Department of Labor has traditionally been that of an enforcement agent, not a public servant whose role it is to help the farmer through the tangle of regulations, rightly or wrongly, farmers look to the Department with mistrust as an example of a government agency which makes it difficult to comply with the law."

Several unidentified migrant workers made presentations to the Department requesting increased attention to work camp violations and discrepencies in wage standards. One worker cited outdoor toilet facilities with no plumbing and outdoor kitchens that were "breeding grounds for snakes." Another told the administrators that crew leaders had erected electric fences around the camps to prevent the workers from leaving.

Several workers complained that proper deductions for workmen's compensation had never been paid by their employers making it impossible for them to collect any unemployment benefits. One black male requested simply, "help to survive as people."

Frank Riveria, speaking on behalf of Farm Workers Opportunity, stated that undocumented workers often work 100 hours a week for $110. He noted they do so out of desperation to remain in this country and out of a lack of knowledge of the laws to protect them.

Regional officials and staff level coordinators from the Employment Standards Administration, the Employment and Training Administration, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, and the Office of the Regional Solicitor were on hand to present a synopsis of the functions of their offices and to obtain information on ways in which the Department of Labor can be more responsive to the needs of farm workers, growers and farm labor contractors.

Region III encompasses the states of Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, and West Virginia. While general presentations were made from these different states, discussion of individual cases was not permitted. An interpretor was in attendance and periodically translated the session's contents into Creole for those less proficient in English.

Alabama farmer leads soybean association

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — B.B. Spratling Jr., a soybean farmer from Roba, Alabama, has been elected president of the American Soybean Association. Spratling, elected during the ASA's Soybean Expo, leads the 48 soybean farmers who, as members of the ASA Board of Directors, represent soybean farmers in 25 state associations affiliated with ASA.

The American Soybean Association, a national commodity organization of soybean farmers, conducts programs to build soybean profits for farmers. ASA conducts activities to build overseas markets for soybeans; sponsors soybean research; provides educational information and supports legislative programs that are of vital concern to soybean producers.

Other farmers elected to lead ASA in 1982-83 are:

First vice president, Ralph Weems Jr., of West Point, Mississippi; secretary, F.H. (Ted) Bailey of New Bern, North Carolina; treasurer, Ellsworth Stewart of Macon, Missouri; and vice presidents, Roger Asendorf of St. James, Minnesota; George Fluegel of LeRoy, Illinois; Ed Schettler of Emmetsburg, Iowa; and Joe Kirksey of Mulberry, Arkansas. Retiring President Charles Hamon of Valley Falls, Kansas, serves as chairman of the ASA Board of Directors.

A life-long farmer, Spratling has been a member of the Alabama Soybean Association and ASA for 13 years. This year Spratling expects to harvest about 750 acres of soybeans on his soybean and cattle farm 40 miles east of Montgomery. He served as ASA vice president for membership and field services for two years and last year was vice president of the ASA government relations committee.

In the last two years Spratling has traveled extensively on export market promotion missions and to review market promotion work being carried out by the American Soybean Association in Mexico, Egypt, Turkey, Germany, Switzerland, Belgium and China

Brooks, Quick, Robinson show Harford dairy champs

HARFORD — Northeastern Pennsylvania bubbled with activity recently as nearly 200 dairy enthusiasts paraded their fancy cows during the Harford Fair Dairy Show in Susquehanna County.

Show judge Genie Francisco selected Donald Brooks' 3-year-old Holstein, Brooks-Twain Elevation as grand champion. Mathew Castrogiovanni showed his aged cow, Castlemonth Elevation Lily to a Reserve Grand title.

Todd Robinson also scored double wins in the Ayrshire division. Wilsonvale's Jenny Star, Robinson's 5-year-old, was named grand champion while his junior 2-year-old Alyneddy Mary Ann captured Reserve Champion honors. Carl Rosiak's Ros-Ayr Ombre Susanna collected the Junior Champion title. Rosiak's second champion was his junior heifer calf that took Reserve Junior Champion honors.

In the Jersey competition, Cara Quick had her hands full of champions. Quick's aged cow Cheryls Faithful Frey Ja took Grand Champion honors, while her aged dry cow, Angies Faithful angel was slotted for the Reserve Grand Champion spot. Susie Geronimo Dawn, Quick's senior yearling was named reserve junior champion. The Junior Champion title was awarded to PR Feggy Production Jam, the intermediate calf entry of Mark Supancik.

ROLL YOUR BALES ANY WAY YOU WANT 'EM

Total Density Control (TDC) lets you vary bale density to match moisture conditions

Gehl large round balers put you in total control of bale density and size. You can bale any hay crop, from legumes to grass hay. And most crop residues. Even in tough conditions. And you can actually control the diameter and weight of your bales.

Gehl's unique, patented Total Density Control concept makes it all possible.

When your hay crop is at the right moisture content, you'll roll 'em tight all the way. Just one big, heavy bale.

But when conditions are tougher, you adjust. Increase the core size. Change the wrap density. Or both.

Power-Feed Throat for fast positive bale starts

Our Power-Feed Throat with aggressive hay pickup gives you quick bale starts and allows you to travel at fast ground speeds. This positive feed flow is a real advantage in tough baling conditions.

The bottom line: increased bale quality...more bales per hour.

Gehl round balers are available in two sizes. They're ideal for tight, heavy bales. Or low density bales. And everything in between.

We put good ideas to work

McKean livestock sale prices upset champs

BRADFORD — A large crowd was on hand last week for the second McKean County 4-H Livestock Auction held at the dairy arena of the fairgrounds.

Two reserve champion animals sold for more money than the grand champions of their category. Laurie Stanton of Bradford, showed the reserve champion hog which sold for $2.60 per pound, the highest price paid per pound of any animal at the sale. Olson Drilling Co. of Kane was the purchaser

Jeff Brown of Port Allegany, showed the reserve champion steer which brought $1.40 per pound from Phil Nelson, representing First National Bank of Port Allegany. Jeff also had the 865-pound grand champion steer which sold to Burlesons Feed and Supply for $1.25 per pound.

Pierce Glass Co. paid 95 cents per pound for Dave Culver's 835-pound steer. Dave is a member of the Port 4-H Livestock Club. he raised two steers for the show and sale. The lighter steer sold to Jackie Culver for 90 cents per pound.

Jeff Ackley of Kane 4-H Livestock Club had the largest steer this year - a 980-pound Hereford. Hamlin Bank of Smethport was the purchaser at 75 cents per lb. Sue Ann Ackley, also of Kane, received 80 cents per pound for her Angus market heifer. It weighed 745-pounds and was purchased by Duffy Construction of Smethport.

Morgan Drilling Company of Mount Jewett purchased Doug Comstock's 745-pound steer for 80 cents per pound. Comstock is from Burtville.

Allyson Comes from the Smethport 4-H Handlers ahd the champion lamb this year. It weighed 110 pounds and brought $2.20 per pound. Owens Illinois of Bradford was the buyer. They in turn donated the lamb to the 4-H Clubs. It was resold for $1.10 per pound to Olson Drilling of Kane.

Owens Illinois also purchased the Reserve Champion from Chad Kleisath. The lamb weighed 105 pounds and brought $1.30 per pound.

Eight 4-H market hogs were sold at the sale. Pam Brown of Port Allegany showed the champion hog - a 225-pound Yorkshire. Wayne Crissman of Rew purchased it for a price per pound of $2.25.

Average prices paid for livestock excluding champions were: 4-H market steers, 84 cents per pound; market lambs, 90 cents per pound; and market hogs, 1.36 cents per pound.

The auction service was donated by Don and Chuck Kent, Maplehurst Livestock Auction Service, Hinsdale, N.Y. Arrangements for the sale were made by the 4-H Livestock Committee and 4-H leaders, in cooperation with the McKean County Extension Service. The Committee includes: James McKean, chairman; Larry Ackley, secretary; Joe Comes, treasurer; Dick Brown, Ron Kleisath, Jennifer Podowski, Randy Welch, Ray Kleisath, Joe Irons, Bonnie Wood, Dave Cox and Jack Erway.

"Why should I tell anyone how good I did with HARVESTORE® HIGH MOISTURE CORN?"

C. Wayne & Roberta Shontz
Vincetown, New Jersey

"If they can't figure that out, that's tough! We're in a competitive business!" exclaims Wayne.

Wayne was reluctant to tell how good Harvestore high moisture corn really is! He finally agreed to share this information.

"Our fat test went up two points when we started feeding Harvestore high moisture corn and it stayed higher than it had been the previous year. We've increased 748 lbs. of milk and 30 lbs. of fat and we're doing that with 36 first-calf heifers in the barn," says Wayne.

"Our wet corn cost $1.75 a bushel going into the Harvestore structure. I'm feeding 130 cows now for $2,500 a month less than I was spending to feed 102 cows last year -- and that's figuring the cost of corn and the Harvestore!" exclaims Wayne.

Historical Society display features by-gone days of farming

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

Back in the 1920's, Red Lion attorney Samuel Laucks became fascinated with the inventiveness, design and durability of the implements of everyday living created for the self-sufficient York County farmstead.

Laucks began amassing a collection of these artifacts, arranging them for display in a large old barn between Red Lion and Yoe, and opening the museum to visitors. In 1956, after his death, Laucks' collection, containing over three thousand items from horse-drawn machinery to butter molds, was donated to the Historical Society of York County. Until recently, the Laucks legacy has been on long-term loan to the historic village at Colonial Valley, near Spring Grove.

Since July, an attractive and informative display of several hundred of the farm and home implements has been offered for public viewing in the Society's summer gallery exhibit. "Working Hands." Nine summer interns, who will receive college credits for their participation, helped to sort, research and arrange the items into a look back to what farm life in York County was like a century ago.

"Everything was made for a special use or reason, and made to last, with the workmanship of fine cabinetry," says Pat Tomes, registrar for the Historical Society. "The neat thing is that they're still functional."

Laucks, she adds, collected only items that were in working order, or could be put in working order. His interest was unusual for the times, since few people saw any value in collecting anything to do with common farm and household work.

One large segment of the display depicts the growing and processing of flax, once grown in York Co. as commonly as wheat and corn. Flax was the raw material of linen clothing and household items, remaining popular until the mid-19th century, when cotton found greater favor.

Not only did farm wives sew much of the family's clothing, they helped with the labor of growing and processing the fiber grop.

Sown by hand into prepared ground in April, the long-stemmed grain reached a maximum height of three feet, coloring the fields in June with blue blooms.

In late July, after the crop had matured, it was pulled by hand. Pulling was preferred to using a sickle or knife, since cutting the stems not only shortened the fiber length, but discolored it as well.

After drying, some growers beat the flax with a special flail to remove seeds, leaves and small branches. Others preferred tearing off the seed bolls with an iron-toothed "rippling comb."

After the tiny, flat, oval-shaped seed was harvested, stems were allowed to rot in the "dew-rotting process." Spread in fields, the stalks deteriorated quickly from exposure to dew, rain and sunshine. Decomposing of the outer strawy cover took just a few weeks. Then the stems were again dried, either in the sun, or in special kilns developed for that particular purpose by flax croppers.

But the work was just beginning. Now the fibers had to be separated from the deterorating outer stem shell. Handfulls of the stems were laid on a "flax brake," a heavy crimping device operated by hand.

A flat, broad, hand-held "scutching knife" was then scraped across the broken stems held against a board or chair back to further clean the emerging filaments of flax. Later in the century, innovators devised a wheel with blades that scraped the stalks against a board as the implement turned.

Several rows of sharp, steel teeth set in a wooden block formed the "hackle," over which the filaments were then drawn to clean and comb. Filaments cleaned on a fine-toothed hackle went for clothing and tablecovering uses, while coarser cleanings from a larger hackle provided threads for twine and storage bags at the barns.

Special spinning wheels spun the cleaned and combed filaments into threads, which was then measured into skein lengths by wrapping on a "niddy noddy." Measured skeins went to local professional weavers for final looming into fabric bolts.

According to Pat Tomes, an improvement on the niddy noddy was a device dubbed the "weasel," a sort of automatic winder which made a popping sound as it wrapped each measurement of a certain length. Reportedly, the nursery ditty "Pop Goes the Weasel" sprang from the use of this mechanical helper.

Flax seed, historians say, was as good as cash for bartering hardware or sundry needs at the village stores that dotted rural York County. The seeds went to mills for pressing into linseed oil, still a favorite for use on furniture and in paint mixtures. Flax seed was also valued for its medical uses, especially against eye inflammations.

But Laucks' collection goes far beyond just flax production, encompassing implements used for the whole scope of farming crops.

A display of tillage pieces traces the development of early wooden ploughs to those of the late 1800's fashioned from cast iron. Soil was smoothed behind the plows with wooden harrows, and compacted with rope-drawn logs.

A boon to grain growers in the very early part of the 1800's was the cradle sythe, introduced to York County about 1807. Using one of these hand-held cutters, which caught and held the grain, then let it slide off onto a neat row, one farmer could mow as much as two and one half acres in a single day.

When pioneering in the West, and the devastating Civil War created manpower shortages, 19th-

This flax brake, owned and used by the Keller family of Hanover, is typical of the equipment used in the first step in preparing flax for linen fabric. York Historical Society registrar, Pat Tomes, demonstrates how the crimping device operated.

After the flax stems were cracked, the scutching wheel helped further separate the long fiber filaments from the outer straw and hard inner core.

Homestead Notes

Self-sufficient farmers needed spacious barns for feed storage and housing livestock, plus an area for tack and tools as reproduced in this gallery display. Here were found such diverse items as wagon wheels, harness, hames and yokes for working teams, miscellaneous leatherworking and farrier tools, and even a string of bells.

Flax filaments were drawn across the hackle, which straightened the combed the six fibers with the rows of sharp, steel teeth.

century farmsteads began to edge into the age of mechanics. A real innovation was the reaper, which enabled a farmer to zip across wheat and barley fields, cutting more in one hour than a cradle-sythe operator could mow in a day.

Several types of repairs originated within York County. Conrad Moul of Hanover, whose shop was located on the Commons, began manufacturing a "Hussey" reaper in 1853. Quickly following the trend, York inventors Ilgenfritz and White came along with the "Atkins" model, and the Flickinger Brothers took to building a reaper they dubbed the "Dorsey." Still another design came out of the Dover shop of Reuben Hoffheins.

Raking devices saw similar improvements. Early styles were simply team-drawn grids of wooden teeth, lacking even wheels, and lifted by hand. Still, primitive as they were by today's standards, raking was seven times faster than with hand rakes.

Steel-toothed rakes of large curved prongs, often with a seat atop the implement, became common about 1860. The well-known York farm equipment manufacturer, The A.B. Farquhar Company, advertised one in their catalog as "one of the most perfect rakes ever offered to the public." Farquhar's ads further promised that the rake would handle "any grass that grows," while "the horse does the work and the driver rides on easy street."

Threshing the grains from bundles of stalks was a back-breaking chore for 19th-century farmers, known as "flailing." Flails were fashioned from two shaped pieces of wood, the "staff" or hand-held part made of oak, and the "club," the piece beaten against the grain, was fashioned of hickory.

At least two men worked at a time, flailing the unbound sheaves of grain spread across a barn floor. Sheaves were beaten at least four times to dislodge the grains.

According to notes on the flailing display, the job was an acquired talent, and one was expected to suffer a few painful clunks on the head until the proper rhythm was set.

Final step in removing the debris from flailed grain was called "Winnowing." In the early part of the last century, winnowing had to wait for a windy day, when the grain would be tossed into the breeze. As the heavier grain fell back to the ground, the wind would carry away lighter chaff and stalks bits.

The winnowing machine, also called a fanning mill, mechanized that operation as it ran the grain through a series of screenings. Being able to clean grain on the desired day, rather than wait for a waft of air to help, was surely progress to the 19th century grain grower.

Scattered throughout the gallery exhibit area is a wealth of other artifacts that hint at the back-breaking labor all in a day's work a hundred years ago.

Dairying, for instance, was a basic part of the general farm, becoming popular in York about 1830. "Scrub" cattle were the most common, of unknown family backgrounds, while "grade" milk cows had a recognizable dash of purebred blood. Even well into the late 1800's a strain of Longhorn was predominant.

Mark of a quality dairy product was a high level of yellow butterfat, since most milk production went into the farmwife's butter churn. Butter was often sold to town neighbors as one form of income, and the Laucks collection includes butter working equipment and delicate-patterned wooden butter molds.

Nearly every farm had its group of hogs, which fattened off the skim and buttermilk left after churning. One hog to grow on the byproducts of every four milk cows was a standard ratio.

Also common to most farmsteads was the family flock of sheep, contributing both meat and wool to the self-sufficiency of the owner. Favorite breeds were Merinos, Saxonies and Southdowns.

Scattered bits of grain left from threshing and winnowing, plus whatever they could scratch up for their living kept the inevitable flock of chickens to supply Sunday dinners and eggs for baking.

Predators on these farmyard flocks reportedly became such a problem that in 1885 the General Assembly passed the "Scalp Law," which authorized payment of a 50-cent bount on each dead hawk, weasel, mink and fox.

"Working Hands" is a tribute to the hard work and ingenuity of our farm forerunners, as well as a reminder of the incredible progress made to agriculture of the 1980's.

The display will remain in the gallery, which is open to the public, through Oct. 24. The Historical Society of York is located at 250 East Market Street and includes a large museum depicting many facets of York County and Pennsylvania history.

One kitchen item has Pat Tomes stumped on identification. Its outer wooden box is about a foot square. Inside, a barrel-like drum turns by the crank to the outside. Angled along the drum are small wooden squares, which slide through a series of metal blades on the front side of the box as the crank is turned. One guess is that the item is a type of vegetable chopper.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

In a former article, I promised to tell you more about Redwood National Park in northern California. Driving through this land of tall trees is a memorable occasion, but walking on a mile long trail is even more unforgettable.

The coast redwood towers over all other trees in the world. A tree discovered along Redwood Creek is over 367 feet high. The average age of these trees is 600 years. As one walks through part of this 106,000-acre national park one feels insignificant.

We left the noise of the road behind us and enjoyed the stillness of the coast redwood forest. In Lady Bird Johnson Grove, we noticed that the trees were bare of limbs until near the top as deep shade caused them to be shed. These cone bearing trees, or "conifers," are capable of sprouting new trunks as well as reproducing by seed. Some large trees have been hollowed by fire but still maintain their position in the forest for centuries if they have enough bark to keep them alive.

Some damaged trees were "plant penthouses." At the very top, where limbs had been broken off, you could see huge evergreen huckleberry bushes growing and also licorice fern. Windstorms blow over top-heavy trees and when they fall the noise shatters the silence and the earth shakes. After a tree is injured the healing process often results in scars that are called "cat faces."

In this grove shafts of sunlight shift in light misty fogs. This moist blanket and the 85-inch annual rainfall is essential to the coast redwood forest. The forest floor is covered with ferns and mosses. We saw rhododendrons with their pink flowers which give them their name - "rose tree."

It was not easy to leave this cool, green garden for the busy world outside.

Let's try some new cakes!

Tired of the same ol' cake? You know, that regular white cake with the just-as-plain white icing.

Then look what Home on the Range has for you this week: delicious cakes made with ingredients such as sour cream, mayonnaise, and pineapples.

This week we also feature a Black Walnut Ring Cake. Now, if you think you've seen it before, you're right! Home on the Range featured it once before and we received such positive response, we decided to run it again for those of you who missed it.

So, if you suffer from those midnight snack attacks and want something that will really cure the "hungries," then tare out this page and save the recipes. You'll be glad you did.

MOCHA POUND CAKE

2/3 c. soft shortening
2 c. flour
1 1/4 c. sugar
1 T. instant coffee
1 t. salt
1/2 t. cream of tartar
1/4 t. baking soda
1/2 c. water
1 t. vanilla
2 eggs
2 one-oz. squares chocolate, melted

Stir shortening to soften. Sift together flour, sugar, instant coffee, salt cream of tartar and soda. Mix with the shortening, add water and vanilla. Beat two minutes. Add eggs and chocolate. Beat 1 minute. Pour into greased paper lined loaf pan. Bake at 325 degrees for 65 to 70 minutes. Cool in pan for 10 minutes. Remove cake from pan. Cool and frost.

Rose Hoover, Dallas

BROWNIE WALNUT RING CAKE

1/3 c. butter
1/4 c. packed brown sugar
3/4 c. coarsely chopped walnuts
1 pkg. fudge brownie mix

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Mix butter and brown sugar. Spread in bottom of ungreased 10-inch ovenproof ring mold; sprinkle with walnuts. Prepare cake-like brownies as directed on package. Spoon and spread dough over mixutre in mold. Bake 30 to 35 minutes. Run knife around edge of mold to loosen; immediately invert on heatproof serving plate. Remove mold. Serve warm with ice cream and garnish with maraschino cherries if desired.

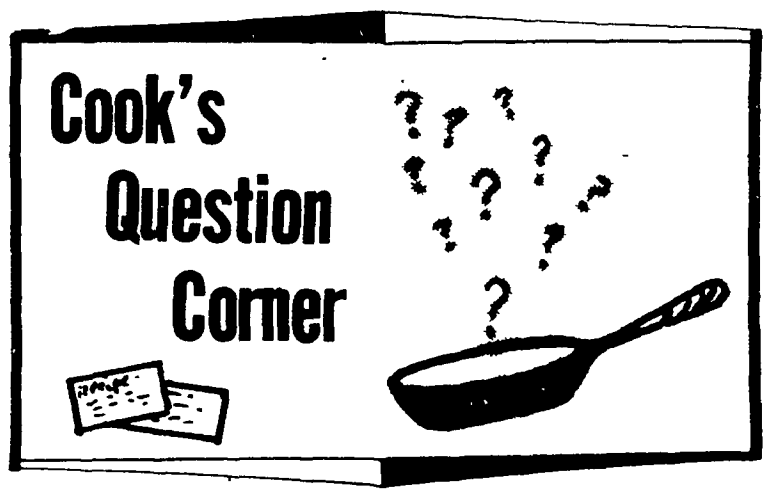
YUMMY CAKE

1 box yellow cake mix
1 regular box instant vanilla pudding
8 oz. cream cheese, softened
20-oz. can crushed pineapples
1 small can crushed pineapples, drained well
1 8 or 9-oz. container Cool Whip

Make cake as directed on package but use a greased and floured 9x13 inch pan. Bake 15 to 20 minutes. Watch it constantly to not over bake. Cool well. When cake is baking, make pudding and let set up well at room temperature. When cake is cool, add cream cheese to pudding and beat together well. Use small bowl. Spread over cooled cake. Spoon on drained pineapples and then spread Cool Whip on top. Refrigerate. Do not cover.

Belinda Myers, Dallastown

Black Walnut Ring Cake is a dessert that is ideal for picnics or dinner at home.



QUESTION - I was wondering if any readers had a tangy, delicious sauce recipe for steaks and/or pork chops. Since it's still the barbecuing season, I certainly would enjoy a change of pace these last days of summer.

Rebecca Martin, Harrisburg

COCOA MAYONNAISE CAKE

Sift together:
2 c. flour
1 c. sugar
1 t. baking soda
1/2 t. salt
3 heaping T. cocoa
Add:
1 c. mayonnaise
1 c. water
1 t. vanilla

Mix well. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes. No eggs or shortening are used because the mayonnaise takes the place of both.

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

For countless youngsters across the country, this is the week that brings those big yellow buses roaring down the highway, officially signalling an end to the long, lazy days of summer vacation.

Our crew belongs to those fortunates who get yet one more week of grace in which to goof off, before they're marched back to the halls of learning for another year of preparation toward graduation into adulthood.

It's a last catch-all week in which mothers will spend their final days of refereing sibling squabbles, running an all-day restaurant, assigning chores with an army sergeant growl and hastily shopping to replace the sneakers that were totalled while serving as bicycle brakes.

Our hay bales have all, long-since been stacked away in the barn. Swimming is so old no one even knows where they last saw their aging and fading bathing suits. Weeks of sunny, dry skies have written off the need for mowing the lawn, and most of the 4-H cattle shows are history.

Building forts in the hay mow has grown blah. The only hilarity in hay houses is watching the cat dispose of three mice unfortunate to have been discovered under one hay house bale and then giving a detailed report at supper, on the sights and sounds of the cat-eat-mouse ending.

A once-thrilling pastime, riding the bikes like wildfire through the perennial puddle out along the road, has literally dried up. No one's happier about that than the herdsman's wife, whose small son endorsed mud-puddling as the ultimate in entertainment.

Sitting behind the backyard fence, lonely and abandoned, the breeze tugging at tattered corners, is the tent made from black, garden-mulching plastic and two-by-fours. Hours of loving, careful construction went into it, providing an outside sleeping area those h ot, humid July nights for pajama party guests as well as numerous delighted cats and a dog.

While collecting bugs promised to provide an educational diversion, that wore thin with exepected haste, considering the wealth of collectibles flying, hopping, and crawling about the premises. In a spree of kitchen counter cleaning, I bid farewell to the small jar, a faint odor of alcohol still clinging to the cotton balls, and its pair of forgotten collecting victims.

Even the excitement of the long-planned gala combination swim-and-birthday party, hostessed by the teenager and her best friend, dwindled as several invited guests fell prey to family vacations, orthodonists appointments and music lessons.

"I think they're ready to go back to school," commented the farmer the other day, after some chore he'd requested be done had again been half-heartedly, half-finished.

Sure enough, summer's worn thin to the school-age set, who need the renewed challenge of quizzes and homework to make days off look interesting again.

And, while I'll miss their company (which rejoicing that I don't have to run to a meeting every other day with them), surely the cats will miss them even more.

I certainly don't have time to sit up in the treehouse and coax the kittens back down from the top of the willow branches.

SOUR CREAM CAKE

7/8 c. sugar
1 c. sour cream
2 eggs
1 rounding c. flour
1/2 t. soda
1 t. baking powder
1 t. vanilla
pinch salt

Cream sugar and eggs. Add soda to sour cream and baking powder, and salt to flour. Add to creamed mixture. Add vanilla and bake in a tube pan at 350 degrees. Very light and rich when made with real sour cream.

Mrs. Donald Hill, Apalachin, N.Y.

SWEDISH CRUMB CAKE

Crumbs:
2 c. flour
1 c. brown sugar
1 1/2 c. oatmeal
3/4 c. butter
1 t. soda
1/4 t. salt
1 t. vanilla
Filling:
1 c. chopped dates
1 c. brown sugar
1 c. water

Press half of above crumbs in oblong baking pan. Cover with filling. Cover with rest of crumbs. Bake 30 minutes at 350 degrees. When cool, but in squares.

Mrs. Carl Bacon, Felton

PATCHWORK CAKE

1 c. butter
2 c. sugar
4 eggs
3 c. sifted all-purpose flour
1/2 t. salt
2 t. baking powder
1 c. milk
2 t. vanilla extract
2 squares chocolate, melted
1/8 t. baking soda
1 T. milk

Cream butter and sugar thoroughly. Add eggs one at a time, beating after each addition. Sift together dry ingredients and add alternately with combined milk and vanilla. Divide batter into two parts. Combine chocolate, baking soda and the one T. of milk with 1/2 of the batter. Drop chocolate and white batters alternately by spoonsfuls into 2 greased 8-inch squre or 9-inch round pans. Bake at 375 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes.

Juniata Co. 4-H'er wins Quarter Horse

UNIVERSITY PARK — Teresa L. Whistler, 13, of R1, Mifflintown, has been named 1982 state winner of a yearling Quarter Horse from Bob Evans Farms, of Rio Grande, Ohio.

The award winner and her parents will take part in the Bob Evans Fall Round-up in Ohio. Sept. 10-12 where she and winners from eight other states will receive their horses.

"Teresa was selected in recognition of her outstanding work and leadership displayed in 4-H work, at school, and other activities. She is one of 9,500 youths who participate in state 4-H horse club activities," said James Gallagher, Extension animal scientist at Penn State.

Evans, president and founder of Bob Evans Farms, a sausage and restaurant company, has been a supporter of 4-H programs for many years. Nearly 100 registered Quarter Horses have been presented to 4-H members in nine states since 1978.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Whistler, Teresa has been a 4-H member for six years. In addition to her horse club activities, she belongs to the veterinary science and baby beef clubs.

Teresa served as a junior leader and vice president of her 4-H club and for the last three years worked on the publicity committee to promote local horse shows and recruit new club members. She also serves as a member of the Juniata County 4-H Teen Council.

Teresa also is a member of the Lutheran League Church Group, Girl Scouts, and Juniata County Sportsmen's Club.

In school, she is a member of the marching band, participated in numerous science fairs, and belongs to the majorette and modern dance clubs.

Teresa Whistler

"I'm very pleased to have been selected as winner of the Evans Award," she said. "I'm getting too tall to continue riding the pony that I used in project work the last four years. I feel capable of raising a foal and consider it a challenge to properly feed and care for the horse."

Gallagher pointed out that nominations for the award were screened by each 4-H horse district committee. Winners were selected by a committee consisting of Penn State College of Agriculture faculty and staff.

What has the summer meant to you?

Well kids, for most of you, school starts next week. Looking back over the summer, what was your favorite experience? If you have to write an English paper this fall about your favorite summer experience, what would it be? Would it be playing with your pets, going swimming, helping Dad make hay, or planting your own garden? Below are some summertime events all scrambled up. See if you can figure out each word and then see how many you experienced this summer.

For 6-year-old Nicole Blessing of Honey Grove, Pa., the summer was a chance to spend time with her favorite kis. These little frisky goats are sure to keep anybody busy - summer and winter!

For these two girls, the summer brings a chance to attend picnics and see a big motorcycle up close. But for the little girl in front, the most exciting time of her summer just may have been getting caught by the camera!

Northampton 'rounds-up' dairy talent

Dairy youth participate in N.W. Regional workshop

SYKESVILLE — The Pennsylvania Junior Guernsey Breeders' Association, in cooperation with the Penn State Cooperative Extension Service, held their annual Fitting and Showing Workshop last month at the Jefferson County Fairgrounds.

Five workshops were conducted to instruct the 59 youth attending, representing all the major breeds, on showmanship, hoof trimming, washing, clipping and preparing a show box. Demonstrators for the event were Ruth Benedict John, PGBA; Guernsey breeders Jeffrey Harding and Judy Harding, Brookville; Holstein breeder Paul Corbin, Reynoldsville; Co. Extension Agent George C. Wilcox, Erie; and Guernsey breeder Sallie Ferris, New Wilmington.

Each participant drew a lot for a calf to work on for the afternoon and the evening Fitting and Showing contest. These calves were donated for the event by local dairy farmers. Each youth was instructed to wash, clip and teach the animal to lead.

Judge Ginger S. Myers, a Guernsey breeder from Littlestown, selected top winners from three age classes.

The top two winners in each class were: 8-10 Year Olds - 1. Donnie Bowers; 2. Trina Whitmore; 11-13 Year Olds - 1. Kelle Kovalan; 2. Michelle Smith; 14 & Over - 1. Laurie Reed; 2. Becky Stewart.

Prizes awarded to the top individuals in each class were: leather halter, donated by Sire Power and Atlantic Breeders; pen and pencil sets from Atlantic Breeders and Pa. Guernsey Breeders. Every participant received a rope halter donated by the Pa. Guernsey Breeders and folders from Atlantic Breeders Co-op. Other Contributors to the event were Select Sire, and Harry Hank, Monongahela.

Participants were invited to camp out at Maplevale Guernsey Farm and spend a day at Cooks Forest, a recreational Park near Brookville. Some 20 youth participated. The 1983 Workshop will be held in a Region in Northeast, Pennsylvania.

Laurie Reed was winner of the 14 & Over Class.

Your silo walls stay clean and your Patz unloader stays level.

Spring tension keeps the self-sharpening Patz power cutter knives tight to the silo wall. With no silage buildup, your Patz silo unloader stays level for reliable feeding.

4-H isn't just four H's anymore

BY DEBBIE KOONTZ

LANCASTER — Four-H may stand for head, hands, heart and health traditionally, but it also stands for ingenuity and originality as 4-H'ers from all over Lancaster County proved at their annual Achievement Days, last Thursday.

Held at the Farm and Home Center — in fact, all through the Center, across the spreading lawns, and along the driveways — the 4-H'ers found opportunity to display those projects, crafts, and animals they have been working on for the past year. Youthful beaming faces, gold-trimmed ribbons and plenty of impressive demonstrations and delicious food awaited the many visitors and parents who came to admire the work and the mini fair.

The afternoon provided a chance to view the many displays — from photography to needlework, from cake decorating to animals — as eager 4-H'ers sat in attendance by their projects ready to explain their techniques. Other 4-H'ers, eager for the opportunity to be on television, participated in a line dance. Early evening brought archery and rocketry contests and demonstrations.

But the nighttime activities were the highlight of the day as an Outstanding 4-H Boy and Girl were chosen for their impressive work in the 4-H world.

Michelle Dean and her next-door neighbor, friend and classmate, Bud Spahn captured these titles.

Michelle, 16, a sophomore at the Lampeter-Strasburg High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Dean of Rl Strasburg. Michelle has had projects in hogs, steers and teen leadership during her eight years in 4-H.

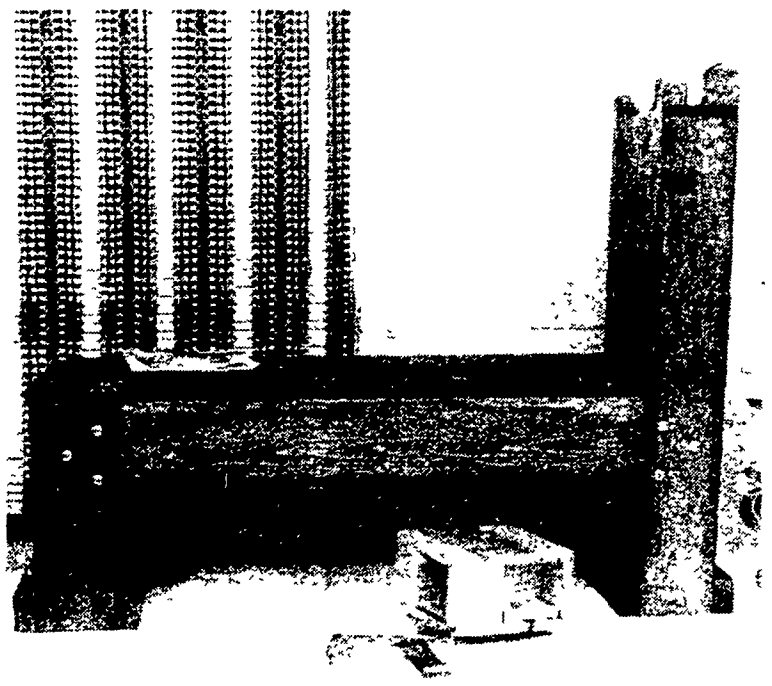
(Turn to Page B15)

Michelle Dean, 16 and Bud Spahn, 14, both of Strasburg, captured the titles of Outstanding Girl and Boy at the annual 4-H Achievement Days last week. Michelle is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Dean and Bud is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Spahn Sr.

Two large tents covering the lawn around the Farm and Home Center housed the projects and farm animals of over 700 4-H'ers.

Chad Musser of Lancaster couldn't resist the opportunity to show off his favorite project and companion, "Inky," to visitors at the 4-H mini fair.

The line dance proved to be an event everyone could participate in - and they did, eager for the chance to be on television that night.



The handyman project presented an impressive array of wood projects - from birdhouses to coffee mug holders, from shelves to bench presses.

Booths of food, souvenirs and these 4-H T-shirts were huddled beneath the trees outside of the Center. Here, Lorri Rutt, 13, Quarryville; Michelle Dean, 16, Strasburg; and Chris Champman, 15, Manheim join forces to sell their shirts.

Cake decorating was a favorite project for spectators to experience because they were taught how to decorate their own cupcakes.

Achievement Days

Michelle is an FFA member and a Red Cross volunteer at Lancaster General Hospital. She hopes to become a veterinarian assistant or a nurse in the future.

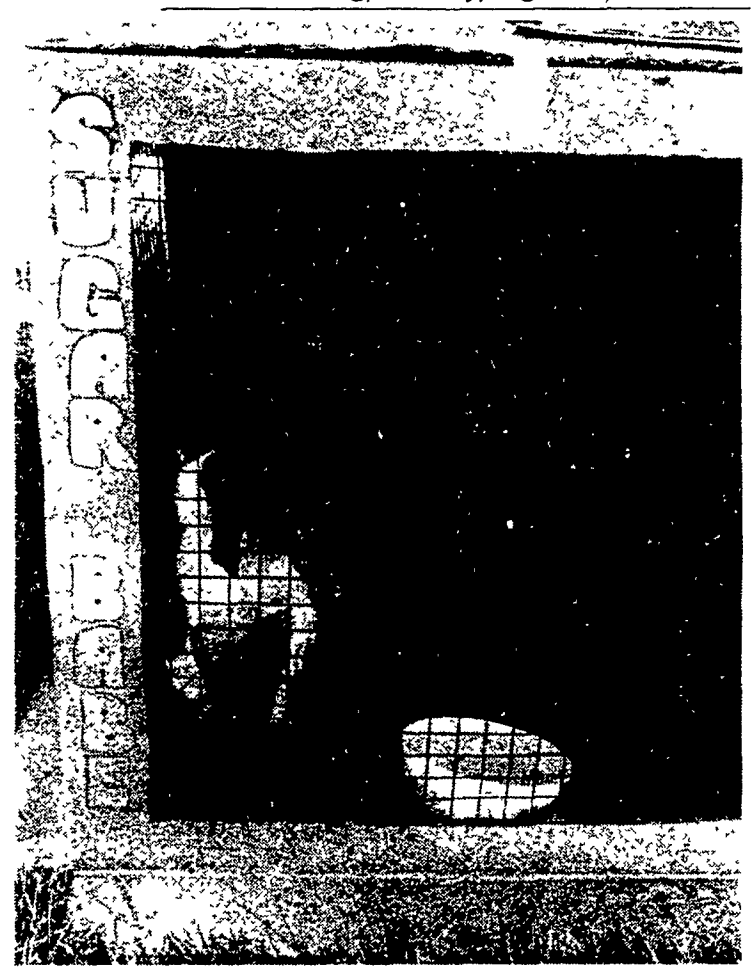
Bud Spahn, though starting with a project in hogs also, soon turned his interest to horses, and now has five at home. He is also a teen leader.

Bud, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Spahn Sr., has been a 4-H'er for six years. He hopes to become a veterinarian in the future.

Bud is a member of the Boots and Saddles Club and the Lancaster County Horse and Pony Production Club. He also participated on the horse bowl team this year.

In the talent contest, Dawn Eberly, daughter of Paul and Janet Eberly of New Holland, earned the first prize for her flute solo. A sophomore at the Lancaster Mennonite High School, Dawn has been a 4-H member for eight years. She says she learned to play flute in school.

Jena Root captured the junior division talent award for her piano solo. Jena is a member of the Kirkwood Sewing Club.



Little did Sugar Babe know early that Thursday morning that he was going to be on display that day. But, as any conscientious 4-H'er would do, his owner provided him with plenty of water and shade.

Performance is the only proof of a hog feed's value

You can tell something about a feed from the way a hog looks.

But this doesn't tell you anything about what your total feed cost is going to be.

Price per ton for the part of the ration you buy doesn't tell you much either. A cheap supplement often is anything but a good buy.

The only real proof is in performance - low total feed cost. That's where the worth of Moor-Man's' really shows up.

Let's do some feed cost figuring. Your MoorMan Man,

Hopple shows champion steer

Spring Bottom sweeps Carlisle beef show

BY BETH HEMMINGER
Staff Correspondent

CARLISLE — Spring Bottom Farm, went home to Fairfield, Adams County, after the Polled Hereford competition at the Carlisle Fair with quite a collection of top awards.

Their December heifer, Spring Bottom Royal Queen captured the Grand Champion Polled Hereford title. Spring Bottom Royal Duchess, a March heifer, won the Reserve Champion award.

Cumberland Countian 4-H'er David Shultz won the Grand Champion Hereford Bull honors in the open show with his junior yearling.

The Intermediate Showman trophy went to Allyson Sheaffer who bested a field of 17 other 4-H competitors. Walter Loy of Farm Credit Association presented the award to Allyson.

The Champion rosette of the open beef show at Carlisle Fair went to Spring Bottom Farm, Fairfield, winning the top award with their December Polled Hereford heifer Royal Queen, shown by Judy Long. Spring Bottom also claimed the reserve honors with a March heifer, Royal Duchess.

The Junior Bull Champion slot was taken by Glesbrook Farm, followed by Spring Run Farm of Abbottstown capturing the Reserve Junior Bull title.

Following the open beef show, the junior market steers and their owners made their debut at the Carlisle Fair.

Chris Hopple walked away with top honors of the show as the judge made a few final remarks before giving Hopple's Simmental that championship slap on the rump. Hopple's 1,100-pound steer also was the Heavyweight Division champion.

Overall Reserve Champion honors went to Allyson Sheaffer. Allyson also won the Reserve Heavyweight Champion honors with her 955-pound Angus.

Chris Hopple stood in the spotlight once again in the Mediumweight Division winning the championship honors with a 925-pound steer. Reserve Champion Mediumweight honors went to Karen Fought.

Winning the Champion Lightweight title was Cumberland Valley Chapter FFA member, Mark Gutshall, followed by Tim Gordon receiving the Lightweight Reserve Champion honors.

Prior to the Market Show, the junior members participated in a showmanship contest. Angie Fought won the senior showmanship competition and was presented a trophy by the Greater Carlisle Chamber of Commerce. Winning the Intermediate division was Allyson Sheaffer, and Keith Baker stood at the top of the junior showman division.

New Jersey State Fair offers 'Farmer Days'

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — Fine family entertainment awaits everyone during the annual New Jersey State Agricultural Fair, beginning Thursday, September 2 through Sunday, September 12.

Located north of Flemington on Route 31, the state fair features "Farmer's Day," on September 2 and September 8.

The first Farmer's Day, which opens the fair on Thursday, will feature the Farm Tractor Pulling Contest which begins at 9 a.m. The weight transfer system will be used for the pull, located in front of the Grand stand.

The state 4-H Dairy Show with all breeds competing, will be judged. Color breeds are scheduled for the morning, followed by Holsteins in the afternoon. Other 4-H events include goat, lamb, swine, fancy poultry, sheep, waterfowl and egg shows.

Eight young women will vie for the state Dairy Princess title during the evening activities.

In addition, the fruit and vegetable exhibits will be judged that morning.

The second Farmer's Day on Wednesday, September 8, will feature a Pony Pulling Contest at 10 a.m., followed by an Open Horse Pulling Contest. That evening, the New Jersey Championship Modified Tractor Pull will be held.

WHAT THIS MAN KNOWS ABOUT FARMING COULD FILL A BOOK... A BANK BOOK.

Farming. It's a complex business. No surprise to you, of course. We only mention it because when it comes to getting a farm loan, we know you don't want to have to start at ground zero and explain the expenses of livestock, machinery, construction, mortgages and operating expenses to a novice loan officer.

Which is why we suggest you turn to Bob Badger, the head of our Agricultural Loan Division. Bob knows farming — inside out and upside down. He's been helping our community's farmers meet their business objectives for years. So when it comes to farm loans, he takes a very interesting point of view ... yours.

Next time you need to talk to a banker about financing your business, talk to the banker who understands your business ... Bob Badger at Bank of Lancaster County. Visit Bob at our Strasburg office or give him a call and ask him to visit you.

Lower Dauphin FFA'er to live 6 months in Switzerland

HUMMELSTOWN — Tammy Yost, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Yost, of R1 Hershey, will participate in the FFA Work Experience Abroad (WEA) program beginning in September.

The program is an international educational exchange between the Future Farmers of America and rural youth organizations in other countries. She chose Switzerland as her host country where she will be living and working on a dairy farm for six months.

Before leaving for Switzerland, the Lower Dauphin FFA'er will travel to Washington D.C. to meet with the FFA WEA Coordinator. There, she will have a three-day orientation session to learn about her chosen counry.

Before arriving in Switzerland, Yost will take a ten-day tour of Europe with other FFA exchange students. She will see Luxenbourg, Reims and Paris in France, Brussels in Belgium, and then to Amsterdam to see the Floriada, a giant floral show which occurs only once every decade, followed by a cruise through Frankfurt.

While on the exchange program, Yost will have the opportunity to learn about other ways of life, exchange ideas about agriculture and contribute to international understanding.

Yost graduated from Lower Dauphin Senior High school in 1980. While in the FFA, she received her Keystone Farmer Degree, served as chapter treasurer, won the Star Chapter Farmer Award, the Dekalb Award, and the Outstanding Senior Award. She also served on the Parliamentary Procedure Team, which won a Silver medal in State Competition, the dairy judging team, and as a state officer candidate.

Her committee work was varied, serving on the Food for America, safety, banquet, and FFA week committees to name a few. She also attended the Pennsylvania Association of Farmers Cooperatives Institute and the National FFA Convention in Kansas City.

Her Vocational Agriculture Supervised Occupational Experience projects included a dairy cow and work experience on her uncle's dairy farm and in a local greenhouse. Her Lower Dauphin FFA Chapter Advisor and vocational agriculture instructor is Cynthia L. Shaffer.

Anyone wishing to write to Tammy can do so at: Familie, Walter Tschanen, Farm Rutimatte, 3115 Gervensee, Switzerland.

Tammy Yost, of the Lower Dauphin FFA, makes a final pasture visit with Javin Apollo Etta, her dairy project which won grand champion at the Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show during her senior year. She is taking part in the FFA Work Experience Abroad Program.

3 get blues in FFA show

BEAVER SPRINGS — On Friday, Aug. 13, the Central District FFA held its annual Dairy Show at the Beaver Community Fairgrounds at Beaver Springs with 10 West Snyder FFA members participating.

There were three members who had animals awarded blue ribbons and will move on to the State Junior Show. They were Jody Fry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Fry, of Beaver Springs, who showed a Senior Yearling Brown Swiss that was selected as Junior and Grand Champion for the breed; Timothy Wetzel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Wetzel of Middleburg, showed a Junior Calf Holstein; and Annette Shirey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Shirey, Beavertown, showed a senior yearling Holstein and also earned an Owner-Breeder Award.

Others participating were Jackie Beaver, Middleburg; Jesse and Jerry Colabine, Beavertown; Robert and Barry Waite, Beavertown; James Hassinger, McClure; and Timothy Reich, Beavertown.

The judges for the show were Ginger Myers, Littletown, type judge; William Harshman from Tyrone, fitting judge; and Tom W. Crittendere from Mansfield served as showmanship judge.

West Snyder FFA tours ag in Md.

BEAVER SPRINGS — Several members of the West Snyder FFA recently spent several days in Maryland touring points of agricultural interest.

Two planned tours were conducted. The first was through the Raynor Brothers Nursery at Salisbury, Md. The Raynor Nursery grows, processes, and ships between 8 to 10 million strawberry plants annually to customers throughout the United States. The tour included a demonstration of several of the cultural practices applied to strawberries. In addition, the students were shown blueberry production and asparagas propagation.

The second tour was through Wye Plantation of Queenstown, Md. During this tour, the students were shown the Angus herd of beef cattle that has produced outstanding breeding sires presently being used throughout the United States. The herd is presently owned by the University of Maryland, and specializes in the production of bulls.

The students on the tours were Ross Snook, Michael Troxell, and David Shawver.

Hunterdon Hills sweeps Central Jersey Holstein Show

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — Hunterdon Hills Holsteins, Rosemont, once again captured top honors in the annual Central Jersey Holstein Show, held recently at Flemington Fairgrounds.

HHH's strongest showing was in the milking classes, taking three of five firsts. Bill Teet's Backacres entries accounted for the other two blue ribbons in the milking cow end of the show.

Hunterdon Hills exhibited the Grand and Reserve Champion cows, Hunterdon Inspire Fobia and Hunterdon Jemini Joll, respectively. Fobia topped a strong Aged Cow Class, and Joll was the blue ribbon winner in an impressive class of two-year-olds.

HHH received both Premier Breeder and Premier Exhibitor awards at the conclusion of the show.

Ninety-one entries paraded before type judge, Edwin R. Fry, Fair-Hill Farms, Chestertown, Maryland. He placed the classes quickly and decisively, reported George Alles, Flemington, Show Committee Chairman. Reasons for placings were clear and concise.

"The show was one of the best we've had," said Alles. "Quality ran deep in all the classes. We were especially pleased with the turn-out in the milking classes."

Blue ribbons were rather well distributed. Hunterdon Hills garnered five in the individual classes and one in the group classes. Backacres had three in individual classes, one in the groups. Other first place winners were: Charles Rogers and family, Fenn-Breeze Farm; BBS Holsteins, 4-H'er Trista Beatty; Hope Atkinson and Tom Piskorowski, both 4-H Club members; and Howard Sutton's Windy Crest Farm.

Junior Champion female of the show was Windy Crest Betty Ann, a Senior Yearling shown by Howard J. Sutton, Fairmount.

In the Junior Division, youth-owned and exhibited animals, Femmara Creek Opal, owned by Thomas Piskorowski, Princeton, was Junior Champion. She was also Reserve Junior Champion of the entire show.

Hope Atkinson, Jutland, exhibited the Senior and Grand Champion in the Junior Division, Agsam Jet Stream Betsy. Joseph Piskorowski won Reserve Champion, Junior Division, with his entry, Femmara Gay Treasure.

The top youth award, a registered Holstein calf, was won by Hope Atkinson. Her total score, based on fitting, showmanship and recordkeeping, tied that of Gretchen Kuehn, Raritan Township. Gretchen was winner last year and by show policy could not win the calf two years in a row.

Experienced fitting awards went to Sandra Sutton, North Branch, first, and Sandy Rogers, Raritan Township, second.

First place in Senior Showmanship went to Hope Atkinson, second to Sandy Rogers.

In the beginning fitting and showmanship competition, it was Susan Kuehn, first, and Tracy Beatty, second.

Darlene McCaffrey was judged top Holstein Showman in a new class for adults. Everett Chamberlain, Warren County Senior Agent judged fitting and showmanship.

Bi-Jo Holstein tops New Jersey state show

HARMONY, N.J. — A former junior champion and high testing Elevation daughter netted both Senior Champion and Grand Champion rosettes during the recent All-New Jersey Holstein Show.

Bi-Jo Elevation Heather, EX 92 was just one of two champions exhibited by the William Terhune, Jr. family of Andover, N.J. Out of an 87-point Kingpin with butterfat tests to 4.8 percent, Heather's win culminated five years of top-notch showing beginning with her All-New Jersey tanbark debut in 1978 as first place senior calf.

In 1979, Terhune's black and white came back to claim the Junior Champion title as a senior yearling. She placed first and fourth in her 1980 and 1981 outings, respectively.

The aged cow has tested not lower than 4.6 percent with her top butterfat yield produced as a 3-year-old at 1,119 pounds of fat, 4.9 percent test on 22,476 pounds of milk.

Terhune's second champion, Bi-Jo Boot-Nick Nanette, captured judge Bertram Stewart's eye in her senior yearling class and was tagged junior champion.

Sired by Rippchen Boot-Nick, the junior champ is out of an 84-point Elevation with records to more than 21,000 pounds of milk and 800 pounds of fat.

Stewart went with another Elevation for reserve grand and reserve senior champion. By-Acres Elvation Angel also claimed Best Udder honors for owners Rich and Rosina Byma, Sussex, N.J. The 3-year-old reserve grand champ is out of By-Acres Lucky Kingpin.

Bridgeton, N.J. breeder John Hubschmidt collected a Reserve Junior Champion win with his senior heifer calf Hubbys Falcon Betina, a Brookfield Falcon daughter. Ellen Hubschmidt's bull calf, Hubby N H Cracker Jack caught Stewart's winning nod and was named champion male. The 9-month-old bull is sired by Md New Hopes Rebel and out of Hubbys R Maple Monitor. The Hubschmidts were runners-up for both the Bi-Jo Elevation Heather swept her aged cow class and was named the 1982 Grand Champion of the recent All-New Jersey Holstein Show. The Excellent 92 point Elevation daughter, over the years, has been a strong competitor in the annual event, netting the Junior Champion title in 1979 for owner William E. Terhune, Jr. of Andover, N.J.

E-town Grange

The Elizabethtown Area Grange met Aug. 19. State Grange Master Charlie Wismer presented the official subordinate Grange charter.

Bill Martin, an active volunteer with the Advanced Life Support Unit #5 from Elizabethtown, was a guest speaker. He explained their operation and equipment.

The Elizabethtown Area Grange #2076 held their first annual family picnic, on Aug. 22 at the Milton Grove Sportsmen's Club, with about 50 attending.

There will be no meeting Sept. 2 due to the Elizabethtown Fair. Help is still needed in running the Grange's milkshake stand during the week of the fair. To sign up, call 717/367-3344.

Lancaster Co. Society 19

Lancaster Farm Women 19 met Aug. 14 and toured the Eisenhower Estate, Gettysburg. We enjoyed lunch at the Dutch Pantry and then went on to see a show at the Gettysburg Miniature Horse Farm.

Next meeting will be Sept. 11 at 1:30 p.m. at the home of Corinne Nissley.

Montgomery 4-H'ers vie for dairy ribbon

By Martha Gehringer

LANSDALE — The Montogomery County 4-H Dairy Show held at the 4-H Center was greeted with warm sunshine and many 4-Hers, eager to complete their project.

The first breed into the ring was the Jersey group, where a total of 13 animals were shown. While 13 is an unlucky number for some, it proved lucky for Robert Waltemeyer of Collegeville as his cow, number 13, Walebe Prospector Donna a 4-year-old was named senior and grand champion.

Robert a five year 4-H member, also had the unique honor of showing and breeding the reserve senior grand champion and reserve junior champion, Walebe Frederick Cora a 3-year-old and Walebe Frederick Connie a senior yearling, respectively. These reserve animals are also full sisters.

Pride Audreas Angeleana an intermediate calf, was named Junior Champion Jersey and is owned by Kathleen Kopistecki of Royersford.

The Brown Swiss breed, with a slightly small group at 11, was topped by DN Delegate Dainty a 5-year-old also owned by Kopistecki. This cow was recently named grand champion at the Kimberton Fair and was grand champion at last year's 4-H fair.

Last year's reserve grand champion is also this year's reserve grand, Bally Paul Amber, owned by Jean Gehringer, Bally. Jean a six year 4-H member also exhibited the junior champion, Bally Balison April a senior calf.

Following in the Reserve Junior placing was senior yearling Galaxys Wish Upon A Star owned by Marcia Slater of Perkiomenville.

Kopistecki's seven year old Tower View Kellys S. Minerva was named Senior and Grand Champion Ayrshire. She is owned by Kathleen Kopistecki.

Pre 4-H, a unique class was held next. All the exhibitors, younger than 4-H age, were given an opportunity to show to promote interest in the dairy 4-H. The participants all received blue ribbons for their fine efforts.

The last and largest breed was the Holsteins. The top animal owned by Amy Wolfgang of Gilbertsville, was Gail-Ber M Tweedle Dee. Twin a 3-year-old.

Reserve Grand Champion honors went to Marcia Slater's Galaxys Noble Sapphire Star, a 4-year-old. The Junior Champion title was awarded to senior calf Keenline Precious Pearl owned by Linea Keener and Reserve honors went to Lee Ruth and his intermediate calf, Rib-El Brook JetStream Heidi.

The judges for the days events were Jed Beshore a York County Holstein Breeder who judged type and Steve Cornman from Justa Beauty Holsteins in Carlisle, who judged fitting and showmanship. Carolyn Seipt, Montgomery County's Dairy Princess handed out the ribbons.

Montgomery County, which owns one of the few permanent 4-H centers in Pennsylvania has been running dairy 4-H show for about 30 years according to County agent Joe Way. From here, the blue ribbon animals will be attending the Southeast 4-H Dairy District Show to be held at the Kutztown Fairgrounds on August 27.

Walebe, Inc. sweeps Montgomery Holstein show

LANSDALE — Walebe Farms of Collegeville captured both Grand Champion and Junior Champion honors at the recent Montgomery County Holstein Show held at the Montgomery County 4-H Center, Lansdale.

In her tanbark debut, the grand champion Hy-Vue Walt Patsy, wasted no time in making her mark on the show. In addition to being named senior and grand champion of the show, she was also selected as Best Udder of the show. The 3-year-old is sired by Mid-Dell Acres Elevation.

The junior champion, Sawtooth Bova Imari, was also owned and exhibited by Walebe Farms Inc. The junior yearling is sired by Rockalli son of Bova. Reserve Junior Champion honors went to the intermediate calf, Delside Marvation Jolly, owned by Durell Delp, Harleysville.

The Reserve Grand Champion placing went to 5-year-old Woodson Rorae Gent Evelyn. The Elevation daughter was Grand Champion two years ago at this show and is owned by Roderick Wood of Woodson Farms, Pennsburg.

Woodson Farms also earned the distinction as this year's shows Premier exhibitor. Roderick Wood served as chairman of this year's show and seven years ago, helped to revive this show which had ceased for a period of two years.

The Premier Breeder banner was won by Freddy Hill Farm, Lansdale. They are currently milking around 100 Holsteins with an average of 18,600 pounds of milk, 701 pounds of fat with a 3.9 percent test.

York Co. Society 12

York Farm Women 12 met recently at the New Bridgeville Memorial Fire Hall to hear member Romaine Shelley talk about her trip to Japan.

Members voted to donate $10 to the Arthritis Fund.

The next meeting will be held at Wills School, owned by York County Conservation Society along East Prospect Road, Debroy. The program will be "A school day in the early 1900s."

Lancaster Societies

Lancaster County Society of Farm met for a covered dish picnic at noon on Aug. 3, at the Lampeter Community Fair Grounds.

The picnic, featuring long tables of hot and cold dishes of countless varieties, was attended by 84 adults and 18 children representating all but two of the 33 societies in Lancaster County.

Following the picnic, Fran Sauder, president, conducted a business meeting. Highlights of the meeting included a summary of the plans for "Homemakers Christmas in October" on October 25 and 26. Final plans for the two-day event will be mailed to each of the 33 county society presidents.

More information was given on the upcoming 65th County Convention on November 6. It will be held at the Farm and Home Center and the main speaker will be Marianne Fisher, who will share her faith and experiences under the Hilter regime during WWII.

Cumberland Hog Round-up champ brings 70 cents over last year

BY BETH HEMMINGER
Staff Correspondent

CARLISLE — The Cumberland County 4-H Hog Round-up and Sale ran into the five-figure range last Thursday evening at the Carlisle Livestock Market bringing in a total of $17,321 for 86 hogs.

Glen Finkenbinder, owner of the grand champion hog, received the highest price of the sale — $3.95 a pound for his 230-pound champion hog. Hatfield Packing Company, Hatfield, was the buyer of Finkenbinder's hog paying 70 cents above last year's top sale price.

Ezra Good of Hatfield Packing continued to nod in his bids and bought the reserve grand champion, too. Owner Kim Sheaffer received $2.95 from Hatfield Packing for the 215-pound champion. Kim also was the owner of the reserve champion heavyweight purchased by Fred Potteiger for 89 cents a pound.

Sandy Hopple sold her champion lightweight hog for 80 cents per pound to Hatfield Packing, along with Jason Kutz who owned the reserve champion pen of hogs, which sold to Hatfield for 70 cents a pound.

Wayne F. Craig, Shippensburg, bought the champion pen of hogs, weighing a total of 475 pounds, for 85 cents a pound from owner, Chris Hopple.

Country Butcher of Plainfield bid top prices for the reserve champion mediumweight owned by Kim Warner and the reserve champion lightweight owned by Jeff Warner. The reserve middleweight brought 91 cents a pound and the reserve lightweight went for $1.10 a pound.

The total weight of the 86 hogs was 19,410 pounds bringing the average sale price per pound to 89 cents.

Other buyers at the sale were: M. Thomas Sheaffer; William Ile; J.C. Eberts Paints; Fickes Silo; McAllisters Meats; Greason Poultry; Ken Emery Buying Green Farm; A & B Packing; Samuel Weston; North Mountain Samuel Weston; North Mountain Butcher; John Diehl; Shetron's Swine Farm; Gibb-Miller Insurance; Farm Credit Association; Jay Raush; Robert Weikert; Richard Zimmerman; Clyde McConaughey; and Fred Heckerdorn.

Chris Hopple stands with her champion pen of hogs that were bought by Wayne F. Craig and Sons of Shippensburg. Craig bought the 475-pound pen for 85 cents a pound.

Hatfield Packing Company bought the reserve grand champion from Kim Sheaffer. The 215-pound reserve champion was bought for $2.95.

Bankert's Duroc earns York Champion rosette

By Laurie Dobrosky

YORK — Brian Bankert of Hanover who is no stranger to winning champion rosettes walked away with top honors once again at the recent York 4-H Swine Round-up held at Thomasville Livestock Market.

Bankert's 225-pound Duroc was tagged Middleweight Champion before being named Overall Champion. His hog sold for $2.25 a pound to Hatfield Packing company.

The reserve grand champion hog was shown by Dana Holloway of New Freedom. She showed her 240-pound Duroc to the championship in the Light Heavyweight Division before selling it for $2 per pound to Hatfield Packing.

Dana, also showed the Champion Pair of Market Hogs with her homebred Durocs. She sold the remaining pair partner for 77 cents to Hatfield, once again.

The Reserve Champion Pair went to Julie Myers of Wellsville. Her pair, weighing a total of 425 pounds, sold to Spangler and Sprenkle Feed of York for 75 cents.

In addition to the type classes, the 4-H members also were judged on fitting and showmanship. Champion Showman was Brian Bankert, and Reserve Champion Showman was Gary Burgard of East Berlin. Champion Fitting honors also went to Gary Burgard and the Reserve Champion Fitter was Kristine Miller of York.

The sale average for 51 hogs sold was 85 cents. Hatfield Packing purchased 19 of the hogs sold.

Lancaster Co. Society 3

Lancaster Farm Women 3 met last Saturday at Ko-Ka-Lako Farm, R2 Denver. The hostess was Allegra Leininger.

Devotions included a reading by Mrs. Leininger and a solo by her grandson Joshua.

President Barbara Wenger presided over the business meeting. Plans were made for conducting the food stand at the Ephrata Fair on Sept. 21-25. Members will repaint the stand on Sept. 13-14 at the home of Barbara Stauffer, R1 Ephrata. Pot pie noodles will be made Tuesday, Sept. 7 in the church kitchen at Swamp U.C.C., Reinholds; and apple sauce, chicken, pepper cabbage, and clams will be prepared there on Saturday, Sept. 18.

Members will have a table of handmade Christmas decorations and crafts at "Christmas in October," sponsored by the Lancaster Extension on Oct. 25-26. In charge of the table will be Erla Gehman, Mary Jane Graybill, Doris Miller, Irene Eberly, and Salinda Weaver.

The program for the recent meeting was a guided tour of The Ned Foltz Pottery, near Blainsport. Mrs. Foltz explained the complete process of making pottery from clay.

The next meeting will be at Swamp U.C.C. Church, Reinholds. Eileen Miller will serve as hostess.

Lancaster Co. Society 22

Lancaster County Farm Women 22 met for an evening meeting at the home of Mrs. Jay Landis. Twenty-one members attended.

CLEAN CEILINGS, WALLS AND WOODWORK

With fresh air streaming through open windows, it's a good time to give painted ceilings, walls and woodwork a thorough cleaning. Though it is a big job, careful organization and proper techniques will get the job done well and as quickly as possible.

First be sure you have the necessary equipment. Gather supplies: pails, detergent or household cleaner, scrub brush, sponges, clothes, plastic drop cloths, a sturdy stepladder or stepstool.

Before getting underway, test the finish for washability. Choose an inconspicuous area and wash with a sudsy sponge or cloth. Fading, running or peeling are signs that painting or wallpapering rather than washing may be in order if the surface is really dingy. In this case, the surface must still be cleaned so that fresh paint or wallpaper will adhere securely. If there are no problems, it is safe to proceed.

Remove wall decorations. Move furniture away from walls. Cover items that cannot be taken from the room temporarily. Beginning with the ceiling, dust away cobwebs and surface dirt. Use a clean dust mop, a broom wrapped with a cloth or the vacuum cleaner with brush attachment.

It is easier to use two pails or basins, if available. Fill one with a sudsy detergent solution and the other with warm rinse water. When using a household cleaner, dissolve in water following manufacturer's directions for amount. Set pails on a plastic drop cloth to protect floors.

Begin with the ceiling. Be sure stepladder or stool is steady. Do not lean in any direction for greater reach. This is a common cause of falls. Use a scrub brush or sponge to wash. Wash and rinse in overlapping sections. To rinse, dip a sponge or cloth in clean water, wring out excess water and wipe the section. Repeat to be sure all dirt is removed.

Wash walls from the bottom up. Rivulets of water running down on dirty section will leave hard-to-remove streaks. Work a manageable section at a time and overlap washing and rinsing. Change to fresh suds and rinse water as often as necessary.

Finish by washing baseboards, door and window frames. Gloss or semigloss paint is generally used on woodwork and is not difficult to clean. Buy for stubborn spots, use a full strength liquid cleaner or a spray type. Rinse well.

which tested their endurance. They were taught mountain climbing, canoeing, backpacking, scaling tall trees, tightrope walking, hiking, swimming and survival under extreme conditions.

There will be election of officers at the next meeting, Sept. 13. Also John Kondravy, director of the Humane League, will bring the pet mobile and speak on cruelty to animals and services the Humane League provides."

Community Night will be held Sept. 27. The public is invited. There will be a covered dish dinner at 7 p.m., followed by a special program. Charles E. Wismer, Master of the State Grange, will be the speaker and 25 and 50-year members will be honored. There also will be on display all the entries for the annual photo and art contests. Members are encouraged to participate. Mrs. J. Stanley Stauffer may be contacted for details.

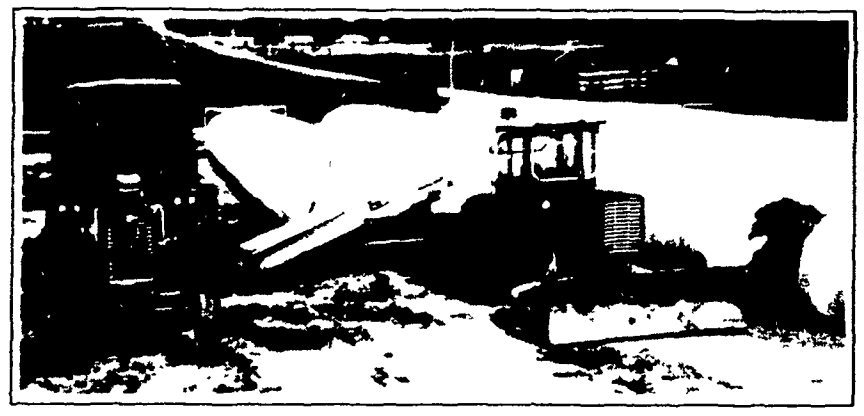
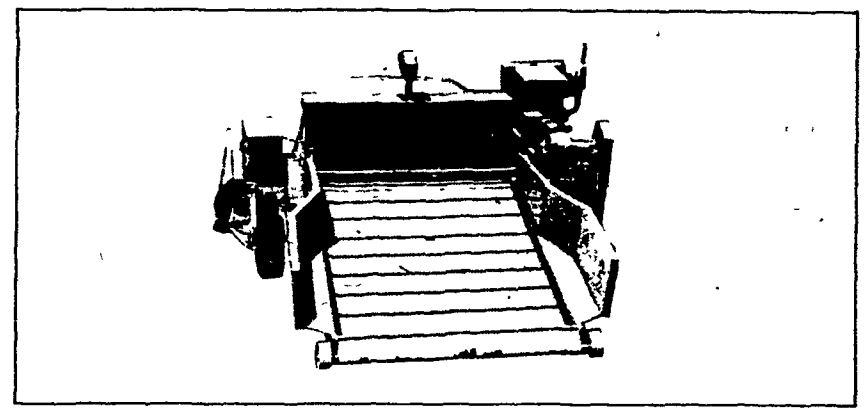
MORE FOR LESS.

The Storage System for the future. Here Now!

THE AG-BAG SYSTEM





MORE FEED. MORE STORAGE. MORE HIGH QUALITY TDN & PROTEIN.

Select from three models of AG-BAG Machines. Motorized, Hydraulic, and Gear-Driven. AG-BAG lets you match the machine to your job. Big or small. Whether you're DAIRY or BEEF AG-BAG will store More For Less. The AG-BAG System. Air-tight storage with more versatility than any other system. Just look at these AG-BAG ADVANTAGES:

1. UNLIMITED oxygen-limiting storage
2. Storage for ALL forages & grain
3. Transportable
4. Easy to use and little maintenance
5. NO dangerous silo gases
6. Silo fires WON'T occur
7. Higher moisture forage
8. NO unloader to break down
9. Extra income and potential from custom bagging
10. THE Forage System for the 80's

JUST LISTEN TO WHAT THESE AG-BAG BELIEVERS HAVE TO SAY:

Kenneth Popham of Floresville, Texas

Kenneth runs a 465 cow Dairy and said this about AG-BAG: "At today's interest rates you can't afford any other type of storage. . Even with the yearly cost of bags it's still inexpensive storage . . . a whole lot cheaper than building barns and hiring help I put up 13 bags last year and after seeing the results, I'll put up 25 bags this year. The bags are a good thing "

Don Carter of Parkdale, Oregon

"The best move I ever made" . . . says Don Carter in reference to his switch to bagging silage on his dairy near Parkdale, Oregon.

"I get 18% more feed from the same acreage and the feed lasts three times as long. I used to clean my bunks after three days, now I only need to clean them after 10 days "

Roland Rasmussen of Blair, Nebraska

"In addition to everything else, it's a management tool" . . . says rancher, Roland Rasmussen of Blair, Nebraska.

Roland farms 350 acres west of Blair, Nebraska, and fattens about 650 cattle from 600 lbs. to finish.

"By labeling every bag as to date and kind of feed, I can mix my feeds and eliminate the guess work in making a ration. I feed alfalfa silage, corn silage and ground ear corn stored exclusively in the bags, purchasing only my minerals and vitamin supplements "

"The AG-BAG system has enabled me to increase carrying capacity per acre at a reduced cost of gain."

Bert Anderson of Sceptre, Saskatchewan

"At least 30% more feed . . . I can guarantee at least that" . . says rancher, Bert Anderson, of Sceptre, Saskatchewan.

"I've been able to cut my grain feeding costs in half since converting to the bagging. It's just like feeding grass. I've also eliminated the need for a liquid supplement that we always fed before going to the AG-BAG System . . ."

HERE'S WHAT THE AG-BAG SYSTEM CAN DO FOR YOU
1 BAG	150 TONS
6 BAGS	900 TONS
12 BAGS	1 800 TONS
24 BAGS	3 600 TONS
48 BAGS	7 200 TONS

The BAM Way To Improved Egg Production

The BAM Feeding and Management System from Wayne® Feeds is a unique way to optimize hen performance. Combining nutritional knowledge with computer technology, the BAM system predicts your birds' energy requirements. It then objectively determines the proper feeding program to meet those needs at the least cost.

WAYNE FEEDS ® WAYNE ANIMAL HEALTH AIDS

Continental Grain Co.
Chicago, IL 60606

Based on specific flock information, or "vital signs," BAM tailors a program to your hens' particular needs. Using this input, BAM can also help you make valuable management decisions about your operatin.

Another very helpful feature of the BAM system is the Cash Flow Program, which enables you to forecast income and expenses for a full lay cycle. This can greatly assist you and your banker in making financial decisions.

With your first feed order, your Wayne Feeds representative can give you a BAM Starter Kit, which helps you collect the flock data needed by the computer. With that, you've taken the first step toward improved egg productin.

The BAM Feeding and Management System should give you more control of your operation and your profit potential. Call us today and let us show you how.

Only your Wayne dealer has it.

Gruber clinches Lehigh hog championship

QUAKERTOWN — Lehigh County 4-H'er Seth Gruber of R1 New Tripoli is no stranger to competition in the livestock show ring. And last Wednesday this intermediate hog showman competed his 235-pound Duroc market hog to the middleweight champion title and then on to grand champion of the Lehigh County 4-H Market Swine Round-up here at the Quakertown Livestock Market.

Although Seth's father, Henry Gruber of A & B Packing, and Jerry Clemens of Hatfield Packing compete on a daily business in the auction ring — buying hogs for their respective companies — there was no contest Wednesday evening as Clemens turned in the top bid of $4.10 for young Gruber's champion hog.

The reserve middleweight and reserve grand champion hog was exhibited by Brian Snyder of R2 Kutztown. His 235-pound hog was purchased by Tom Leidy of Leidy, Inc., Souderton for $2.90 a pound.

Todd Morehouse sold his 190-pound lightweight champion to George's Foodliner for $1.10 a pound, while Todd Bennecoff sold his reserve lightweight champion to A & B Meats, Allentown for 95 cents a pound.

Seth Gruber's heavyweight champion sold to A & B Meats for $1.50 a pound, and Willi Wilson's reserve heavyweight champion brought a bid of $1.05 a pound from Leidy, Inc.

The average price paid for the 118 hogs, including the grand and reserve grand champion, was 84 cents a pound. Without the top two hogs, the sale average came to 79 cents a pound.

In showmanship and fitting competition, the following 4-H'ers topped their divisions:

First-year fitter - Craig Krepak, R1 New Tripoli; First-year showman - Frank Fragnito, R1 Slatington; Junior Fitter and Showman - Benjamin Gruber, R1 New Tripoli; Intermediate Fitter - Seth Gruber; Intermediate Showman - Todd Bennecoff, R2 Kutztown; Senior Fitter - Brian Snyder, R2 Kutztown; Senior Showman - Willi Wilson, R2 Mertztown.

Judge for the show was Nick Kohut of Green Lane, Montgomery County.

Show results follow:

The grand champion hog of the Lehigh County 4-H Hog Round-up was exhibited by Seth Gruber of R1 New Tripoli. The hog was purchased by Hatfield Packing's Jerry Clemens for $4.10 per pound.

Brian Snyder of R2 Kutztown showed the reserve grand champion hog, taking top honors behind Gruber's middleweight champ. Buyer of the second best hog of the show was Tom Leidy of Leidy, Inc., Souderton.

Pa. mushroom production up

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania, the leading state in mushroom production, harvested 273 million pounds of mushrooms during the 1981-82 crop year, up 15 percent from the year before, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

Fresh sales totaled 120.1 million pounds, up 37 percent while processing sales at 152.9 million pounds were up two percent. Value of fresh market mushroom sales for this season was $95.2 million during the 1980-81 season.

The value of mushroom sales used for processing was $88.1 million, compared with $73.9 for the previous season. Pennsylvania produced 53 percent of the nation's 1981-82 crop compared with 50 percent the previous season.

Mushroom production in the United States reached 517 million pounds during the 1981-82 marketing season. This is 10 percent greater than both the 1980-81 and 1979-80 crop and continues the upward trend in production since mushroom estimates were started in 1966. The value of this year's crop was $423 million, up 19 percent from the 1980-81 season. Growers received an average of 81.7 cents per pound compared with 75.3 cents the previous season.

Speedier harvester shakes up fruit industry

KEARNEYSVILLE, WV — Mechanical harvesters for fruit trees have been available since the 1960s culminating in today's shake-catch models that can harvest up to 100 trees per hour.

But U.S. Orchardists are now planting two to four times more trees per acre than a few years ago. As tree density increases, harvesting rates must also increase just to maintain the same harvesting efficiency, said USDA agricultural engineer Donald L. Peterson located here at the Appalachian Fruit Research Station.

While other research scientists in USDA's Agricultural Research Service are working to reduce the cost of planting high-density orchards, Peterson is concerned with keeping mechanical harvesting in pace with these new orchards which yield more fruit per acre but less fruit per tree. In 1972, he and ARS agricultural engineer Gordon E. Monroe began working on a continuously moving harvester.

"The "fruits of their labors" has resulted in a prototype harvester that moves through the orchard three to four times faster than current models because it doesn't have to stop at each tree.

By placing the shaking mechanism on a sliding track, the harvester can keep moving as it shakes each tree and catches the falling fruit. A photosensor mounted at truck level disregards tall grass and weeds and activites the shaking mechanism only when the next tree is in position.

The driver need only set the speed and steer the harvester down the center of the row, said Peterson. As a built-in safety factory, however, the driver can override the photosensor and activate the shaking mechanism from his controls.

Peterson fit the shaking mechanism, engine, and driver's seat into a steel frame a little larger than a single car garage. In this case, however, the garage-like frame is on wheels and drives over the row. It can clear a tree 10 feet high by 10 feet wide — a size in keeping with the smaller trees in high-density orchards.

The harvester is a complete system with padded catching surfaces that gently roll fruit toward a conveyor system which, in turn, carries it into a 20-bushel pallet box tilted so that the fruit rolls rather than drops in. The harvester also provides a jump seat and separate set of conveyor controls for a second person as well as storage for four additional pallet boxes.

When it comes time for this unwieldy vehicle to move to a distant orchard, however, two workers can remove the conveyor and boxing systems and collapse the frame for easy transport.

But the advantages of this "over-the-row" model are more versatile. Its framework is ideal for attaching mechanical pruners or spray equipment, Peterson said, and it can be enclosed to cut down on spray drift.

Peterson designed the conveyors to accommodate various size fruits, but sees its most immediate potential for tart cherries — 85 percent of which are now machine-harvested.

Peterson said the over-the-row harvester "handles" peaches as carefully as most commercial pickers, but he doesn't forsee a rapid shift to mechanical harvesting. The main obstacle in mechanically harvesting peaches rests with the tree, he pointed out, not the machine. Peaches do not ripen uniformly; rather, they have to be harvested three to five times over a two-week period. Growth regulators may or may not synchronize ripening depending on weather conditions. Still, California growers currently "pick" about 15 percent of their peach crop with shake-catch harvesters.

Apples pose a different problem for machine harvesting. Peaches are picked firm for shipping and therefore resist bruising, but apples are picked at their tenderest stage. Much of the bruising with shake-catch harvesting occurs when falling apples hit lower branches.

Before apple growers can take full advantage of mechanized harvesting, they will have to reshape their trees to eliminate limbs over limbs, Peterson said. He is working with ARS horticulturist, Stephen S. Miller (also located at the Appalachian Fruit Research Station), to develop trees to "fit the machine."

In the meantime, Peterson hopes to enlist another engineer to develop an automatic fruit sorter that could be used in tandem with his harvester in conventional high-density apple orchards. A sorter could kick out bruised apples for processing, he said, explaining that labor costs are too high to sort by hand.

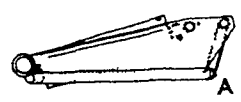
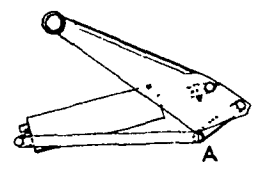
LIFTING ACTION OF THE EFFICIENT ENERGY PATENTED LINKAGE

ENERGY HYDRAULICS

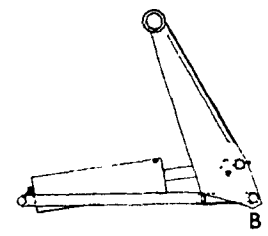
LIFTING ACTION OF THE EFFICIENT ENERGY PATENTED LINKAGE



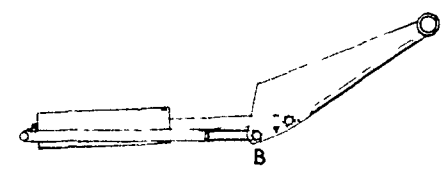
Hinge point is at A. Note center line of cylinder at 90° to center line of hingepoint which gives maximum lifting power at start of lift where most is needed



Hinge point is still at A. Note ratio of lift to piston travel increasing to maintain the most efficient leverage as hinge point is gradually changing to B



Hinge point has changed smoothly to B as load continues to raise permitting the lifting action to continue at maximum power and efficiency



Hinge point is at B. Lift now at maximum height. Note extremely high lift obtainable by using Energy Linkage yet same lifting power is maintained throughout entire lifting cycle.

The Vicon KM-240 cuts and conditions the tallest, tangled, wettest, heaviest, hay. This new mower-conditioner eliminates a pick-up reel, so you can put up more hay - FASTER. With a working width of 7'10", it can mow twice as much area in a day as most competitive models. Most competitors use a pick-up reel, which limits ground speed, adds maintenance problems and allows leaf loss.

The Vicon six-disc cutter bar feeds your crop directly, stem first, into rubber rollers that condition green hay or wet grass. It dries faster and bales easier, saving time and labor.

The KM-240 has no chains, no belts, no sickle bar. If you need only a mower, look at the Vicon CM-165 (4 discs-5½' working width) or the CM-240 6 discs-7'10" working width). Both make clean cuts in heavy grass or tangled crops.

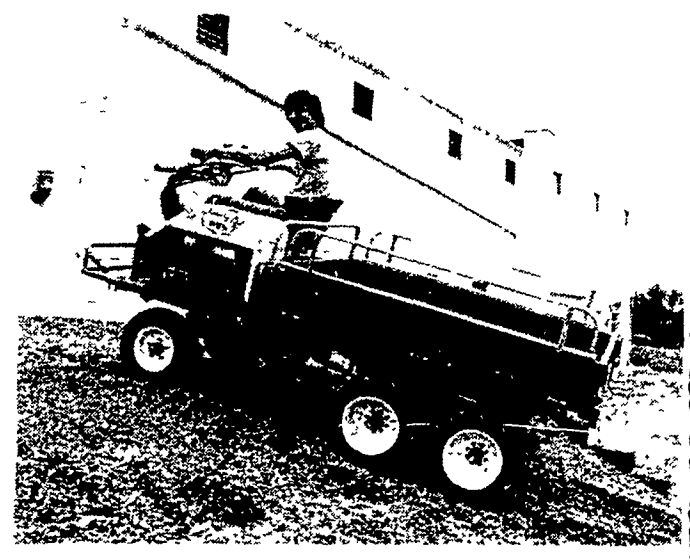
WU puts you out front!



This versatile vehicle can be maneuvered equally well whether sitting down to steer or walking after or before it. Steep grades or hard pulls are handled with ease with the 4 wheel drive. Two gallons of fuel per 8 hour working day will make it one of the most efficient vehicles on your farm. Hydraulic dump bed comes as standard equipment.

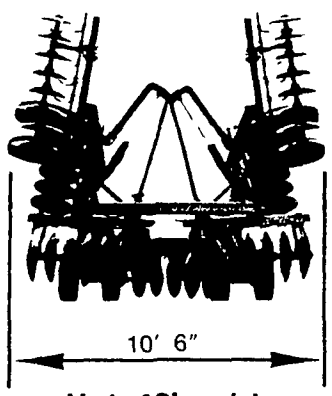
Easily Clears 11' Gates Hydraulically operated wings fold up-and-over the center section a full 15 degrees. They fold totally within the 10'6" cutting width of the center section. (Most competative units have transport widths in excess of 14' With wings folded, this harrow can easily pass through a 11' gate. (This applies to all model variations of the Flex 90)



Up to 19' models

Heavy Duty Wing Carriers The heavily reinforced 2" x 3" tubular steel wing carriers provide full support for folded wings During transport, wings rest securely in ½" x 4" forged steel saddles

Spring Mounted Bearing Hangers To achieve maximum flexibility, the Flex 90 features heavy duty 1" x 2" 5160 manganese alloy steel bearing hangers (the same material used for our chisel plow tines) The hangers are attached to trunion mounts which provide perfect alignment for the quadraseal

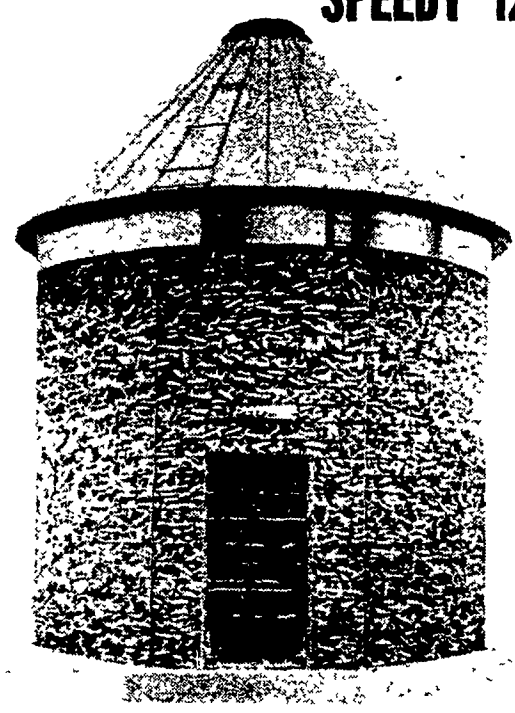
SPEEDY 1200 BU. CORN CRIBS



BAR-LOK CONSTRUCTION

- Cut Corn Crib Erection Time!
- Store More Corn For Less Money!
- No other corn crib goes up as fast or as easy as the Speedy Crib with roof rafters. This feature, plus Bar-Lok side panels, minimizes corn crib erection time.

SPECIAL PRICE

$200 per crib down payment will hold your crib till you need it and guarantee the price. Balance due on pickup of crib. Delivery available at extra charge. 900 bushel & 1700 bushel also available.

EASY TO ERECT!

Step 1 — Bar-Lok Construction saves you time — gives you a strong, sturdy crib Crib wire panels are interlaced to form an eye. A 13'x3/8" rod is then inserted through the eye and pushed down to the foundation. Easy, simple, fast construction.

Step 2 — Rafters are bolted to assembled rafter ring Now you're ready to put the roof panels on Rafters assure you of proper roof panel placement the first time No wooden framework to build

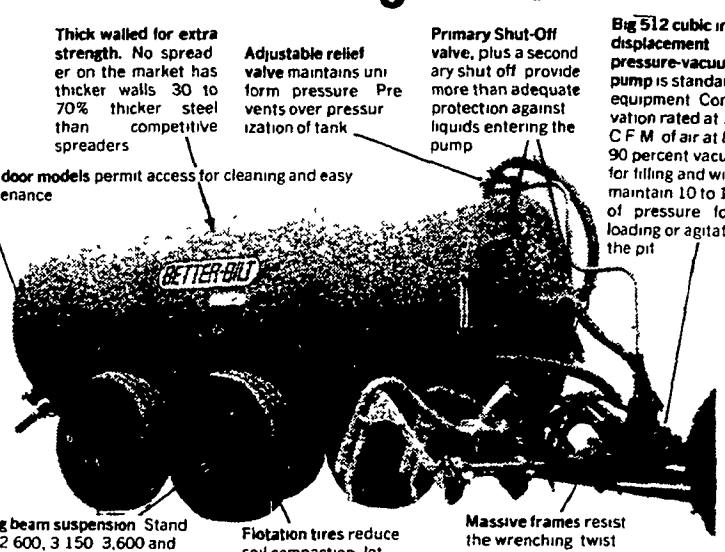
Outstanding Features



Thick walled for extra strength. No spreader on the market has thicker walls 30 to 70% thicker steel than competitive spreaders
Adjustable relief valve maintains uniform pressure Prevents over pressurization of tank
Primary Shut-Off valve, plus a secondary shut off provide more than adequate protection against liquids entering the pump
Big 512 cubic inch displacement pressure-vacuum pump is standard equipment Conservation rated at 135 C F M of air at 85 to 90 percent vacuum for filling and will maintain 10 to 15 lbs of pressure for unloading or agitation in the pit
Open door models permit access for cleaning and easy maintenance
BETTER-BILT
Walking beam suspension Standard on 2 600, 3 150 3,600 and 4 600 gallon models (Optional on 1 500 & 2,100 gallon models) Front & rear wheels on each beam follow contour of the ground, provides a smooth level ride
Flotation tires reduce soil compaction let you spread on soft ground early in season
Massive frames resist the wrenching twisting jolting shocks of hard field usage year after year

GUNITE Silo Relining & Repairs

Extensive tests have been conducted on Gunite. Below are some of the properties of Gunite:
1. Excellent bonding
2. High Density
3. Extreme strength and hardness
4. High resistance to absorption

The excellent physical properties of the material are due to the water content being only the amount needed to satisfy chemical hydration.

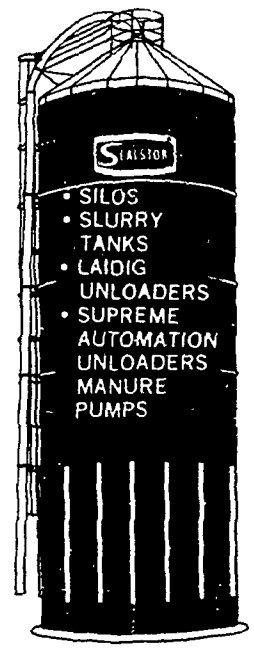
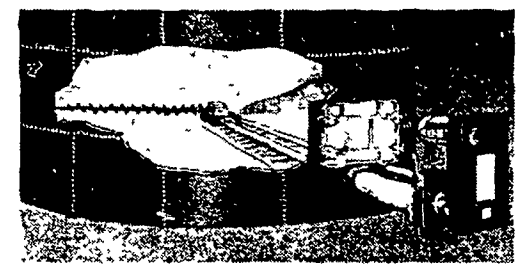
SEALSTOR



LAIDIG 43R



NOW YOU CAN UNLOAD WITH THE BEST
Shelled Or Ground Ear Corn

Storing high moisture grain can cause problems unless you have the right unloader. If you're bothered by high maintenance costs, poor feed delivery or a "free flow" system that fails, then you should consider the new Laidig 43R grain unloader.

It's designed for use in existing, oxygen-controlled storage units. And it can be installed in a single day WITHOUT ALTERATIONS TO YOUR STRUCTURE!

The Laidig 43R Power Sweep Auger replaces those Gravity Feed Sweep Augers. It's a heavy-duty machine engineered for day-in, day-out operation...the same high quality and peak performance that operators expect from a leader...from Laidig!

LAIDIG Best name in BOTTOM UNLOADERS 3 Year Warranty

43R IS A COMPLETE CONVERSION PACKAGE FOR OXYGEN-CONTROLLED GRAIN STRUCTURES.
For metal structures up to 20' in diameter

Replace Your Gravity Flow Unloader With A new LAIDIG NOW!
We will trade in your old unloader

THERE'S NO BETTER WAY TO HANDLE HIGH MOISTURE CORN.

AND WE CAN PROVE IT TO YOU.

The many benefits of high moisture corn are all well known these days No dryer costs, reduced shrinkage, less labor, less grain damage, fewer field losses, fewer bad weather problems — and a great feed!

And the only way to process high-moisture corn most effectively is with a Madison Grain-O-Matic® Here's why

The light gray color of the Vibra-Cor® staves reflect direct sun ray heat 2½ times better than the dark color used by others! These thicker truss-beam design staves also provide superior insulation value

Thus goes in the Grain-O-Matic® structure expand and contract much less than in a steel structure. Inside pressure is regulated by a precision vacuum and pressure valve. Every structure is air-pressure tested by experienced Madison crews Result- Better feed and no breather bags, so you can fill clear to the top of the structure with nutrition packed high-moisture grain And you also get the Madison/Laidig bottom unloader that provides fast, positive delivery day after day for a long, long time

Farmers find 'quick cash' in green tomato production

BY DEBBIE KOONTZ

THE BUCK — More than 50 beef, swine, poultry and dairy farmers in southern Lancaster County have been especially busy this last month and a half; but their bustling schedules aren't attributed solely to traditional field work such as haymaking. Instead, these industrious farmers have discovered the advantages of growing the quick-cash crop, green tomatoes.

Whereas the conventional growing season for other crops in Pennsylvania ranges to four months and beyond, the producers of green tomatoes must work under a season of about two months. Within this length of time, farmers must harvest their tomatoes, get them packaged and ship them to market so that when the crop reaches their destination, they are the epitome of redness and firmness.

The tough skin surrounding a green tomato aids the farmer in harvesting the crop mechanically; but when it comes to packaging and marketing, the task isn't so simple.

Only one green tomato packing plant remains in Lancaster County today, under the ownership of Charles E. Ressler — a former green tomato producer who once farmed up to 100 acres of this quick-cash crop.

Ressler purchased the only tomato packing plant that existed in the county three years ago, and says that business has improved every year.

In his first year of packing, Ressler remembers handling seven tractor trailer loads of tomatoes. Last year his business grew to 20, and this year he hopes to fill 40 loads.

Ressler attributes the increase in production to cash — quick cash. "Farmers want ready money and green tomatoes provide this. Seventy-five percent of the farmers I deal with are Amish. They used to get quick cash for tobacco, but now they're growing tomatoes."

Ressler's packing plant has been a receiving station for tomatoes since 1940. But when trucking and refrigeration improvements blossomed, California offered the local farmers stiff competition, and production slowly died.

When transportation costs began to skyrocket about five years ago, the interest in growing green tomatoes and the demand from local markets began to increase also, up and down the Atlantic seaboard.

Today, California still contributes about 80 percent of the tomatoes used in the country according to Ressler, but markets have found it beneficial to look close home for supplies.

Ressler's packaged tomatoes primarily go to restaurants and some stores in Boston and New York City. After the brief growing season is over in Pennsylvania, these markets will move south for their tomato supplies, finally overwintering in Florida.

According to Ressler, the tomatoes he handles in any one day will reach their destination within 24 hours to one week.

Though Ressler handles red tomatoes also, he says this fruit usually gets canned and sent to eastern shores.

Inside the Ressler plant, over 40 employees toil the long hours it takes to process and package the farmers' produce within a three to four week period..

After the tomatoes are unloaded by the farmers and some of Ressler's employees, the farmer can remain at the plant long enough to get paid for his crop if he wishes.

Last year, Ressler said he paid $5 for each 30-pound box. Bacause one acre averages 500 thirty-pound boxes, according to Extension agent and green tomato specialist Tom Jurchak, this brings the payment potential close to $2,500 for an acre of produce.

Meanwhile, the tomatoes have started on their way through the

Charles E. Ressler, owner and operator of the only green tomato packing plant in Lancaster County looks over some of the produce a farmer brought to the busy plant in The Buck. Ressler, who has owned the plant only three years now, used to be a green tomato farmer, also.

Raymond Landis of Quarryville, a dairy farmer by trade, helps unload the green tomatoes he brought to market. Landis says he grows the tomatoes because it is a quick cash crop.

Under the critical eyes of five or six employees on each side of the conveyor belt, the tomatoes must pass a test in both color and pureness - no blemishes are allowed.

After the tomatoes pass through the machine, they are packed in 25-pound boxes. Last year the boxes were 30-pound size, and Lackawanna Extension agent Tom Jurchak calculates at least 500 of these boxes to the acre.

The green tomatoes are poured onto a conveyor belt perforated with circles which allows smaller tomatoes to drop to another level. These Florade-type tomatoes are washed, dried and waxed before even reaching the packing stage.

This metal track carries the full boxes to the waiting tractor trailers which will carry them to markets in Boston and New York City.

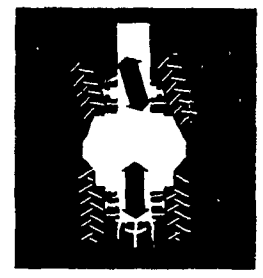
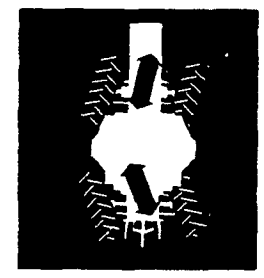
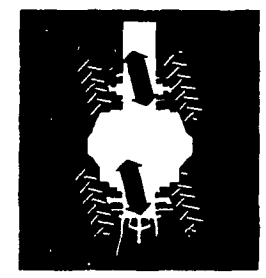
THEY OFFER THIS VERY IMPORTANT FEATURE:



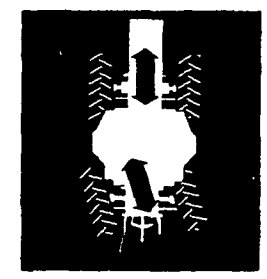
FRONT WHEEL ONLY. Automotive-style control Ideal for row crops most field work and for highway travel



4-WHEEL COORDINATED. Rear wheels and front wheels are electronically coordinated for sharp, full power turning



4-WHEEL CRAB STEERING. Crab steering counteracts implement drift on sidehills Controls implement overlap Makes four tracks (eight with duals) for maximum traction Hitch follows rear wheels for outstanding manueverability



REAR WHEEL ONLY. Rear wheel steering with electronic rocker switch "fine-tuning" makes implement hook ups much easier Great for maneuvering around yards and buildings

DID YOU KNOW?

Is The Only AGRICULTURAL 4 Wheel Drive Tractor Designed For Row Cropping. Why? Because CASE Doesn't Bend In The Middle Like Others.

Save time with 12-speed Case range power shift

Save time in the field with three on-the-go power shifts in each of four ranges. It means you can shift down and then shift down again without clutching...to keep moving through tough spots, soft spots, uphill, at headlands, over waterways — or for positive hold-back (no free wheeling) with heavy loads on down grades.

Save time on the road. You can start a heavy load rolling in fourth range at 9.5 mph (15.3 km/h), power shift up to 12.7 mph (20.5 km/h), then shift up again to 17.4 mph (28.0 km/m) all without clutching.

Power shift is smooth because it "swaps" only one of two engaged clutches — simultaneously. As pressure drops off in one clutch, it builds up in the other for a smooth exchange, all in less than one-fifth of a second.

If you haven't driven Case power shift, do it soon with a new 4490 See how easy and efficient big tractor speed control can be with Case range power shift.

With Case power shift, you choose the gear range that's right for the job, them power shift up or down within range to maintain optimum operating speed. Because you can instantly match speed to changing soil and field conditions, you can work extra acres every hour Notice, the 4490 offers an ideal speed selection in the tillage range

amazing electronic sensing and fingertip command

As easily as you'd operate a light switch, you can switch steering on-the-go from front to coordinated to crab steering. When you switch back to front wheel steering, rear wheels center automatically. It's an advantage you'll enjoy every time you drive the 4490.

Farmers find cash in tomatoes

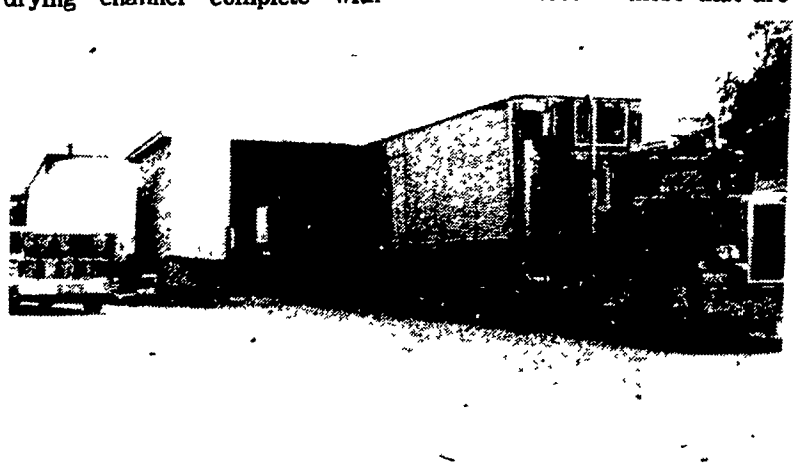
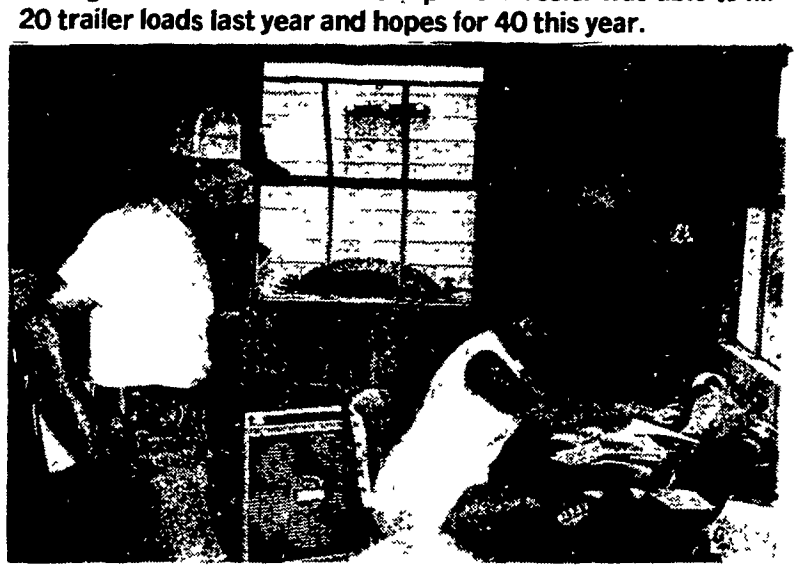
plant. The huge machines carry them through a washing and drying channel complete with brushes and heat lamps. The tomatoes are then coated with wax for protection against bruises. Good tomatoes — those that are firm and round, green in color and free of blemishes, are packaged immediately. Tomatoes sporting a light red color are packaged separately for a more localized market, and bad tomatoes are sent back with the farmer.



The tomatoes on the left will end up on the tractor trailer to the right after a brief stint in the plant. Ressler was able to fill 20 trailer loads last year and hopes for 40 this year.



Giving credit where credit is due, Ressler says he'd never be able to run the operation without the help of his bookkeeper, confidante and wife, Susan. Here, Susan does the paperwork on a load of tomatoes Daniel Metzler of R1 Pequea delivered. Metzler, a dairy farmer says he maintains four acres of tomatoes because he "was born into it."

The tomatoes move through the machine with the help of a huge black conveyor belt. Circles have been perforated on the belt to allow the smaller tomatoes to drop to another level for packaging so that sizes of tomatoes remain relatively consistent in each box.

As this process is occuring, a crew of four or five employees stand on each side of the machine and pull out the inferior and the red tomatoes, placing them in other boxes.

As the noisy, hurried procedure continues, the green tomatoes lucky enough to pass the critical eye of the employees, are placed in boxes capable of holding 25 pounds each. Ressler says these boxes cost him $.90 each and come in bundles of 11,000.

The boxed tomatoes are then hauled from the plant to their markets on tractor trailers of which Ressler himself, owns two. However, most of the markets send their own truck for the produce.

Ressler, a tall, lean man, proud in disposition and quiet in manner, readily admits that he doesn't see markets changing drastically, or the demand for his tomatoes increasing, because "most people grow tomatoes in their backyard, so the sales volume isn't there. Stores can't compete with this so the market isn't expanding much."

However, there is at least one area in Pennsylvania that would disagree with Ressler. For it is in the northeastern counties of Lackawanna, Luzerne and Wyoming that farmers boast figures of 2,000 to 2,500 acres, collectively, for tomato production in 1982. Fifteen years ago that figure was a mere 500 acres.

In addition to the packing plants in this three-county area, Erie and Snyder counties — both recognized for their production once-upon-a-time — can now report one packing plant each.

Tom Jurchak, Extension agent and green tomato specialist estimates total acreage for Pennsylvania at around 3,500. With simple arithmatic, it's easy to calculate that the 500 boxes per acre at a rate of about $5 each adds up to close $2,500 for an acre of green tomatoes; making the produce nearly a $9 million business for Pennsylvania last year. nearly a $9 million business for Pennsylvania last year.

Helms urges action on farm storage ad '83 programs

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Sen. Jesse Helms last Friday urged the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture to take further actions to strengthen the farm economy, in light of recent estimates of record-breaking fall harvests.

"America's farmers are proving yet again that they are the most abundant producers in the world. Unfortunately, there may not be adequate storage for such production, unless further action is taken," Helms said.

In a letter to Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block, Helms and four other Senate leaders urged the regulations on USDA's farm storage facility loan program be broadened to encourage more on-farm storage. The Senators also urged an early announcement of the 1983 commodity programs for feed grains, upland cotton, and rice.

In addition to Helms, the letter was signed by Sens. Robert Dole (R-KS), Finance Committee chairman; Thad Cochran (R-MS), Agriculture Appropriations Subcommittee chairman; Howard Baker (R-TN), Senate Majority leader; and Pete Domenici (R-NM), Budget Committee chairman.

"We commend you for the early announcement of the 1983 wheat program and the approval of $40 million in loans for on-farm storage facilities. We hope you will also announce the 1983 programs for feed grains, cotton and rice as soon as practicable so that farmers may make their planting plans," the Senators said.

"After the storage facility loan program was announced on July 14, more recent crop estimates have shown that corn and soybean production will reach record levels. In light of the larger crop estimates, we hope that the regulations on eligibility for storage loans be revised to encourage more storage.

"Such action will help farmers, complement your management of current programs, and fit the parameters of the budget," the Senators wrote. "In combination with the export promotion and paid diversion measures recently adopted by Congress, these actions should help strengthen the farm economy."

Total Density Control (TDC) lets you vary bale density to match moisture conditions

Gehl large round balers put you in total control of bale density and size. You can bale any hay crop, from legumes to grass hay. And most crop residues. Even in tough conditions. And you can actually control the diameter and weight of your bales.

Gehl's unique, patented Total Density Control concept makes it all possible.

When your hay crop is at the right moisture content, you'll roll 'em tight all the way. Just one big, heavy bale.

But when conditions are tougher, you adjust. Increase the core size. Change the wrap density. Or both.

Power-Feed Throat for fast positive bale starts

Our Power-Feed Throat with aggressive hay pickup gives you quick bale starts and allows you to travel at fast ground speeds. This positive feed flow is a real advantage in tough baling conditions.

The bottom line: increased bale quality...more bales per hour.

Gehl round balers are available in two sizes. They're ideal for tight, heavy bales. Or low density bales. And everything in between.

Farm Talk

Jerry Webb

Rib-tickling magazine

A lot of farm magazines come across my desk, from Successful Farming to Farm Journal, from Irrigation Age to the Farmer's Digest. But this one takes the cake. The all-time, most unusual farm magazine I've ever seen. Its title — "Playboar."

It's not a gag, it's a real farm magazine published on a quarterly basis by an outfit in Canada called Pigskin Production, Ltd. Playboar would be a one-time laugher except that its publishers have higher hopes. They're selling subscriptions like crazy throughout North America and they have legitimate advertisers — companies like A.O. Smith Harvestor, Elanco, ICI, and Connaught.

Billed as entertainment for swine breeders and selling for $10 a year, Playboar takes a lighthearted look at some rather serious subjects, satirizes almost anything with a swine flavor,a nd in general tends to liven up agricultural journalism. I suppose anybody can buy a copy of Playboar, or subscribe to it. My trial copy came from a Canadian associate who is aware of my somewhat offbeat sense of humor.

Lead stores in this issue include "Life on the Ribiera — The Flaky Uppercrust," "Da Gene Machine — Boneless Hams on the Drawing Board?," "Pig Mac — Pork in the Fast Food Lane," "Smoking Pigs — the Nico-teen Problem," and a movie revue, "Rooters of the Lost Ark."

The cover art, in beautiful process color, shows what appears to be the front of a Rolls Royce automobile. But upon closer look, you see a statue of a pig on top of the radiator and instead of saying Rolls Royce, the small emblem says Rolled Ribs. And the Ribiera vanity plate on the bumper reads Pig Shot.

And then there's the centerfold — Playboar's Litter-Mate of the Month. In this issue it's Julie Sowski, who is obviously a young Yorkshire gilt resting on a bed of pillows, wearing a stereo headset and nothing else. According to the descriptive material, she is turned on by massages with exotic oinkments that enhance her delicate pigmentation. She is turned off by hard-core porkography, such as the Pork Producers Marketing Board cookbook. Her favorite song is "Drink to Me Only With Swine Eyes."

Playboar is satirical, funny, artsy, serious and well written, all at the same time. Its articles are interesting, its artwork and photos well done, and its ads are real. Obviously, those commercial companies who service the pork industry see Playboar as a genuine advertising medium. They've obviously spent thousands for full color, full page advertising.

The magazine even offers a line of merchandise. A mail order store offering original design hog neckties, a cap with a Playboar crest, hoggie pins, and five original T-shirt designs.

I don't recommend that each of you run out and buy a copy of Playboar. You might want to ask around to see if someone already has one. It's certainly worth sharing. The serious swine grower might even want to subscribe. Subscription information is available from Playboar Magazine, P.O. Box 1838, Guelph, Ontario Canada, N1H 7A1. If you're looking for an appropriate gift for that person who has everything, Playboar just might be the answer.

New Harvestore pump joins Slurrystore line

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, Il. — A new manure pump which combines the functions of chopping, agitation and transfer has been introduced by A.O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc.

This pump joins Harvestore Products' line of Slurrystore system equipment. It is called the model 400 Triton Hi-Pro transfer chopper pump and, according to company marketing specialists, is the result of the company's most comprehensive ever design, development and testing program.

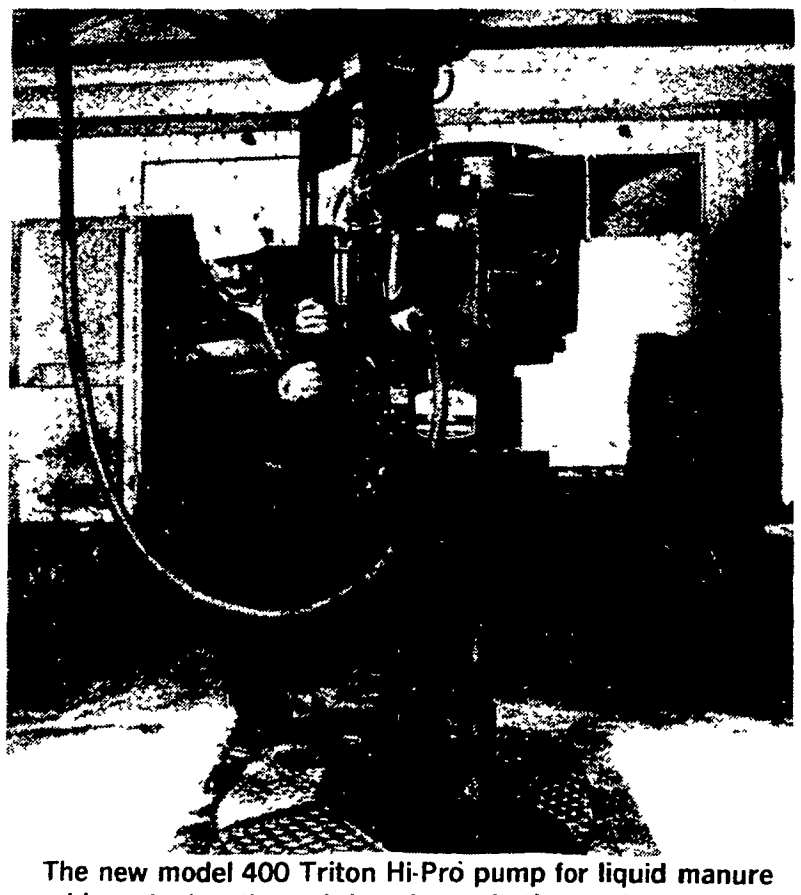
Key to the pump's efficient and flexible operation is its electric winch, which moves the impeller up and down in a concrete lined pit located in a building or lot remote from the Slurrystore system's above-grade tank.

The pump's impeller can be vertically moved to various levels of the pit to agitate or chop material and can be revolved horizontally through 330 degrees. For transfer of manure to the Slurrystore system, the impeller is positioned to couple through an outlet to the tank.

The model 400 Triton Hi-Pro pump is available in 20 h.p. or optional 15 h.p. versions. The 20 h.p. model features either a three-phase or single-phase soft start motor.

Even with a 60 ft. head, the 20 h.p. model of the pump can pump approximately 200 gal. per min., and about 1,000 g.p.m. with a 10 ft. head. The pump impeller can be quickly winched out of the pit for mechanical repairs or checking the two-way reversible chopper knives.

Several safety features highlight the new pump, including a swiveling rotary deck, hinge mounted grating over the pit opening, kick plates around the opening in the pit deck, a position retainer that serves as an anti-free fall device, and a lower limit switch to minimize cable fraying.



The new model 400 Triton Hi-Pro pump for liquid manure combines the functions of chopping, agitation, and transfer.

FFA - Familiar Face Auctions at Wenger's

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

MYERSTOWN — There was something new, or more exactly a familiar face in a new role, at the used farm equipment auction on Monday at Wenger's in Myerstown.

Just back after graduating from the Reppert School of Auctioneering in Decatur, Ind., Glenn Wenger, the youngest member of the Lebanon County family that is as well known for its support and participation in FFA as it is in used farm equipment circles, took the auctioneer's mike for the first time and struck down his first piece of machinery.

And it could be said that FFA took on a new and additional meaning for the 19-year-old son of Carl and Margaret Wenger. For now and in time to come, these initials could stand for "Familiar Face Auctioneers."

Actually, there's a close relationship between the leadership roles that the youthful Wenger has held in Future Farmers of America and the new career endeavor on which he is now embarking as an auctioneer.

"FFA provided me with the exposure before groups of people and permitted the development of a speaking presence in such situations," Wenger explained.

"I never had any public speaking training and what I learned in FFA at ELCO and Lebanon County was vital to me.

"This past year as State FFA Vice President was just tremendous. It put me into all types of experiences to meet and speak before people."

And these experiences, that have ranged from running a parent-member banquet at Eastern Lebanon County High School to meeting President Reagan, were quite evident when Wenger assumed the auctioneer's mike on Monday to sell his first piece of used equipment – a cultipacker.

Already, he displayed control of the bidding process and maintained a clear, smooth and rhythmic chant.

"I've always been interested in auctioneering," he said, "but it all started with Mom.

"She thought we should have an auctioneer in the family.

"I wanted to go to the school last year but didn't have the time due to the demands of being state vice president."

So, Wenger found himself just recently in a class of 70 in the intensive three-week course at the Reppert School, graduating on August 13.

"There was a lot of classroom work mixed with first-hand auctioneering experience," he said.

"We participated in six different auctions, mostly for church and other civic groups."

Wenger remembers the first item he sold at the school. It was a round outdoor thermometer donated by Nationwide Insurance that will record temperatures in Singapore.

"One of the students was from Singapore and bought the thermometer for $15.50," he said.

It addition to instruction in all aspects of running an auction, including advertising, the course also covers the essential legal aspects of the business.

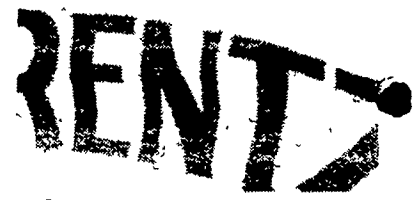
While Wenger embarks on this new phase of a career, he is still quite active in FFA. A graduate member of the ELCO chapter, he now serves as president of the Pennsylvania FFA Alumni Association after giving up the vice presidential reins of the active state association in June.

The group he now heads will be working during the coming year to increase the number of alumni units at chapters throughout the state in order to provide continuing support to FFA programs.

Also, during the coming year Wenger will be quite busy with auctioneering as he serves his year's apprenticeship before getting a license in Pennsylvania.

"Then, I hope to start an auction company in conjunction with the family business," he explained.

"The company would specialize in selling farm machinery and it would just fit into the business nicely."



Glenn Wenger chants for higher bid on used cultipacker.

Move from behind the podium of various FFA events across the state to the auctioneer's booth has been made by Glenn T. Wenger, ELCO Chapter member who served as immediate past vice president of the state association. Upon graduation from auctioneering school, he is beginning his year of apprenticeship toward eventual plans to start auction service specializing in farm machinery.

ABS offering mating booklet

DE FOREST, Wisc. — To acquaint dairymen with the benefits of American Breeders Service's Genetic Mating service (GMS), ABS has just released a 12-page, 4-color booklet on the program.

GMS is the largest mating service in the A.I. industry today with over 500,000 dairy cows evaluated annually. The booklet describes the growth of GMS in over 7,500 U.S. dairies, giving case histories and testimonials from GMS herds across the country.

For example, it features the story behind two classic GMS matings, that of J-W-S Monitor Rachael, Supreme Grand Champion 1981 World Dairy Expo; and Balls Pollyboots Demand EX, who sold for a world record price of $440,000 at the 1981 Poverty Hollow farm sale.

The booklet explains how the GMS program works and includes drawings of the different traits GMS evaluators use to evaluate cattle on a linear scale.

Dairymen can receive their free copy of the new GMS brochure by contacting their local ABS representative or by writing American Breeders Service, P.O. Box 459, DeForest, WI 53532.

Hesston two-sickle headers operate at 1820 strokes per minute, offering the fastest cutting speed of any pivoting pull-type windrower.

Windrower features two-sickle headers

HESSTON, Kan. — Hesston Corporation has announced the Model 1014+2 Hydro Swing Center-Pivot Windrower featuring high-speed two-sickle auger headers.

Available in widths of 12 or 14 feet, the Hesston two-sickle headers provide fast cutting and increased capacity. Running at 1820 strokes per minute, they offer the fastest cutting speed of any pivoting pull-type windrower.

The Model 1014+2 has total hydraulic header positioning for nearly infinite maneuverability. It can cut on either side of the tractor or center behind the tractor for easy roading.

A new auger on the Model 1014+2 has 15-inch pitch flighting with extended center flights for high capacity and positive feeding of crop to conditioner rolls. A new high-capacity hydraulic drive provides high torque, smooth operation.

Steel-on-steel conditioner rolls provide a wide range of adjustment for better control of crop drying. An optional swarthing shield kit lets the Model 1014+2 build swaths up to nine feet wide for faster drying in high moisture areas.

Heffner gets nomination to stay on Agway board

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Ralph H. Heffner, of Pine Grove, has been nominated for re-election to the Board of Directors of Agway Inc. He was elected Friday, Aug. 20, at a district nominating meeting at Grantville.

Heffner will stand for election to a three-year term at the Agway Annual Meeting Oct. 28-29 in Syracuse, representing an area which includes Schuylkill, Berks, Lebanon, Dauphin, and Lancaster counties.

A member of the Agway Board since 1973, he serves on the Executive, Planning and Farm & Home Committees of the 18-member Board. He is also a member of the Board of Directors of Curtice-Burns Inc. and serves as chairman of the Finance Committee.

Ralph Heffner

Heffner and his family operate the 500-acre Jersey Acres Farms Inc., maintaining a dairy herd of 60 registered Jerseys and 50 young stock. He raises forage crops, grains, and fruit. He and his wife, Annie, operate a road-side market at the farm.

Heffner holds a bachelor of science degree in agricultural education from Penn State and a master of science degree in agricultural economics from the University of Delaware.

Dairylea begins relocation

PEARL RIVER, N.Y. — The first step in relocating its headquarters office from Pearl River, New York to Syracuse has been approved by Dairylea Cooperative's Board of Directors.

In announcing the move, Dairylea's President Clyde Rutherford said that initially the move will involve the executive offices and supporting functions; for instance, economics, membership, public relations, and sales. Space will be maintained for an unspecified period in the Rockland County area for finance, accounting, some membership functions, insurance, personnel, and some employees in marketing.

The 3,500-member dairy cooperative will be leasing the whole floor of the SCM Building at 831 James Street with occupancy to commence by September. A number of employees from the co-op's upstate offices will also be consolidated at the Syracuse location with the total expected to be 45 by the end of this year or shortly thereafter.

"This move will achieve two important objectives for us," said Rutherford. "It will bring us more centrally into this area in which our owner-members reside, and it will result in a substantial reduction in cost. We've spent considerable time researching several different areas and have determined that Syracuse is the best location for our headquarters. Dairylea has long had a milk processing plant, a membership office, and other functions in Syracuse. It's home territory for us, and we are pleased to bring our headquarters to a city that has figured prominently in our activities during the past 75 years."

Dairylea, which had annual sales of $425,000,000, also operates major manufacturing plants at Adams, Vernon, Oneida, and Utica, New York and bottling operations in New York City and Scranton, in addition to Syracuse.

The co-op has members in seven states and annually markets approximately a billion quarts of milk.

Pa. bull enters sampling program

PLAIN CITY, Oh. — Ray McGolden Nugget Duke, a young bull bred by Ray McMillen, of Loysville, has been chosen to enter Select Sires' Program for Genetic Advancement (PGA) sire sampling system. Based on his outstanding pedigree, this bull calf has been selected as one of only 120 Holstein bulls from throughout the United States to enter the program in 1982.

The dam of this young bull is May-Mc Ormsby Rag Apple, a Very Good (88) daughter of "Elevation." Her production credentials include three consecutive records over 27,940 of milk and over 1,080 of fat. Her best record, made at eight years, one month of age in 365 days is 31,100 of milk and 1,224 of fat. She already has two daughters with over 820 of fat scored GP-82 and VG-87. Two maternal sisters to the dam are both Excellent in mammary. One is Excellent (91) with 924 of fat and the other is VG-85 with 754 of fat in 305 days as a young two year old. The sire of this young bull is Cedar-Grove Golden Nugget, among the highest PD$ bulls in the breed today at 99% Repeatability.

Panama dean visits Del. U's field day

NEWARK, Del. — Like the rest of the 1,200 visitors to the University of Delaware's Farm and Home Field Day, Alfredo Bernal was anxious to learn about the University's work in agriculture and home economics. He wanted to try a genuine Delaware meal of fried chicken, soybean salad and watermelon, and he wanted to hear from Delaware's elected officials and the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture.

But Bernal had special reasons for coming to field day all the way from his native Panama. The new deal of the agricultural college of the University of Panana, Bernal came to the University of Delaware as the guest of Title XII Coordinator Charles Curtis. The main purpose of his visit to Delaware was to work out the details of an educational exchange between the two institutions. But he planned his visit to coincide with field day, which gave him a built-in opportunity to tour the farm and discover the research and Extension activity going on there.

Virtually all Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station researchers and Cooperative Extension Service specialists take part in the annual event, conducting tours, explaining their work, and answering questions. Bernal was particularly interested in learning how Delaware soybean growing compares with the cultivation of pigeon peas in Panama since he'd like to introduce soybeans to Panama if a suitable short-day variety could be found.

Bernal also was interested in field day as an exercise in logistics. The University of Panama will be hosting its first agricultural field day in September, so Bernal paid special attention to details, from the order of events to the quantity of iced tea.

Cowboy-hatted Bernal was introduced to many people at field day, but he was particularly happy to greet the young man in the Panama hat who was watching over the plant science exhibit. It was Jose Cedeno, a graduate student from Bernal's university who is currently studying plant breeding at the University of Delaware under James Hawk. When he completes his master's degree he will return to join the faculty of the University of Panama.

Bernal and his family spent a week in Delaware, touring farms, meeting officials, and visiting points of interest as guests of the Curtis family. A highlight of their visit was a helicopter tour of the state.

Bernal says he greatly enjoyed his visit to Delaware and is looking forward to further cooperation between the two universities. With Bernal's enthusiastic support, the presidents of the two universities signed an agreement of cooperation — the first such agreement the University of Panama has signed with any U.S. educational institution in over 20 years.

MILK MARKET NEWS

Federal Order No. 4
Base Milk Climbs 6 cents

Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine recently announced a July 1982 base milk price of $13.68 per hundredweight and an excess milk price of $12.33.

The weighted average July price was $13.71 and the butterfat differential for the month was 17.0 cents.

The base milk price was up 6 cents from June was 27 cents below last July's base price. The weighted average price was up 10 cents from June. The montly increases in the base milk price and weighted average price were due primarily to a 14 cent seasonal increase in the July Class II milk price.

The advertising withholding rate, which is deducted from the base and excess milk prices but not the weighted average price, was 14 cents a hundredweight in July 1982 compared with 13 cents last year. A total of $693.2 thousand was withheld for advertising in July. The gross value of producer milk during July was $67.7 million pounds or over one percent from last year. A total of 7,217 producers were shipping to Order 4 handlers in July, a drop of 246 from a year ago.

The average daily delivery per producer was 2,213 pounds during the month, an increase of 94 pounds or 4.4 percent from last July. Class I producer milk totaled 219.5 million pounds and was down over 13 million pounds from a year ago.

The Class I utilization declined from 47.52 percent last July to 44.33 percent. Base milk accounted for 92.29 percent of total producer milk receipts, the highest base milk percentage since October 1979. The average butterfat test of producer milk during July was 3.50 percent.

Middle Atlantic Order pool handlers reported Class I in-area milk sales of 190.7 million pounds during July, a decline of 3 million pounds or 1.6 percent from a year ago, after adjustment to eliminate variation due to calendar composition.

Federal Order No. 3
July Milk Brings $13.16

Dairy farmers who supplied milk plants regulated under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders during July will be paid on the basis of a uniform price of $13.16 per hundredweight (28.3 cents per quart).

Market Administrator Thomas A. Wilson also stated that the uniform farm price per hundredweight was $12.63 in June 1982 and $13.33 in July 1981. The uniform price is a marketwide weighted average of the value of farm milk used for fluid and manufactured dairy products.

The butterfat test for July 1982 was less than 3.5 percent. In the past five years, the July test has been above that mark only once, in 1980.

A total of 17,382 dairy farmers supplied the New York-New Jersey Milk Marketing Area with 923,177,789 pounds of milk during July 1982. This was an increase of 0.6 percent (about 6 million pounds) from last year. The gross value to dairy farmers for milk deliveries was $121,663,425.33. This included differentials required to be paid to dairy farmers but not vountary premiums or deductions authorized by the farmer.

Regulated milk dealers utilized 355,387,092 pounds of milk for Class I, 38.5 percent of the total. This milk is used for fluid milk products such as homogenized, flavored, low test and skim milks. For July 1982, handlers paid $14.68 per hundreweight (31.6 cents per quart) for Class I milk compared with $14.86 a year ago.

The balance, 61.5 percent, was used to manufacture Class II products including butter, cheese, ice cream and yogurt. For this milk, handlers paid $12.45 per hundredweight.

The uniform price is based on milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat. For July 1982, a differential of 17.0 cents was applied to the price for each one-tenth of one percent that the milk tested above or below the 3.5 percent standard.

Ask the VMD

Leon Riegel — Donald Yorlets — Edgar Sheaffer

A reader asks:

How often should a horse's teeth be floated and why?

Dr. Sheaffer replies:

Irregularities of wear occur commonly in the teeth of the horse.

All horses under 2 years or over 6 years of age should have the teeth examined at least every six months. Between 2 1/2 years and 5 years, a once yearly dental exam is generally sufficient.

Teeth are floated or filed down to remove sharp edges and points. The molar teeth are more prone to develop these spurs than the incisors or canines. At times, deciduous caps need to be removed in horses between 2 and 5 years of age.

In severe cases, the veterinarian will see lacerations on the surface of the cheek and tongue. They may develop into large red ulcers which will not heal until the teeth are properly floated.

New rules for a new game

As dairy producers, many farmers are discovering they are having to learn how to play a new and different game — the game of feeding and managing top producing dairy cows and keeping cows at these high levels of production year after year.

The economy has put a severe strain on cash flow situations. To generate more cash flow, many dairy producers are pushing their cows for top production and for greater margins of profit per cow. That's a new ball game for many of us.

We are finding out we can't play this new game by the old rules we have been accustomed to. We need to adjust our game plan to fit the new type of game we are playing.

Our modern, high producing cow of today is different from the cow we worked with ten years ago. It's like comparing a highly-sophisticated, high-performance race car engine to one found in an old Model A. They are two different "critters." Like a high-performance engine, our high-producing cows need to be pampered with proper "tuning", and "driven" by top-notch farmers. Otherwise, we won't get the performance.

Last week I had the pleasure of traveling with an Italian dairy specialist who was visiting Lancaster County. He works with a dairy feed and farm supply cooperative in northern Italy. One of his concerns is that many of the dairy herds he works with in Italy tend to level off at about 17,000 pounds of milk. Sounds familiar, doesn't it?

He asked, "What is the limiting factor that prevents many herds from cracking this 17,000-pound level? Is it genetics or is it management?"

I only had my experiences with herds in this country to draw upon, so I explained that most of our herds have the bred-in potential to do better than 17,000 pounds. Management is the key factor, and our current economy is forcing many of us to fine tune and re-evaluate what we have traditionally done in the past.

I don't mean to infer that most dairy farmers are poor managers or poor herdsmen. That simply is not true. Otherwise, we would not have as many efficiently-run 15,000-17,000 pound herds as we do.

Just recently, I heard a good comment about the american farmer which I thought really put things into good perspective. It went something like this: "There is not a group of people as hard working and as dedicated toward providing sustenance for our American public as the American farmer. It is ironic that they are being punished for their productivity and efficiency by regulations, high interest rates, rising costs of production and low prices for the products produced.

So, who am I to say that dairy farmers need to become more productive and efficient? You're already miles ahead of most other workers and manufacturers.

But, if you want higher production and greater margins of profit, it may be necessary to continue to fine tune the management of your herd. That is still one thing you control which can influence your cash flow.

Miller, Crane, Stoner turn over champion furrows

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

DOVER — A funny thing happened on the way to the state plowing contest.

But, at least at the time, it didn't seem funny to Dauphin County plowman Robert Miller, Millersburg. Coming through Harrisburg Wednesday morning, the wheel bearing went out on the trailer hauling his competition eqipment. Temporarily abandoning the contest rig, Miller continued to the York County plow site, borrowed a loaner tractor and plow from Straley Farm Equipment, and won the small plow state championship by one point over the closest competitor.

Standing in the winner's circle is not a new experience for Miller, national small plow winner in 1976 and holder of at least a half-dozen previous state titles.

Meanwhile, not far across the open flat fields of the Meisenhelter

(Turn to Page D17)

Among the more experienced contest plowmen is 78-year-old Frank Kocevar of R1 Harrisburg who represented the United States in international plowing competition in Holland in 1977. The Dauphin Countian says he's been plowing since the age of nine.

State plowing contest

farm, Cumberland County's Gary Crane maneuvered his large plow entry to earn the judge's nod as the year's best in that category.

For Crane of South Spring Garden Street, Carlisle, it was the third state win in four tries. He's taken both the small and large plow state titles in previous contests.

Jay, Stoner, also of Cumberland County, added to his plowing trophy collection with the state contour champion plaque. Stoner of East Locust Street in Mechanicsburg was a previous winner in the small plow division.

Winners received cash awards, as well as commemorative plaques, in the tillage skill contest arranged by the state plowmen's association in conjunction with Extension and Soil Conservation Service.

Other placers in the state small plow division were: Charles Hess, second; William Crane, Cumberland, third; Harvey Souder, Lancaster, fourth; and Richard Ringler, Somerset, fourth.

Frank Burkhart of Lancaster County finished second in the large plow category, over Sheldon Benton, Somerset, in the third spot, and fourth place Randal Keeny, York.

In the contour category, Terry Sunday, York, was second, third was Neil Leffler, Dauphin, and Somerset's Bob Miller was fourth.

The morning session of the day-long plowoff was devoted to York County's contest, with winners vying after lunch for state honors.

Topping the York competition were small plow winner Charles Hess, R1, Dallastown; Randal Keeny, R2, Glen Rock, taking the large plow division, and Terry Sunday, York, who topped the contour category.

Sunday also earned the title of Rookie Plowman of the Year, since it was his first attempt at competition plowing. "I'm gonna' hang it on the front door," he quipped to the question of where he planned to hang the handsome plaque award.

Judges spent the day roaming, freshly-turned plots, taking note of the overall finished look of the field, plus contestants safety practices followed while operating their tillage equipment.

"What we look for is straightness and evenness of furrows, with a uniform depth of seven to nine inches," explained yardstick-toting Bard Hess, R1, Dallastown one of several judges assisting with the scoring. "Ends should also be straight and even, trash should be covered, and the surface pulverized, but in ridges to catch moisture."

Of critical importance, and perhaps one of the most difficult plowing maneuvers, is the finish furrow. Judges give highest points to a final furrow that is narrow and shallow, since a deep, wide gap in the center of the finished plot causes later inconveniences when working a field.

Judge Hess, along with Lancaster Countian Frank Burkhart and Jim Mowery of Somerset, will represent Pennsylvania in the national plowing competition, set for mid-September in Minnesota. Hess and Burkhart are competing in their divisions for father-son winners William and Harry Crane, Cumberland County, who are unable to attend the national plowoff.

This year's winners will plow at national competition feeling right at home, since the 1983 national plowing contest is to be hosted next August on the John Shearer farm near the York County 4-H Center.

Nearly one hundred spectators turned out for the contest under the brilliant sunshine and blue skies of one of summer's most perfect days. Also on hand was a display of numerous types of tractors and equipment, courtesy of area machinery dealers.

Carroll Co. hosts small grain no-till demo

A small grain no-till drill field day will be held near Westminster, Maryland on Sept. 23, off Old Bachman's Valley Road near Fridinger Mill Road intersection at the Lippy Brothers' farm. Equipment will be on display starting at 8 a.m.; the drill demonstration will begin at 9:30 with the CrustBuster, Great Plains, Haybuster, Lilliston, Marliss, Tye as well as other drills being demonstrated in corn stalk, shredded corn stalks, and bean ground.

The event is being sponsored by the Carroll Soil Conservation District 301/848-4500, Ext. 332 and the Cooperative Extension Service 301/848-4611.

Brockett's Ag Advice

Culling cows - when?

There is no doubt that dairy producers are faced with an increasingly tight financial situation. Profit margins will become smaller (even smaller than at present) as costs rise and prices decline. The individual dairy farmers must make decisions that increase chances for survival.

One of those decisions is when to cull a cow. Many dairy farmers make a big mistake by assuming they can keep a cow for free in the summer. That is just not true.

Culling cows that no longer pay their way makes good sense. They require some feed that a paying proposition could use or you could sell. The least amount of feed eaten by the cow is 24 pounds of hay per day or its equivalent in pasture or silage (value $1). Most cull cows also eat some grain.

You could sell those cull animals, put the money into a money market fund, treasury bill, or bank CD and make a return of at least one percent per month (that's $5 per cull cow clear profit with no work).

Everyone has a definition for a cull cow. Here is mine:

- She is a big minus when compared to herdmates (be careful with first calf heifers)
- She is going to be dry for four or more months (milking less than 20 pounds of 3.5 percent milk per day).
- Other factors that would cause me to label her a cull would include chronic health problems, breeding problems, disposition problems, feet and leg problems, and short lactations.

When to cull?

There are a number of times during a cow's life that culling decisions must be made.

- Prior to being bred: this is a prime time to make a decision. Is she producing up to par, was her previous lactation satisfactory, is she healthy, and do you definitely want to keep her?

If your answer is negative on these questions, don't breed her. The end results will be that you will definitely cull her and she will make more milk for you than if she had been bred. Sell her when production drops below 30 pounds of 3.5 percent milk per day.

- After three or four breedings and she still is open: this is a good time to evaluate her. Is her production high enough to justify the hassle, what hassle doen in the past in the way of production and breeding efficiency, is she healthy, and do you really want to keep her?

Again a negative answer to these questions may say don't breed her. Follow the same program as above.

- She is bred but production has dropped to the point where it is no longer worthwhile milking her. You look at the chart and realize that it will be 4 or more months before she freshens again. Why did production drop? Was this a result of something that happened or did she or her dam do this before? Then ask the same questions as above.

Culling of a bred animal is a more difficult decision. In some cases, where the anticipated return after she freshens is high, the answer may be to keep her then follow the program outlined for number one above.

- She has chronic mastitis, foot and leg problems, or is a mean cow. If you have a heifer or new cow to take her place, why not ship her out now?

If you don't have a replacement don't breed her the next time she freshens. If the problem is bad enough go away for a couple of days and tell the family or hired man that you hope she is gone when you return.

Specter takes farm pulse

LANCASTER — Sen. Arlen Specter stopped in Lancaster Monday morning to take the farm pulse amidst a statewide information gathering swing among Commonwealth constituents.

Appearing before the Lancaster County Agriculture Council, Senator Specter learned the beat of the ag pulse is continuing to show signs of economic illness. And the primary diagnosis can be summed up in two words – interest rates.

Concerns over interest rates was the single most repeated message that the farm leaders who make up the Council stressed to the senator.

And Specter said that bringing the rates down even further was the most important issue in the nation's capital, as well.

He expressed the hope that the recent drop in the prime rate of a point or two might be an indication that continuing relief may be in sight.

"We're being squeezed to the point of hurting," Earke Lefever said on behalf of not only farmers but industry that serves them, such as farm equipment dealers.

"The farmer needs better prices for his products and if it takes selling grain to the Russians, let's sell it to them."

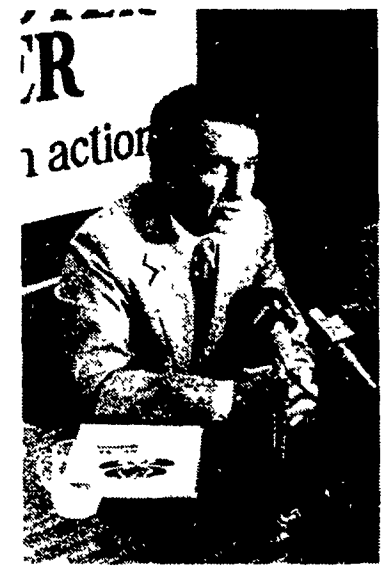
Specter said he favors a Summit meeting between President Reagan and the Soviets

"President Reagan is the best salesman in the country so let's use him," Specter said.

"There's a lot to be said for a long-term contract with Russia and have them dependent on us for the grain.

"Reagan is a great negotiator and we can get a lot more from Russia through tough negotiations if they have something to gain from them."

He favored using three "levers" in the negotiations -- the deployment of Pershing II missiles in Europe, the sale of technology, and grain.



Sen. Specter

In addition to favoring long-term grain deals instead of the one-year extension of the agreement, the Senator also favors as little meddling as possible by the government in the dairy situation.

He emphasized he's always suspicious of government formulas aimed at cutting milk production. And he favors control of the dairy program remaining with the Congress rather than with the Secretary of Agriculture.

And regarding farmland preservation, he believes it should remain at the local and state level.

think that top production is automatically going to generate top profits. Those last few pounds of milk can be very expensive.

Cows' needs

High-producing cows have specific needs. It is possible for nutritionists to know almost exactly what a cow needs. Therefore we should be able to develop a variety of optimum, or near optimum, feeding programs that can be adapted to local situations and to feed ingredients that can be economically grown or purchased at the local level. (Notice that I did not say feed ingredients that we are currently using.)

Using these recommended, "best feeding programs" as a guide, we would be able to shop for the kinds of feeds we need to attain production level and profit margin goals.

How many times have you told the feedman, "Here's the forage I'm feeding, and I feed "x" pounds (you provide the figure) per cow per day. Tell me what grains and supplements I should feed."

This is all backwards. It's letting the tail wag the dog!

The recommended "best feeding program" should be a guide to help you determine the kind and amount of crops to grow or purchase and the kind and amount of feed storage you need. It would also dictate the quality of feeds we need, how we need to "put it up" (stage of maturity, moisture, length of cut, additives needed, etc.) and how we need to feed it to get the most out of the feed and out of the cow.

Why aren't we doing more of this? In our cropping programs, are we more concerned about tonnage per acre and convenience than we are about the quality of feed our herds need? Perhaps we need to sacrifice some tonnage and convenience in the interest of increasing milk yield and net farm income per acre.

We are coming to the season of the year when we can do something about the quality of the silage we "put up." Let's not get it chopped too fine. As we feed more grain, less forage and higher quality forages to get more production, we need all the "effective fiber" we can get, and a longer chop will help.

When it comes to feeding high-producing herds, we may have to re-evaluate least-cost rations. Your goal will not be to have the lowest feed cost in the county. Instead, you'll be trying to match the quality of your feeding program to the production level you are aiming for, and to get that quality program at least cost. So, reducing feed purchases may not necessarily be the most profitable. Look at the impact of each decision on the bottom-line figure for the entire farm.

"Good "cowmanship" is important for good production. It includes more than simply putting the right kind of feed before the herd. Cows need to be fed according to their individual needs. What we feed a cow is important; how much we feed and how we feed it is also important.

Health and nutrition go hand-in-hand. A well-fed herd must also be healthy if we expect to have good production. Similarly, good nutrition is basic to good herd health. So, we need to keep on top of herd health problems.

Then, there is general cow care and comfort. Remember, a cow is a creature of habit she appears to like contentment. If she is content and comfortable, she'll eat better and she'll digest her ration more efficiently. What good is the best of rations if a cow doesn't eat it or make good use of it?

Just this week, I talked to two dairymen who were concerned about this. Both had freestalls and were considering going back to tie stalls (I am not saying this is the way to go; it's an individual decision). They were concerned about cow injuries, cow turnover and individual attention.

Wool Growers urge textile import curb

DENVER, Colo. — The National Wool Growers Association unanimously endorsed a resolution urging the Reagan administration to "take the immediate measures to curb the unprecedented flow of textile and apparel imports from Red China to the U.S. Market" at their meeting held in Helena, Montana the first week of August.

It was announced that the imported textile flow threatens to displace 724,000 American jobs, 120,000 of which are in wool production. The board members voiced bitterness toward the current "anything goes" trade policy on South American wools. A countervailing duty petition will be filed with the Department of Commerce by the National Wool Growers Association because of the apparent subsidies provided to exporters of wool, particularily Argentina.

The Board endorsed a recommendation from the Animal Damage Control Committee to launch a full-scale effort to transfer the ADC Program from the U.S. Department of Interior to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The initiative will commence after the November election.

A report by the General Accounting Office, critical of the Wool Act and its incentive program, was also discussed. Board Chairman Don Meike outlined the structure of a blue-ribbon committee to evaluate the report and prepare recommendations for response.

In addition to the South American wools and foreign textile imports, other primary items on the agenda were strategies for concluding the 1080 hearings currently before the Administrative Law Judge, lamb markets and the NWGA budget.

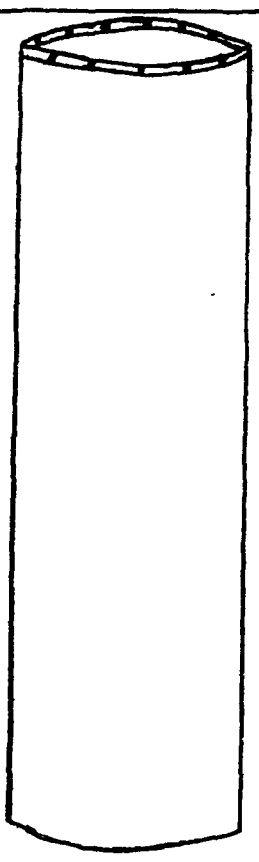
SILO LINERS



Some Reasons For Using a Liner -

1. Eliminate runoff
2. Wetter silage packs tighter
3. Tighter packed silage makes more Lactic acid
4. Lactic acid inceases the D.T.N.
5. Reduces shrinkage
6. Does not heat
7. Does not freeze
8. Does not spoil in hot weather
9. More digestable protein
10. Acid does not eat silo walls
11. The same amount of acres feed more cattle
12. You don't need an additive
13. Can be installed by one person

Purina Hi Octane Hog Chow

and

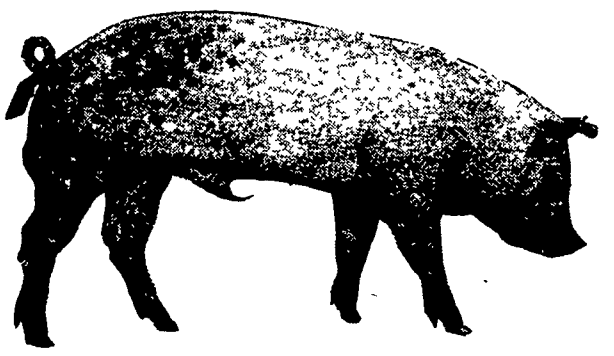
MORE INCOME POTENTIAL

It takes more to make money in the hog business these days. More genetic potential, better feeding programs, and more in the way of smart management. Discover how Purina and Kleen Leen can improve your hog income through faster daily gains, larger litters, improved feed conversions and better carcass quality.

MORE HEALTH

Regardless of which Checker™ Boar or Gilt you select, you'll receive the benefit of the Kleen Leen Health Program, the most complete program of its kind.

It helps assure that animals will arrive on your farm free of specified infectious diseases. We have enough confidence in it to offer the strongest written warranty in the industry today.



MORE GENETIC CHOICES

What specific traits would you like to improve? Kleen Leen offers 7 different breeds of Checker™ brand boars to strengthen different specific traits. Use them in combination with high performance Checker™ brand gilts for a double dose of genetic improvement. Kleen Leen's exclusive genetic potential rating (G.P.R.®) system accurately measures the heritable traits that affect your income. Because it evaluates true genetic potential before you buy, it lets you purchase the Checker™ Boar that's the best value for you. Checker™ Boars are available in 7 different G.P.R.® levels ranging from 80 to 140 G.P.R. points. Even the lowest level is capable of improving nearly any herd in the nation.

MORE KNOW-HOW AND COMMITMENT

A little more than 70 years ago, Purina began providing specialized products, total management programs and professional guidance for hog producers. Today, Purina is the only national feed company which offers hog cow rations, health products, Kleen Leen breeding stock, and professional expertise in research, nutrition, management, marketing and sanitation.

Your dealer can help you with more phases of your hog operation than anyone else.

It all adds up to an unequalled commitment to your success using the tremendous combined resources of Purina and Kleen Leen.

Look at the performance records that Dan & Amy Buttorff of New Park, Pa. have seen using the Purina Hi-Octane Hog Chow program and Kleen Leen Checker™ Boars and Gilts
